ENCOUNTER TILES

VOLUME 1: CLASSIC DUNGEONS

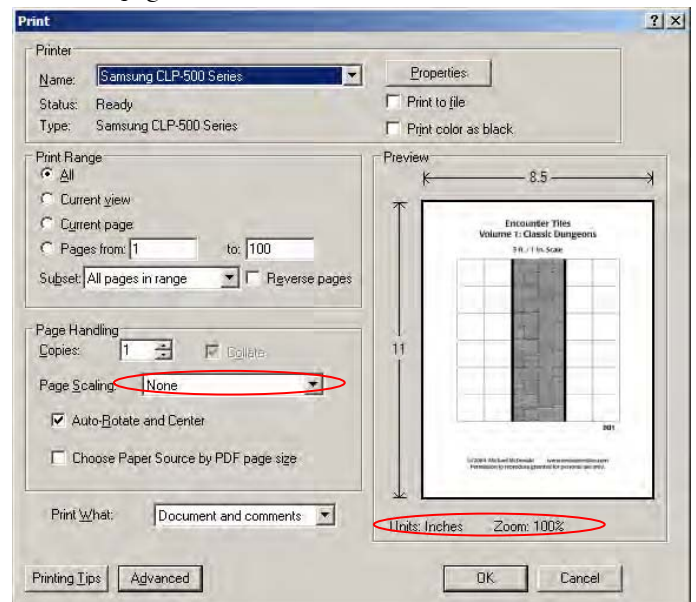

HOW TO GET THE MOST FROM YOUR TILES

100 tiles are included in this set and represent the most commonly needed shapes for dungeon adventuring. Here are some ideas on how to get the most out of your encounter tiles:

- Print Only What You Need: Use the index pages to preview each tile and print out only what you need. You'll want to print multiple copies of the more common tiles; others may not be needed right away.
- Make More Tiles: By cutting a tile in $\frac{1}{2}$ or trimming off a side you create a new tile and give yourself even more creative design options.
- Plan Out Your Dungeon In Advance: Draw on graph paper your dungeon map – number each location on the map and the corresponding Encounter Tile with the same number; then, as the player characters move through the adventure you'll be ready with the needed tiles.
- Make Your Tiles Last: Many office supply stores sell clear lamination pages. Look for a product with full sized sheets with an adhesive back - they don't need any special equipment to use. Print out your Encounter Tiles and seal them in these easy to use plastic pages. Not only will you be able to use your tiles over and over again but you'll be able to write on them with wet erase makers and wipe them clean at the end of the night.

- When printing from Adobe Acrobat: Please be aware – to get the best results when printing these tiles you need to make sure Adobe Acrobat is not scaling the page (shrinking the page to make it fit.) Zoom should be 100%:

RANDOM DUNGEON GENERATION

Also included is a two page chart to generate random dungeons. It's a great way to make an interesting and unique dungeon setting.

Start with any tile you like. Determine what type of exits the tile has and find that category across the top of the chart. 5', 10', etc. refer to the width of the exit from the tile. Some tiles do not have any – use the "room" column for these tiles. Roll a d100 find that number in the column associated with your tile's exit type and read all the way over to the right to find the next tile for your dungeon. If at any point you don't like the result – just role again. As far as doors and other exits – add them wherever and whenever you like – you're in control.

Good luck and enjoy this great product from City of Champions Media.
