

Charter of Covenant

Angulus of the Stonehenge Tribunal

Membership

The covenant recognizes three states of membership.

The status of Amicus denotes a full member of the covenant and is bestowed upon the completion of the duties and obligations required of a Probatio and subject to a majority vote of the Council of Amicii, unless testimony is brought against him that proves him unfit to swear the Oath of Covenant in good conscience; in which case all rights of membership will be withdrawn. Should elevation to Amicus take place, then all rights and duties of the Probatio are shed, to be replaced with the assumption of the basic and full rights detailed by this charter, and the duties therein attached. The state of Amicus persists, unless abridged through censure or canceled through expulsion. Should a magus ever come to desire release from this covenant, he must renounce his Oath of Covenant in the presence of at least two other Amicii, and shall thereby be relieved of all duties and rights, and may not call upon such rights furthermore.

The status of Probatio may be extended to any magus in good standing of the Order of Hermes, who owes no allegiance nor fealty to any other covenant, and is admitted upon the unanimous approval of the current Council of Amicii. Probatio assume the basic and probational rights detailed by this charter and the duties therein attached. The status of Probatio shall last a period of seven seasons of service, unless abridged or extended through censure or canceled through expulsion.

The status of Protected Guest may be extended to any person by the formal invitation of any Amicus of the covenant. Protected Guests are afforded the basic rights detailed by this charter, and are not obligated to the Council of Amicii, nor are they a member of this council. The status of Protected Guest may be may be revoked by the Amicus who granted it, or by a majority vote of the Council of Amicii.

Governance

The members of this covenant are governed by the Council of Amicii, which shall consist of all magi upon who has been bestowed the status of Amicus. This council shall not declare action except on behalf of the entire membership of the covenant; no action may be demanded of individuals by council agreement. Conversely, the rulings of the council cannot be overturned by an individual.

Any Amicus of the covenant shall have the right and duty to convene the Council of Amicii for consideration of matters justly grave. All Amicii and Probatii shall be charged with attendance and diligence in the proceedings, Protected Guests may be invited to attend by the council determined by a majority vote if there is a dispute. Should it not be possible to convene the full Council of Amicii, any quorum consisting of more than half of its current members is considered valid; else the discharge of the council's duty must be delayed until such time as a quorate meeting may be convened. Any Amicus may appoint a Proxy to cast his vote. The Proxy may address the council and engage in the debate if invited otherwise the Proxy has no voice in the council unless he is an Amicus in his own right. The Council of Amicii shall convene four times each year, one day prior to each equinox and solstice, regardless of call from any member, and all members of the covenant should endeavor to make themselves present.

Motions to be decided upon by the Council of Amicii must be introduced by a member; debated fully and justly, allowing those who wish to speak to do so; and then proposed for the vote. Proposals must be seconded by another member of the covenant, else no vote can take place. All issues shall be passed by a majority vote of the members there present; excepting that the unanimous opinion of the Council of Amicii is required for issues involving changes to the charter; expulsion of a member; and acceptance of a new Probatio.

The Council of Amicii shall confer the office of disceptator to the representative of the covenant in matters of governance and temporal concern. The title of disceptator is a duty of each and every Amicus of the covenant; this position is cyclical and mandatory, with the responsibility rotating in sequence of Hermetic seniority amongst the Amicii. Each disceptator serves for a period of seven years, commencing one year following Tribunal. The duties of the disceptator are: to attend regular meetings of the council; to keep order at meetings; to break tied votes with a discretionary casting vote; to determine the yearly surplus of provision and store; and to act as a spokesman for the Council of Amicii. The disceptator shall not be empowered to rule on matters on the covenant's behalf, but instead is charged with ensuring that the rulings of the Council of Amicii are enacted.

Resources of this covenant are held in common by the Council of Amicii, and it is the responsibility of this council to maintain and defend them.

This covenant lays claim to all the vis originating from undisputed and unclaimed sources discovered by members of the council; save for half of the first three harvests of a new vis source, which belongs to the finder or finders. This covenant also lays claim to any vis gifted to the Council of Amicii as a whole. In all other situations, undisputed and unclaimed vis belongs to the finder or finders.

This covenant lays claim to all books obtained by members of the council while acting at the behest of the council, and all books scribed by members of the council where payment was received for this scribing from the covenant's resources. This covenant also lays claim to any texts gifted to the Council of Amicii as a whole.

This council lays claim to all magical items obtained by members of the council while acting at the behest of the council; and all magical items made by members of the council where payment was received for this manufacture from the covenant's resources. This covenant also lays claim to any magical items gifted to the Council of Amicii as a whole.

This council lays claim to all monies generated using the resources of the covenant. This council also lays claim to all monies obtained by members of the council while acting at the behest of the council. This covenant also lays claim to any monies gifted to the Council of Amicii as a whole.

This council lays claim to the buildings, defenses, chattels, and inhabitants of the covenant. This council also lays claim to any such buildings, defenses, chattels, and inhabitants gifted to the Council of Amicii as a whole.

Surplus resources of the covenant will be determined at the Winter meeting of the Council of Amicii. Resources necessary for the continued existence of the covenant and the protection of its members' rights are accounted for first; this includes payment of incentives for seasons of work performed on behalf of the covenant, and a stipend of vis for the casting of the Aegis of the Hearth and any other magics accepted by the council for the protection of the covenant. Contributions to all debts owed to the covenant are decided by the Disceptator, and set aside. The remaining resources are deemed surplus, and shares of the surplus will be allocated to the Amicii and Probatii of the covenant.

Rights of the Members

Each and every member of this covenant, both Amicii and Probati, and Protected Guests shall be entitled to the basic rights of the covenant; to wit, full and unrestricted access to the protection and support of the covenant within the boundaries of the covenant by all the rights and benefits accorded by the Code of Hermes, the benefit of a sanctum which shall remain inviolate and the supply of materials thereof, access to the library of the covenant, and victuals appropriate to the status of a magus. These basic rights shall not be abridged except by expulsion from the Council of Amicii.

In furtherance and additional to the basic rights, a Amicus of the covenant shall be entitled to the full rights of the covenant; to wit, the right to presence and a vote in the Council of Amicii, which he shall exercise dutifully with due prudence. Further, full and unrestricted access to the services and skills of the servants and covenfolk. Further, an equal right to all surplus provision and store necessary to conduct his studies, or the travel demanded by those studies; such rights to include (but be not limited to) vis, monies, and diverse magical and mundane resources claimed by the covenant. Where a conflict is evident between members of the council over the allotment of surplus resource, distribution is drawn by ballot; excepting that priority claims that have been advanced and agreed by the Disceptator are taken into consideration prior to the ballot. These rights shall not be abridged except by decision of the council under conditions of grave concern.

In furtherance and additional to the basic rights of a member of this covenant, a Probatio of the covenant is entitled the probational rights of the covenant; to wit, a fractional share of those rights and duties offered to a Amicus of the covenant, such share being equal to one half that offered to Amicii. The services and skills of the servants and covenfolk may not be halved, but the needs of a Amicus of the covenant take precedence over the needs of a Probatio. Further, a Probatio of the covenant has the right to be considered for elevation to Amicus of this covenant after satisfying a total of seven full seasons in service to the covenant. These rights shall not be abridged except by decision of the council under conditions of grave concern.

Responsibilities of the Members

Members of this covenant are obligated to obey the Oath of Hermes and the Peripheral Code, as demanded by the Oath of Covenant; failure on this account will not be tolerated by the Council of Amicii, and the covenant reserves the right to censure those members who are convicted in just Tribunal of an offense against the Order of Hermes.

The responsibility of the members of this covenant towards its lasting success is dependent on service to the covenant. The Council of Amicii will declare the duties that need to be performed at the regular meetings of the covenant. Such duties include (but are not limited to) the safeguarding and harvesting of the covenant's claimed vis sources, the safeguarding and harvesting of the covenant's income, the wellbeing and discipline of the covenant's employees, the maintenance of the covenant's resources, the increase of the covenant's resources, and the maintenance of good relations with the covenant's allies.

Probatii must labour in service of the covenant for a total of seven full seasons commencing immediately after being accepted by the covenant. At the discretion of the Council of Amicii, this period of service may be interrupted. The Council of Amicii will assign duties to Probatii.

Amicii also have a duty to labour in service to the covenant. The first full season after elevation to Amicus is the Amicus' own, thereafter service falls into a decreasing cycle: three of the next four seasons are given in service to the covenant, then two of the next four seasons and finally one out of the next four seasons. Therefore, in the three years after elevation, an Amicus will give a total of six seasons of service.

The Council of Amicii may in exceptional circumstances decree additional service is required of its members. Although the services performed will vary according to need, all Amicii must give the required seasons in service to the covenant. This requirement will be determined by a unanimous decision of the Council of Amicii.

Such assigned duties attract no recompense or advantage to the member who discharges them, but cannot be refused without reasonable extenuation.

An Amicus may offer up additional service to the covenant in return for remuneration. Typically, this remuneration will be an additional one third share of the covenants yearly surplus. The disceptator may increase the remuneration to increase the attractiveness of a particular urgent task, for the Council of Amicii is not empowered to force a member to accept one of these duties unless failure to perform it would be in breach of this covenant, in which case the threat of censure may be employed. All payments will be made in the Spring meeting of the Council. If there is more than one claimant for the service, and each claimant refuses to share the duty, then the disceptator will assign the duty by ballot. If there is insufficient vis to meet the demands of the council, the disceptator may withhold payment for one or more years. Covenant work may be declared such retroactively.

Censure of the Members

If a member should contravene the decisions of the council, by vote or by charter, then the member may be censured or expelled by a vote of the Council of Amicii. Censure requires the passing of a motion at a meeting of the Council of Amicii. The censure of an Amicus revokes the rights of that status, returning him to the status of Probatio; whereupon he assumes all the duties and rights of that status.

Previous censure must not prejudice the application of a Probatio to the position of Amicus of the covenant.

The censure of a Probatio shall abridge the rights of the member to remain a Probatio of the covenant, and shall confer upon him instead the status of Protected Guest. The status of a Protected Guest may be withdrawn at any time by a vote of the Council of Amicii without need for censure.

Expulsion is enacted by a unanimous vote of the remaining Council of Amicii. Expulsion is the only means through which a member of the covenant shall lose his basic rights; and requires that the former member ceases to draw upon those basic rights subsequent to the first full moon after expulsion was enacted. Should a magus be cast out from the Order, it is the duty and obligation of this covenant that he shall also and without delay be expelled from this covenant.

Oath of covenant

I pledge my lifelong support and loyalty to the Covenant of Angulas, and declare that the trials and fortunes of this covenant are now my own. Just as I am pledged to the Oath of Hermes, so do I pledge the covenant to the Order of Hermes and the authority of the Tribunal of Stonehenge. I swear to uphold and protect this covenant regardless of the personal price. Over all the years of my life and throughout my studies and travels, I will neither betray the covenant nor give aid to its enemies. In times of need, I will aid the covenant in whatever way I am able, and I will devote myself to its service if the need is clear. I will abide by the decisions of the ruling council of this covenant, and I will treat these decisions as if they were my own. I will treat my fellows with respect and fairness, and I will not attempt to harm them in any way. Their blood is my blood. Where the covenant stands, there do I stand; how the covenant grows, so do I grow; should the covenant fall, then do I fall. This I so swear, upon the honor of my house and its Founder.
