There's not much money to be made on Mars, but there's plenty to be made getting people there. The population of Mars is still small — mostly scientists, entrepreneurs... and a handful of very wealthy tourists. And this population is growing every week.

Hauling Astronauts (or Hauling A', for short) is a game that pits two space transport companies against each other as they try to make the most money transporting astronauts to Mars.

With dice representing transport loads of astronauts, players place and maneuver them through the waiting area and onto their transport ships. Maximize profits by matching ships to customers, or thwart your opponent by cramming his ship with the wrong count.
