V. COMBAT

[5.0] Character Generation Summary (see Table 5.0).

[5.4] A character's Perception value begins at 8.

Racial modifiers may apply.

[8.1.1] Revised Social Status Table (see Table 8.1.1).

The revised Social Status Table would prevent odd combinations of race and heritage.

[8.2.1] Revised Order of Birth Table with money and experience multipliers (see Table 8.2.1).

The revised Order of Birth Table works in conjunction with the Social Status Table. The Money Multiplier column replaces the original table in 8.1 in order to match the new Tables. The Experience Multiplier column reflects what life experience a character's heritage has brought them.

[8.9] Noble Titles Table (see Table 8.9).

Using this revised Social Status Table would prevent odd combinations of race and heritage.

[9.1] Combat Equation Summary (see Table 9.1)

[9.2] Combat Clarifications.

[9.2.1] Initiative Value - who goes first?

School of thought #1: Just what the book says, all Engaged figures go before Non-engaged figures.

A figure who is Engaged is defined as one who is adjacent (hex) to a hostile figure on the display. Thus most of the time spell casters and ranged weapon users are considered Non-engaged. Strictly speaking, the pikeman would have Engaged initiative in attacking an opponent who is two hexes away, the opponent would have Non-engaged initiative.

School of thought #2: Simpler initiative, highest IV goes first then you just go down the list.

A figure who is engaged is defined as one who is actively participating in combat. Thus spell casters and ranged weapon users are considered engaged. Initiative is calculated for all Non-engaged and Engaged figures and then actions are resolved in order of highest initiative. This way a Non-engaged figure with a high IV get a chance to help and save the day before the Engaged figures get chopped down.

School of thought #3: Overall IV goes first.

The highest IV character acts first. If he/she/it is Engaged, then that entire engagement is done first. Then the next highest IV goes (if they have not already acted) and so on. This way a Non-engaged character could have a chance to act before an engagement and help out a buddy. Using this scenario, Ranged and Magical attacks would fall under the Engaged category.

[9.2.2] Other actions:

#1 What about line of sight... can you shoot an arrow directly between two occupied hexes?

The modifier for making a ranged attack through a sheltered hex is -20%. If one misses a roll bad enough, say 100, then the gm could rule that one of the figures you were trying to shoot in between got shot instead.

#2 When do you roll for stun recovery?

If your character has not already acted during the pulse in which he/she got stunned, he/she is allowed to roll to become unstunned and then can roll at the end of each 5 second pulse until unstunned. Remember that a figure who becomes Stunned may drop anything it is holding as per 17.3.

#3 How are multiple attacks resolved (in what order) due to high agility (see 15.3) or attacking with two weapons (one in each hand)?

It may be a gm call. But for simplicity's sake both attacks are resolved at the same time based on IV. Note that if attacking with a different weapon in each hand, then the second weapon may actually strike after the opponent has acted since the IV for the second weapon may be less than the first one.

#4 Can a character still fire his bow onto another character (not the one attacking him) when engaged in the current pulse?

Yes. However, there should be a negative modifier for getting swatted with a sword or other weapon while trying to fire a bow.

#5 If a figure is Stunned, or has any rear hexes towards his opponent, the opponent automatically receives the Initiative.

[18.4.1] Damage from Spells - Clarification of Rule 18.4.

A) The 4 types of damage incurred as a result of a magical attack are:

Type #1:

Damage as a result of change in the physical environment. Ex: Like "windstorm, falling rocks", etc. It is absorbed by armor. Ex: Windstorm Spell (S-1, Air Magics).

Type #2:

Damage as a result of pure magical energy. It is not absorbed by armor (unless the armor has extra magical protection). Ex: Bolt of Energy (S-2, Ensorc. & Enchant.), Spell of Molecular Disruption (S-4, Sorceries of the Mind), etc.

Type #3:

Damage as a result of physical matter or entity shaped or created out of mana. It is absorbed by armor. Ex: Spell of Ice Projectiles, Earth Hammer Spell, Spell of Diamond Javelins, Meteor Spell, Phantasm Spell, etc.

Type #4:

Damage as a result of a breath weapon. Ex: Breath weapon of a dragon, Spell of Dragon Flames (S-10, Fire Magics, at the discretion of the gm):

School of thought #1:

By the book. The DQ rule book mentions in 2 places that that kind of weapon damage is never absorbed by armor. The first time is in rule 18.4. The second time is in section 75.DRAGONS in paragraph 21 of DQ 2nd Ed. If the armor is magical then the gm could rule that its magical boon absorbs breath weapon damage, gm's discretion.

School of thought #2:

Damage from breath weapons is absorbed by armor. Many people use this rule and it makes sense since an almost naked person would suffer more damage than a fully clothed one with leather armor for example. Some GMs have house rules specifying which type of armor protects most or least.

B) The 2 kinds of armor pertinent to damage from spells:

Type #1: Ordinary armor like chainmail of protection=6 and armor of extraordinary quality like the same chainmail but of protection=7. Those do not absorb damage from pure magical energy (Type 2).

Type #2: Armor enhanced by magic like a chainmail +2, the +2 being derived from magic permanently invested in this item. And armor protection magically enhanced with a spell like the Spell of Enchanting Armor (S-9, Ensorcelments and Enchantments). The amount of pure magical energy (Type 2) damage absorbed is only the amount of the magical protection boon, like the chainmail +2 would absorb only 2 points of damage from a pure magical energy (Type 2) attack.

C) Other damage from spells issues:

Take your pick among the following three:

School of thought #1:

Damage from a magical attack and breath weapons carry over (or roll-over) into Endurance when Fatigue is depleted.

School of thought #2:

Damage from a magical attack and breath weapons are deducted from Endurance only after Fatigue has reached 0 (just like the rules for standard weapons combat).

School of thought #3:

Damage from a magical attack are treated as in #2 but have house rules for when a huge amount of damage is caused. Each GM use a different house rule for this one.

[18.6] (Optional Rule) A figure can increase his Defense by achieving Ranks with the Weapon Defense Skill.

The Weapon Defense Skill reflects a character's further mastery of a given weapon, utilizing it to better defend himself / herself.

Increase in Defense is 1% per Rank achieved with the Weapon Defense Skill. The maximum achievable Rank cannot exceed the Combat Rank possible with a given weapon. For example, Bigfrown, the hardy Dwarf, has Rank 6 with the use of a battle axe and thus cannot achieve more than Rank 6 in Weapon Defense Skill with the battle axe until he advances Rank in his Combat Skill first. Also, since the maximum achievable Combat Rank with the battle axe is 7, then the maximum achievable Weapon Defense Skill Rank with the battle axe is also 7. The necessary experience points expenditure is applicable for every Rank and for every weapon for which the Weapon Defense Skill is acquired. Ranks in the Weapon Defense Skill can be achieved with any Swords (except the Main-Gauche which is already expressly designed to defend one's self), any Hafted Weapons, any Pole Weapons, and any Entangling Weapons. The Weapon Defense Skill is not applicable when a weapon is used in Closed or Ranged combat. Experience points, time, and money for an instructor must be spent in order to increase Rank with the Weapon Defense Skill (see 87.3).

[19.1] Stun recovery – clarifications.

A figure may recover from becoming Stunned if it rolls under 2 x Willpower plus its current fatigue. A figure may roll for stun recovery in the same pulse it became Stunned as long as it has not had any action in that pulse. Otherwise stun recovery rolls are made as the last action in a pulse.

VI. MAGIC

105. THE COLLEGE OF WHITE MAGICS – John M. Kahane variation with Todd Coy and Perry Cooper.

The College of White Magics is one that deals with the Powers of Light, and gives reverence to them, much as the College of Black Magics deals with the Powers of Darkness. The talents, spells, and rituals of the College of White Magics comes, in some instances, directly from the Light-aligned spirits and Deities. To become a member of the College of White Magics, an Adept must align himself with the Powers of Light, most often by following a Deity. By following his Deity's teachings, and by following the causes of the Powers of Light, the Adept gains the abilities to wield the various talents, spells, and rituals of this College.

Unlike Adepts of the College of Black Magics, members of the College of White Magics do not have to swear any type of pacts with the Powers of Light. Worshipping and believing in one of the Deities is enough in this case to allow the Adept access to all knowledge, both General and Special, of this College of magic.

One special bonus is conferred upon the Adept by his deity once the character achieves 10 General Knowledge spells at Rank 6 or greater. The Adept receives a penny-shaped, elliptical pale mark on the lower right half of his right palm. Once per day, the Adept may activate this power symbol to send forth a blinding light for a period of 10 seconds. This is treated as a Flash of Light Spell (College of Illusions, G-1, pg. 42) of Rank 7. It will blind opponents, vanquish undead creatures that cannot stand the sunlight, and turn away attempts made with an Evil Eye Spell.

[105.1] Adepts of the College of White Magics must practice their arts within the boundaries of what their deity deems appropriate. This particular element of the College of White Magics is a somewhat difficult concept to deal with for the GamesMaster. It is important to remember that each deity in the pantheon has his/her/its own personality and rewards certain types of behaviour while punishing (and sometimes ignoring) behaviours that he/she/it disapproves of.

The gods and goddesses are fickle to some extent, and this element of the College of White Magics must be handled by each GM as he sees fit.

[105.2] The following numbers are added to the Base Chance of performing any talent, spell or ritual of the College of White Magics.

The Adept has a Blessed Holy Symbol	+5
The Adept is favoured	+10
For each point of Willpower above 15	+1
It is a High Holiday of the Powers of Light	+20
It is a High Holiday of the Powers of Darkness	-10
The Adept loses favour with his Deity	-30

All of the modifiers listed here are cumulative.

[105.3] Talents

1. Neutralize Cold Iron (T-1)

Adepts of this College are able to be in physical contact with cold iron while casting spells and rituals; however, the adept is at -20% to all cast chances. For every Rank the Adept has with this talent, reduce the penalty by -1. Once the Adept achieves Rank 20 with this talent, he will no longer be affected by cold iron when casting spells. In addition, the negative modifiers for silver and gold weapons and items are also reduced by -1 per Rank with this talent. The Experience Multiple for this talent is 230.

2. Witchesight (T-2)

The Adept has a Base Chance equal to his Perception (+5 per Rank) of seeing objects or entities which have been rendered invisible by whatever means or are normally invisible by nature. In the event that the creature or being rendered invisible is Darkness-aligned, the character increases the chance of detecting the creature by +15%. The Experience Multiple for this talent is 180.

3. Detect Aura (T-3)

This talent functions as per T-1 of the College of Naming Incantations. Adepts of this College are especially adept at deciphering the good and or evil aspects of an entity or being's aura. The Experience Multiple for this talent is 85.

[105.4] General Knowledge Spells

However all spells whether general or special knowledge will be considered special knowledge of this college.

[106.7] Special Knowledge Rituals

1. Ritual of Consecration (R-1)

This ritual is used to consecrate buildings (such as chapels) and cemeteries. Magic use of other than members of the College of White Magic's for the Deity it was created by will be at minus 10 per 2 Ranks of the casting Adept. This spell will effect a radius equal to 50 feet per rank. The effects of this ritual are permanent; however the Adept loses an endurance (recoverable by the expenditure of experience) every time the ritual is cast. The Base Chance of this ritual is equal to the Adepts Magical Aptitude and the Experience Multiple is 300.

2. Ritual of Spiritual Communion (R-2)

The adept, through ritual prayer to their deity may ask one question plus one question per rank per month. The Base Chance of this ritual is equal to the adept's willpower. The Experience Multiple is 350.

3. Ritual of Summoning Entities of Light (R-3)

The Adept may summon an Entity of The Powers of Light. Entities of The Powers of Light may only be summoned during the day or on a night when the moon is between three-quarters and full and is not occluded by clouds, fog, and so on. The entity(s) that appears is up to the Deity (GM) and will usually be able to provide some assistance to the Adept. The Base Chance is 20% and the Experience Multiple is 500.

4. Ritual of Resurrection (R-4)

This ritual allows the Adept to raise the dead. Provided that the entity has not been dead for 1 day (+1 day per rank). The body will be resurrected in the condition it died in except that it will have 3 endurance. The newly raised person must rest in bed for a number of days equal to the number of days that they were dead. This ritual takes 1 hour to perform. The Base Chance is the Willpower of the Adept. The Experience Multiple is 1000.

107. THE COLLEGE OF WHITE MAGICS – Martin Dick variation.

The College of White Magics is the magical opponent of the College of Black Magics. It uses the powers of magic to counter the Powers of Darkness and to spread the power of Light. They are a very old group whose magic is primarily aimed towards defensive and healing powers, although it does have some offensive magic. The College is divided into three differing levels of commitment:

The Initiation: The initial level of training in the College, Initiation is achieved when the adept is granted his knowledge by the Powers of Light. Once initiated, the adept gains access to the Talents, General Knowledge Spells, and General Knowledge Rituals of The College of White Magics at Rank 0. No special restrictions are placed on the adept, except that he may not achieve greater than Rank 15 in any of his knowledge. However, all White Mages are champions of the Powers of Light, and are expected to act in a manner consistent with this responsibility (the GM may require the adept to have the Devotee skill).

The Compact: In order to learn the Special Knowledge spells of the College of White Magics, the adept must first make a Compact with the Powers of Light. In this the adept dedicates his life to the work of the Light and places it as his first loyalty (equivalent to attaining Devotee Rank 3). As a sign of this dedication, the adept is marked with a small white star mark on the palm of his right hand, and thenceforth must never attack without provocation (i.e. unless he is attacked himself, or witnesses actions contrary to the dictates of the Light). Adepts who have made the Compact can attain up to Rank 20 in all talents, General Knowledge spells, and General Knowledge rituals, and up to Rank 15 in all Special Knowledge spells (but not rituals). In addition to this, the Powers of Light will grant the adept a familiar. Such familiars generally take the form of some small creature (often a house cat), and in most respects will be like the creature in question. However, it will always be unusually intelligent and possess the ability to communicate on a basic level with its owner. Familiars always know where their owner is to be found. The presence of his familiar within 10 feet adds 5% to the adept's Cast Chances and allows him to "borrow" the creature's Fatigue for use in spell casting, at double the normal cost (i.e. 2 Fatigue for General Knowledge spells, and 4 Fatigue for Special Knowledge spells). If his familiar dies, the adept will have a penalty of -5% to all Cast Chances until a new one is obtained. A new familiar can only be gained once every 5 years, and only if the old familiar is dead.

The Sealing: The third level of commitment in the College of White Magics is when the adept is sealed to the Powers of Light. This allows the adept access to the Special Knowledge rituals of the College and also permits him to attain up to Rank 20 with all talents, spells and rituals. Adepts who have been sealed to the Powers of Light gain +30 to their Magic Resistance against the effects of the magics of the Dark (which includes all Dark-Aligned Colleges as well as magic cast by creatures such as demons, undead, and so on). However, Sealed adepts cannot be raised from the dead in any way, as upon their death they will be granted their reward by the Powers of Light and thus lose all contact with the material world. This also means that if a Sealed adept of the College of White Magics is killed by an undead creature, he will not become undead in turn.

Once an adept has made the Compact or undergone the Sealing, their bonds to the Powers of Light can never be totally renounced. Upon renouncing either, the adept immediately loses all abilities of the College. If he should join another College at a later stage, he will never be able to go above Rank 15 with any of the knowledge he gains. The exception to this general rule is the College of Black Magics, which longs for the subversion and corruption of their bitter enemies. An adept of the College of White Magics may, if he so desires, switch to the College of Black Magics and obtain a position equal in stature to the one he currently holds. Any experience spent on the College of White Magics can be transferred to the College of Black Magics, and the adept will also be equivalent in the commitment that he has made to the College (i.e. the First Pact for the Initiation, the Lesser Pact for the Compact, and the Greater Pact for the Sealing). Subverted witches will be instantly recognizable to their former colleagues in the College of White Magics. Any character wishing to make the reverse movement (from the College of Black Magics to the College of White Magics) will find it to be much more difficult, and must give up all magical knowledge he has gained and begin his studies anew.

I. Restrictions

Adepts of the College of White Magics may only practice those talents, spells and rituals permitted them by the pact they have made. They may never practice any of the arts of the College until they have made the appropriate pact. The Initiation must be done before the Compact is made, and the Compact made before the Sealing is undergone.

II. Modifications

The Base Chance of performing any talent, spell or ritual of this College is modified by the addition of the following numbers:

It is daylight	+5
It is nighttime	-5
It is a High Holiday of the powers of Light	+20
It is a High Holiday of the powers of Darkness	-10

The GM must determine the High Holidays of the powers of Light and Darkness according to the nature of those powers in his own world.

III. Talents

WhT-1. Resist Fear

Adepts of this College are more or less immune to the effects of normal fear. They also gain a bonus of 10% (+5/Rank) to their resistance against magical fear. The Experience Multiple for this talent is 200.

WhT-2. Truth Sense

The adept has a Base Chance equal to his Perception (+5/Rank) of detecting any falsehood uttered in his presence. Only outright lies are detected, so it is possible for a person to evade this ability to some extent by phrasing their words carefully. For instance, if a character let someone die through inaction, he could say "I did not kill him" without lying. However, if he said "I did not contribute to his death," this would be a lie and could be detected using this ability. The Experience Multiple for this talent is 300.

WhT-3. Special Alchemy

Adepts of this College gain certain knowledge of alchemy following their initiation, the benefits of which are as follows:

A. The ability to distill poisons like an Alchemist of rank equal to one-half their Rank with this ability. The Experience Multiple is 150.

B. The ability to distill a potion of toad sweat that will remove blemishes, warts, corns, and pimples, at the rate of 1 disfigurement (+1/Rank) per dose. The Base Chance of effectively preparing this potion is 60% (+3/Rank), and its constituent materials cost 50 silver pennies. Its Experience Multiple is 100.

C. The ability to manufacture these amulets:

1. Amulet of Alectorius: This amulet will increase the average value of treasure found by the wearer and his companions by 5%. Cost: 600 silver pennies.

2. Amulet of Amethyst: This amulet wards bad dreams and assists the wearer in achieving a restful sleep. Increase the wearer's Fatigue recovery during sleep periods by 2. Cost: 700 silver pennies.

3. Amulet of Aquilaeus: The wearer subtracts 10 from all rolls on the Fright Table. Cost: 300 silver pennies.

4. Amulet of Beryl: Increase the wearer's ability to detect traps and ambushes by 5. Cost: 500 silver pennies.

5. Amulet of Betony: Reduces the wearer's chance of becoming infected by 5. Cost: 650 silver pennies.

6. Amulet of Bloodstone: Prevents miscarriages and reduces the wearer's chance of becoming infected by 10. Cost: 1000 silver pennies.

7. Amulet of Carbuncle: Decreases damage sustained by the wearer from poison by 2 points per Round or day (as applicable). Cost: 1200 silver pennies.

8. Amulet of Chalcedony: No undead will willingly come within 10 feet of the amulet wearer under most circumstances. Cost: 300 silver pennies.

9. Amulet of Elder Flowers: Makes the wearer proof against the Evil Eye spell. Cost: 50 silver pennies.

10. Amulet of Hypercium: Increases the wearer's Magic Resistance by 10 against any magical act performed by a demon. Cost: 100 silver pennies.

11. Amulet of Iron: No demon will willingly come within 10 feet of the amulet wearer under most circumstances. Cost: 250 silver pennies.

12. Amulet of Jade: No undead will willingly come within 30 feet of the amulet wearer under most circumstances. Cost: 500 silver pennies.

13. Amulet of Jet: No demon will willingly come within 50 feet of the amulet wearer under most circumstances. Cost: 600 silver pennies.

14. Amulet of Luck: Increases the wearer's Magic Resistance by 3 and Defense by 2. Cost: 300 silver pennies.

15. Amulet of Protection: Increases the wearer's Magic Resistance by 9 and Defense by 8. Cost: 1500 silver pennies.

The "cost" of each amulet is the cost of materials required to manufacture it. Each amulet requires 3 days to manufacture once the necessary materials have been gathered or purchased.

The adept can increase any dimension by 1 foot per Rank. The spell may not be cast on top of other creatures. The wall or ring is only bright on one side and can be seen through from the caster's side. Any creature that attempts to pass through the bright side of the wall and fails to resist will be blinded for [D-6] Rounds. V. General Knowledge Rituals

WhQ-1. Create Crystal of Vision

This ritual enables the adept to create a magical crystal that will grant him visions (usually of a precognitive nature) whenever he concentrates closely upon it. At Rank 5 and above, the crystal may also be used to spy into a particular area and see what is happening there. The area spied upon must be within 5 miles (+15/Rank) of the adept. The Base Chance of successfully creating the crystal using this ritual is 75% (+1/Rank). The larger the piece of crystal used, the clearer the image within it will ultimately be. The ritual also requires that the adept burn one ounce of ambergris, at a cost of 1,000 silver pennies. The resulting crystal may be used once per day for a period of up to 10 minutes (+1/Rank). This ritual takes 5 hours to perform, and has an Experience Multiple of 200.

WhQ-2. Soul Candle

This ritual enables the adept to manufacture a soul candle, by mixing a small amount of blood (from the person the candle is for) with beeswax and forming a candle from the resulting mixture. The person for whom the candle is intended must be present during the ritual. If a soul candle is lit when the person for whom it is made goes for a journey, it will remain alight and mirror the well-being of the traveller until he returns. The candle will burn brightly while all goes well, but will flicker and start to die out if the traveller is endangered, and will go out completely if he dies. The candle only reflects the welfare of the traveller, and not vice-versa. Thus, if the candle is put out while the traveller is away, this will not kill the person concerned. The adept who made the candle may use it to see the current situation of the traveller, by inhaling the fumes of the candle and meditating for one hour. The chance of obtaining such a vision is equal to the adept's Perception (+3/Rank). This ability can be used a number of times equal to the adept's Rank. The Base Chance of successfully creating a soul candle by the use of this ritual is 40% (+3/Rank). Its manufacture involves the use of exotic substances that will cost the adept (1000 - 25/Rank) S.P. to purchase. The Experience Multiple for this ritual is 200.

This also applies to creatures that enter the area of effect after it has been cast. Additionally, anyone directing a blow towards the adept while the spell is in effect must immediately make another resistance to avoid being affected by the magic. Creatures who are aligned with the Powers of Darkness are more vulnerable to this spell, and will sustain [D+2] points of damage per Round in addition to being blinded. Even creatures that successfully resist this spell will have their range of vision reduced to 10 feet, and will also suffer a penalty of 20% to their Strike Chances. Creatures that do resist must make a fresh resistance at the beginning of each Round to avoid sustaining damage as outlined above, but will not be blinded. This spell does not affect the caster, but will affect his companions (if any).

VII. Special Knowledge Rituals

WhR-1. Forbidding

This ritual enables the adept to place a barrier around a particular area to prevent an entity (or entities) from either entering or leaving. The adept must prepare a pentacle and conduct this ritual for a number of hours equal to the Magical Aptitude of the forbidden entity, divided by 2 (rounded down). In the case of multiple entities, the time required is calculated using the entity with the highest Magical Aptitude. When an area has been forbidden, the affected entities will be unable to leave or enter the area by any means, unless they make a successful passive resistance upon first encountering the barrier (counterspells will be of no assistance for this purpose).

The ritual will affect a maximum of 1 entity (+1 for every 3 Ranks, rounded down). The adept must know of and specify each entity to be affected. True Names are not needed. The borders of the area to be affected must be clearly defined, and may not exceed 1 square mile (+1/Rank) in size. Only one forbidding may be in existence in any given area. In order to effect the ritual, the adept must commit some of his own person energy to the forbidding. Casting the ritual will permanently drain him of a number of Fatigue points equal to the Magical Aptitude of the forbidden entity, divided by 10 (rounded down). In the case of multiple entities, the Fatigue loss is calculated using the entity with the highest Magical Aptitude. The Fatigue loss only occurs if the ritual is successful. The effects of the Forbidding ritual last for a number of months equal to the adept's Rank. The adept may automatically renew the forbidding by returning to the site of the original ritual and repeating the ritual. Permanent Fatigue loss does not occur when the ritual is merely being renewed. The Forbidding ritual is powerful and the GM should adjudicate its effects as the situation demands. It has a Base Chance of 15% (+4/Rank), and an Experience Multiple of 400.

WhR-2. Spirit Projection

This ritual enables the adept to free his spirit from his corporeal self. The ritual takes 12 hours to perform, and if it is successful the adept's spirit will be liberated from his body at the end of this time. The freed spirit appears as an intangible and wraithlike form, bound to the adept's body by a thin astral tie. It may move at speeds of up to 100 miles per hour (+10 miles an hour per Rank), and is immune to all normal dangers. It may pass through any defenses and enter any areas save those which have been consecrated to the Powers of Darkness. The spirit is vulnerable to both magic and the life draining powers of some undead (such as wraiths). The adept may not cast magic when in spirit form, except when fighting other immaterial creatures. While the adept is in spirit form, his physical form will fall into a death-like trance. The adept must return to it before a number of hours equal to his Willpower (+1/Rank) have passed. If he is unable to do so, his body dies. The GM may also choose to detail other dangers in relation to this spell. Weird creatures are known to exist on the plane of existence where the adept's freed spirit travels, and not all of these will be friendly. The Base Chance for this ritual is 15% (+5/Rank). It has an Experience Multiple of 550.

WhR-3. Summon Spirit of Light

This ritual enables the adept to petition for direct aid from the Powers of Light. If the ritual is successful, a major servant of the Light will come in response to the adept's summons. The servant can be of any form determined by the GM as suitable for his own campaign. In a campaign with a Medieval European flavor, such a servant would be an angel. The servant will generally not take a direct hand in any affairs, as the Powers of Light prefer to allow man free will and are therefore reluctant to interfere. The servant will, however, provide information, healing and protective measures to the adept in the amount it deems necessary. The servant cannot be compelled in any way except by the persuasion of the adept. If the servant does decide to intervene directly, it will be at least equivalent to a Demonic King (as described in the College of Greater Summoning). The ritual's Base Chance will vary, depending on the situation the adept finds himself in. The more desperate his plight, the higher the Base Chance will be. The ritual has an Experience Multiple of 500.

WhR-4. True Speech

This ritual takes 1 hour to complete, and affects a number of beings equal to the adept's Rank. Whenever they speak, affected creatures must make true declarative statements. If they temporize, misstate themselves, or exaggerate, their vocal apparatus will become paralyzed, making it difficult to talk properly. If a being lies while under the effect of this ritual, its tongue will cleave to the roof of its mouth and it will become mute for [D+1] days. All subjects to be affected by the ritual must be present as it is performed. Its effects may be resisted both actively and passively, and last for 10 minutes (+5/Rank). The ritual has a Base Chance of 40% (+3/Rank), and an Experience Multiple of 350.

108. THE COLLEGE OF WHITE MAGICS (also known as Light Magics) – unknown contributor variation #1.

The College of White Magics has 4 new talents, 30 new spells, 8 new rituals.

[I am aware of the sentence in section 25 (Definition of Magical Terms) under the heading of “Consecrated Ground”, describing the lack of a Light College “because it is assumed that they (the Powers of Light) are non-magical in nature and are, in effect, opposed to magic.” Well, if they are opposed to magic, their worshippers would be getting their asses kicked all over the world by pagans (religions in which “magic is part of the rituals”). I figure they need something to fight off the pagan hoards, so here it is.]

This College allies itself with the Powers of Light, and is diametrically opposed to Black Magicians and Adepts of the College of Greater Summoning. Adepts, if they leave this college, may only join the College of Black Magics or Greater Summonings.

The Base Chance of performing any talent, spell or ritual of this College is modified by the addition of the following numbers:

It is daylight	+10
It is nighttime	-10
It is a High Holiday of the Powers of Light	+20
It is a High Holiday of the Powers of Darkness	-10
Adept is standing on consecrated ground	+10

Targets of Light College spells standing on consecrated ground do not receive the customary +50 to their Magic Resistance.

(see also the Special Knowledge Rituals for more bonuses)

GENERAL KNOWLEDGE RITUALS

Ritual of Creating the Bloom of Life (Q - 1, General Knowledge Ritual)

This ritual creates a mystical tie between an object and a target person. When the person is living and healthy, the object will be untarnished and made of quality material. If the target person becomes ill, or suffers serious damage, the object will become tarnished and begin falling apart. Upon the target's death, the object "dies" (falls apart completely, break, wilts, etc.) The Rank represents the objects ability to display the subtleties of the target's condition (whether they are ill, ate bad food, poisoned, suffer a broken leg, etc.) The Adept that performed the Ritual rolls [(Rank * 8) + (MA * 2)] to receive an accurate reading. A successful reading will allow the Adept to add his Rank in this Ritual to any attempts to heal the target entity. The item must be ritually purified by the Adept to perform the Ritual, but requires no special materials. The Base Chance to perform this ritual is 35 (+5 per Rank), and the XP Mult is 150.

Ritual of Healing the Land (Q - 2, General Knowledge Ritual)

This ritual works the power of Light Magic into the essence of the Land, causing the area of effect to blossom with life. It acts to counter the following spells, so long as they are of a lesser Rank than this Ritual: Blight on Crops, Cause Disease, Pestilence on Livestock, and Curse Unborn Child; each of these spells will expire within the area of effect. In addition, these spells will not work in the area for the duration of the ritual's effect. Chances to Animate, Summon, Control, or Bind the Undead, Demons, Devils, etc. are decreased by (Rank of Ritual * 2). The area of effect is 1 acre + 1 per Rank; the Duration is 1 month +1 per Rank. The Base Chance of performing this Ritual is [Caster's WP + (3 * Rank)]. The Experience Multiple for this Ritual is 275.

Armor of Righteousness (S - 3)

At Rank 11, the armor will absorb an additional 1 pt of damage from ANY source; at Rank 20, it will absorb 2 pts. This armor is made entirely from light and will illuminate the surrounding area like a torch, at the Adept's discretion. Alternatively, existing armor may be enhanced by this spell.

Ritual of Summoning Creature of Light (Q - 3, General Knowledge Ritual)

This Ritual summons from the surrounding lands a creature that allies itself with the Powers of Light. If successful, the Adept rolls on the appropriate column of the random encounter table (Table 63.2), adding [5 + Rank] to the result (ignoring modifiers for surrounding danger level). The number of creatures that respond is ALWAYS one; ignore the "number appearing" listed. The summoned beast will have the maximum characteristics for an animal of its type in addition to intelligence, and will serve the caster as a partner and equal. The creature summoned must be "good"; this bars (most) dragons, undead, and other undesirables (see the College of Lesser Summonings for "Dark" creatures; note that any non-"Dark" creature can be called). If these undesirables are accidentally summoned, they respond to the ritual, but not as an ally (appearing with the appropriate number for the encounter). This ritual takes 1 hour to perform, and requires the burning of sacred incense (costing 1000 SP). The creature arrives in a number of minutes [(D - 2) * 10 - (Rank * 2)]. The Base Chance of performing this Ritual is 20 + 2 per Rank. The XP Mult is 450. Note that this ritual is different from the Lesser Summonings Spell of the same name.

Light of Judgment (S - 17)

Range: 25 ft + 25 per Rank
Duration: Imm
XP Mult: 550
Base: 10%
Resist: Passive only (for half damage), at -20
Effects: This spell releases the fury of the Powers of Light, manifesting in a beam of white light that erupts from the Adept's hands, shooting into and through any targets in a straight line, to be designated by the caster. Friendly targets caught within the beam are unaffected, and the beam passes harmlessly through them (unless the friend is a Black Mage, a Greater Summoner, has sold their soul, etc.). The beam causes [D + 1 (+ 2 per Rank)] damage. Demons (ONLY demons; not devils, imps, undead, etc.) suffer an additional +2 per Rank.

SPECIAL KNOWLEDGE RITUALS

Healer's Ring (R - 1, Special Knowledge Ritual)

This Ritual creates an area enfused with the Adept's powers of Healing, with a radius of 2 ft + 2 per Rank. Within the Ring, each friendly figure may heal ([D - 6] + 1 per 3 Ranks, or fraction thereof) points of damage per pulse, at the end of the turn. This cannot raise the dead, though it can bring back companions from unconsciousness. The Base Chance of performing this ritual is 20%; the XP Mult is 375.

Sign of Holiness (R - 2, Special Knowledge Ritual)

This Ritual allows the Adept to fashion a sign of Holiness, a physical link to the Powers of Light. This ritual requires the Adept to acquire an item specifically fashioned for this purpose by a Shaper. The item grants the Adept a +20 to all Rituals. There is no XP Mult for this ritual.

Soul Cleansing (R - 3, Special Knowledge Ritual)

This ritual cleanses the soul of the Adept, making it pure for a number of hours equal to his Rank with this ritual. During that time, the Adept receives a bonus of (+ Rank) to ALL spells, talents, and Rituals of this College. The ritual requires the burning of sacred incense, costing 100 sp. The ritual always succeeds, and has an XP Multiple of 200.

Commune (R - 4, Special Knowledge Ritual)

This ritual allows the Adept to summon an agent of the Powers of Light. The agent may take any form, but will always be ridiculously powerful (use maximum stats for a Devil, with an additional +6 to all stats except TMR, which receives a +4 bonus), and is capable of divining the future at 20% (although he will only very rarely reveal this knowledge to a mortal). The agent will answer some questions posed by the Adept and act according to the whims of the GM (as the ways of the Powers of Light are unknowable to the mere mortals). This Ritual has a Base Chance of 1%, with a XP Multiple of 500. The summoned Agent of Light will have the Major Curse spell at Rank 20, Geas at Rank 30, Remove Curse (Major) at Rank 20, and Remove Curse (Minor) at Rank 20, in addition to knowing all spells of the Light Magics college at Rank 15. Whether or not they have any skills is up to the GM. The entity will stay until the GM decides it wants to leave.

109. THE COLLEGE OF WHITE MAGICS (also known as Light Magics) – unknown contributor variation #2.

The college of light deals with the power of light over darkness.

Among the practitioners of this college it is known that without them and their light, nothing but darkness would exist. It is well known that darkness is weaker than light. Even a single candle can light a large room. These adepts get their power from light and use it to channel mana through themselves to do incredible things.

The Base Chance of performing any talent, spell, or ritual of the College of Light is modified by the addition of the following numbers:

It is full daylight +40

It is a day with an overcast +30

It is medium daylight (morn / evening) +20

The area is brightly lit +20

The area is dimly lit (torches / lanterns) -20

It is a moonlit night -20

It is a dark night -40

The area is totally dark -50

Talents

1. Ultravision

Similar to infravision, this allows the adept to see radiation in the ultraviolet spectrum.

Thus, he/she can see at night as a normal human can see at dusk because of the continual bombardment of ultraviolet radiation upon the earth. Note that this talent does not function well underground as there is no such radiation there. The higher the rank, the better the vision. The experience multiple for this talent is 100.

2. Detect Aura

This talent is identical in all ways to the talent of the same name of the College of Earth Magic (see 43.3, T-1, p.52).

3. Speak with Creatures of Light

This talent allows the adept to speak with all creatures of light. The range is 10 feet (+10 per rank). Communication is verbal in some cases but is normally a combination of telepathy, signs, and a few verbal symbols at its lowest ranks.

Creatures of light include eagles, dolphins, brownies, nagas, unicorns, and golden dragons.

VII. Monsters

66. COMMON LAND MAMMALS

[66.1] Apes and Prehumans

CHIMPANZEE

Natural Habitat: Woods, Forest (Rainforest)

Frequency: Uncommon

Number: 1-5 (40)

Description: Chimpanzees are smaller sized apes, usually no more than 3 feet tall. Males weigh about 100 pounds, females slightly smaller at about 70 pounds. They have brown fur, are quite social, and are excellent climbers. They usually forage for food in groups of 4-6, carrying their young with them as they go. Males "Patrol" the area surrounding the females. They walk and climb on all fours, but can stand up on their hind feet. Chimpanzees are omnivorous, but their diet consists mostly of fruit and plants. Occasionally, they will hunt and eat small antelope, snakes, or other woodland creatures.

Talents, Skills, and Magic: Chimpanzees have no special talents or skills, except their amazing ability to climb almost any surface. A trained Chimp would make an excellent ally for a thief or spy.

Chimpanzees are not tool-users, but will occasionally use small sticks or stones to crack open nuts or for other simple tasks.

Movement Rates: Running: 300; Climbing: 200

PS: 10-15 MD: 16-22 AG: 18-23 MA: None

EN: 8-12 FT: 16-20 WP: 8-12 PC: 17-22

PB: 8-10 TMR: 5/3 NA: Fur absorbs 2 DP

Weapons: Chimpanzees attack in Melee or Close Combat in the same manner as humans (bare hands). They can have Rank 1-3 with this attack and receive 1 attack per Pulse. In Close Combat, they can bite: Base Chance 25%, Damage -2.

Comments: Chimpanzees are curious, social, and generally friendly creatures. However, they will attack if their young are threatened. They are quite intelligent, and can be easily trained by a Beast Master who specializes in Apes (+10% chance for checks). An untrained young Chimpanzee will fetch about 400 Silver Pennies in most cities. Adults are worth about 3 times that amount.

MONKEY

Natural Habitat: Forest, Jungle, Plains

Frequency: Common Number: 1-3 (20)

Description: Monkeys are the smallest of the apes, ranging in size from 6 inches to as much as 2 feet in height and as much as 10 pounds. They have small round faces, gray or brown fur, and are generally playful and curious creatures. Monkeys are actually bipedal, although they will use their hands to move, climb, and run. They are also quite intelligent, and can be trained to perform many tasks and tricks for entertainment (or other) purposes. Monkeys are generally vegetarian, although they do eat small insects and rodents from time to time.

Talents, Skills, and Magic: Monkeys have no special skills or magical abilities. However, they are apt climbers, and can use their tails as a "fifth" hand, for climbing, holding, grabbing, etc.

Movement Rates: Running: 250; Climbing: 250

PS: 3-6 MD: 18-24 AG: 20-24 MA: None

EN: 4-8 FT: 12-16 WP: 10-12 PC: 17-22

PB: 5-10 TMR: 3/3 NA: Fur absorbs 1 DP

Weapons: Monkeys will only attack if they are completely cornered. Even when they are involved in combat, they will simply look for the soonest chance they have of escaping and fleeing. They can only attack in close combat with their bite, Base Chance of 55% and a -5 to damage.

Comments: Monkeys can be valuable as pets, and therefore an adult monkey captured will sell for as much as 200 Silver Pennies. A domesticated or trained monkey will sell for three times this amount.

[66.2] Felines

PUMA (Cougar, Mountain Lion)

Natural Habitat: Rough, Mountains

Frequency: Uncommon Number: 1-2 (1)

Description: Cougars are very sleek relatives of lions, who make their homes in mountains and rolling hills. They have golden brown fur, which darkens around their face and paws. Unlike lions, male cougars do not grow thicker fur around their head and neck. Males can grow as large as 6 feet long, and weigh over 200 pounds. Cougars have powerful jaws, and are more agile than their cousins. They are also more solitary. They can climb trees with little difficulty, and are rarely affected by difficult terrain. Additionally, they have an amazing stamina, and can travel for long periods with little rest or sleep.

Talents, Skills, and Magic: Cougars possess no skills or talents and are not magic users.

Movement Rates: Running: 450; Climbing: 200

Comments: Cougars are wary of humans, and will usually shy away from their presence. However, a hungry cougar (or one feeding its young) may stalk a party of humanoids until the chance to waylay one of them alone presents itself. Often, they will drop from the limbs of a tree onto prey below. They are also very protective of their young and lair. During the spring, there is 70% that a pair of cougars will have a litter of (D-6) +1 cubs. If captured alive, cubs will sell for 400-500 Silver Pennies. Adults will sell for twice this amount. Additionally, a cougar fur will sell for up to 200 Silver Pennies, depending on its condition.

[66.3] Great Land Mammals

ANTELOPE

Natural Habitat: Plains, Hills

Frequency: Common Number: 1-8 (35)

Description: Antelope are related to Deer and Cattle.

They have thin, agile legs, and long spiraled horns protruding from their heads. They vary in size, with males usually weighing about 300 pounds, and females about 220. They stand about 3 and ½ feet tall at the shoulder, but some rare breeds can be much larger. Antelope travel in herds, going wherever the food takes them. They are very fast, and can jump long distances (as much as fifty feet in one leap). Antelope have poor eyesight, but have an acute sense of smell. They are cud-chewers, preferring the long grass of the prairies over hay or other "farmed" flora.

This attack has a Base Chance of 20%, and the Damage is +10, not absorbed by non-metallic armor.
Comments: Walrus herds will generally be found lazily lounging in the sun near the waters where they feed. If a party comes to near the herd, bulls will not hesitate to challenge them. They are solitary, but do get together to mate about once every 10 years. Dragonets may be willing to help a party in exchange for some small treasure, for which Dragonets share an affinity with their cousins. However, they are not able to understand difficult or complex instructions unless one speaks their ancient tongue. As familiars or pets, a Dragonet can sell for as much as 4000 Silver Pennies. An egg will sell for about 1500 Silver Pennies.

69. CLIZARDS, SNAKES AND INSECTS

[69.1] Lizards and Kindred

BEHIR (Dragon Snake)

Natural Habitat: Rough, Plains, Woods

Frequency: Rare

Number: 1-2 (1)

Description: The Behir are large snake-like reptiles with a dozen legs on each side of their 20-foot long bodies. These legs allow them to move deceptively fast, and also enable them to climb steep surfaces at half their normal TMR. They can also fold their legs against their bodies and slither along on their bellies. They are semi-intelligent, and speak a limited language with one another. They are smart enough to know when to retreat from battle, but are quite hearty and generally unafraid of combat. Behir have large heads, similar in appearance to that of a dragon (hence the name). They have thickly plated scale-like hides, although their underbellies are softer (PROT 1 or 2). They range in color from brown to blue, depending on the climate and season. Behir mate once every year, and there is a 15% chance that a female Behir will have 1-2 young with her when encountered. Their domain will usually be patrolled vigorously within a range of about 100 square miles. They are mortal enemies to dragons, and will never knowingly enter the territory of a dragon. Behirs are 3-Hex Monsters.

Talents, Skills, and Magic: The bite of a Behir is venomous. Any successful damage (above a PC's armor protection rating) will result in the character being poisoned. The poison is paralytic in nature, although it does take effect slowly. Once a character has been bitten, they will lose 1 point of Agility, Strength, and Manual Dexterity per pulse until these characteristics have been reduced by [D10 +3] each. (Note: Characteristics cannot be reduced to less than 5). The poisoning will last for 25 – [Victim's Willpower] hours. The Behir have no other talents, skills, or magic.

PS: 35-40 MD: 12-14 AG: 16-20 MA: None
EN: 26-32 FT: 35-40 WP: 12-15 PC: 12-15
PB: 4-8 TMR: 8/4/2 NA: Scales absorb 6 DP

Movement Rates: Running: 400; Climbing: 200; Swimming: 100

Weapons: Bite has a Base Chance of 45% and damage of +2, and can be used in Melee or Close Combat (see poison above). A Behir will attempt to enter close, where it can use up to six claw attacks per pulse without penalty. Claws have a Base Chance of 35%, and do +1 Damage. (Note: A Behir can attack in Melee via its bite and in Close with claws in the same pulse with a –10% to each separate attack).

Comments: Although generally solitary carnivores, Behirs do raise their young until they are full grown (which takes about 2 years). After biting their prey, Behir will usually drag them back to their lair for feasting. They will usually be found making their homes in caves or among thickets. They feed on deer, elk, antelope, great cats, and (of course) man, eating once in about every 12 days. The poison of a Behir is highly valuable, trading in most cities for over 10 TSG/Pint. An adult will have over 2 pints worth to collect after it is slain, assuming an adventurer knows how to dress such a monster. The hides of an adult Behir will also sell, fetching over 300 GS in good condition. Since they swallow their victims whole, the lair of a Behir will also generally be littered with the once upon a time belongings of previous meals (metals and wood will generally go undigested).

KOMODO DRAGON (Sea Dragon)

Natural Habitat: Ocean, Waste, Rough

Frequency: Rare

Number: 1-4 (2)

Rare breeds can grow to twice this size (add 10 to Physical Strength and Endurance). They have long claws, used for disemboweling their prey, and sharp teeth. They are Carnivorous, and hunt deer, bush pigs, and smaller members of their own species. They have been known to attack humanoids, but will generally not attack a party of more than 3 if they are alone. These creatures are apt swimmers, and can even submerge for periods of up to 3 minutes if necessary to elude enemies such as tigers, pythons, and man. Komodos generally sleep during the heat of the day, hunting in the cool mornings and evenings near the warm coastal waters they live in. Young members of this species can climb trees, but a full grown Komodo will usually make its home in small caves or thick brush. Like most reptiles, the Komodo Dragon is cold blooded and will have difficulty surviving in cold weather.

Skills, Talents, and Magic: Komodo Dragons, despite their namesake, have no special talents or skills.

Weapons: A Komodo is a formidable opponent. It can attack in Melee Combat with its bite, base chance of 55%, Damage +4. The tail can be used to knock down opponents behind the Komodo: treat as trip (Base Chance 40%, D10 damage, target must roll 3xAgility or be thrown prone). In Close Combat it can attack 3 times in each pulse without penalty: 2 Claws have base chance 50% and do +2 damage, and it can bite with base chance now at 65%. Additionally, the tail of a Komodo Dragon can be wrapped around a victim in Close Combat after 2 successful Claw attacks. Wrap: Base Chance of 80%, +5 Damage per pulse the tail squeezes, no roll needed to hit once initial squeeze has been made. The Komodo can still bite and claw while executing a squeeze action.

Comments: Komodos are valued as curiosities, and live adults fetch 1200-1500 Silver Pennies. Additionally, Komodos can be domesticated and trained as mounts for small humanoids (Halflings or Dwarves). A trained Komodo will sell for up to 2500 Silver Pennies. The claws of the Komodo can also be sold to Alchemists and Wizards for 15 Silver Pennies for each claw.

SHARAZ

Natural Habitat: Waste (especially desert)

Frequency: Rare

Number: 1-3 (1)

Description: Called "Sand Demons" by nomadic tribes, these reptiles are the unusual combination of a semi-humanoid upper body and a lizard-like lower body. They are over 9 feet tall, and weigh more than 500 pounds. They have muscular arms and chests, sharp claws and teeth, and long necks. Their heads are reptilian in appearance, with sleek eyes and a scaly flesh. The tail of a Sharaz is usually 10 or more feet long, and can be controlled with great skill, augmenting their combat ability (see below). Their legs are lean and strong, allowing them to sit on their haunches during combat. Sharaz have near human intelligence, allowing them to speak their own language and use weapons and tools. They make their homes in caves or among rocks. Because they are cold-blooded, Sharaz cannot survive in cold climates.

Talents, Skills, and Magic: Sharaz use weapons and tools for combat and survival. They can also go for extended periods without water. They are not magic users.

Movement Rates: Running: 300

Weapons: Bite has a Base Chance of 50% and damage of +2, and can be used in Melee or Close Combat. They can also attack using claws, Base Chance of 65% and D+1 Damage. Claws are rated for Close or Melee Combat, and two attacks are allowed per pulse without penalty. Sharaz can also use their tails to attack into any of its rear hexes, allowing it to attempt to trip any man-sized or smaller creature. This attack has a Strike Chance of 40% and Damage is D10. If the attack is successful, target must roll 3 x Modified Agility or less to avoid being thrown prone. In addition to its natural combat abilities, Sharaz will also carry swords and spears, which they will use at Ranks 1-5.

Comments: Sharaz generally attack by surprise, burrowing into the crests of sand dunes near human settlements and waiting for the unwary to approach. They will nearly always be found hunting alone, but occasionally may be encountered in small groups. Their social system keeps them divided into simple families, but they do participate in trade and festival activities. Sharaz lairs will generally be guarded by a female, and there is a 20% chance that young will be present.

74. UNDEAD

[74.2] Greater Undead

MUMMY

Natural Habitat: Crypts, Ruins

Frequency: Very Rare

Number: 1

Description: Mummies are undead beings whose life-force has been sustained through elaborate magical rituals performed by the being while still alive. Mummies generally do not immediately become active after their death, instead requiring the passage of great amounts of time (for more details, see Comments, below). When they do finally activate, mummies emerge from their deathly sleep in a state of near mindlessness. However, their condition improves with time, eventually becoming fully aware and sentient by the tenth year of their undead existence. Mummies generally appear to be zombies, though beings that can detect magic will be able to clearly and easily distinguish them quickly. They smell like rotting flesh, and generally attract the attention of flies.

Talents, Skills, and Magic: These creatures may use any and all human skills, talents, and magic that they knew in their mortal life, though they cannot access these abilities until they achieve some degree of sentience. In general, they will be at least Rank 10 with whatever College of Magic they studied while alive. They can use weapons, wear armor and carry shields just as they did when they were alive. Their touch is frighteningly chilled, and any character that comes into contact with a mummy suffers D+1 damage. This damage is never absorbed by normal armor.

Movement Rates: Running: 150

PS: 30-40 MD: 10-12 AG: 6-10

MA: 20-30 EN: 28-35 FT: 30-40

WP: 25-30 PC: 20-30 PB: 1-2

TMR: 4 NA: None

Weapons: Mummies are treated as humans for all purposes in combat, except that they cannot be harmed by non-magical weapons. In addition, the touch of a Mummy causes D+1 damage, which cannot be absorbed by mundane armor.

Comments: Mummies are the by-product of magical structures, rather than any sort of curse or ritual. In order for a mummy to be created, the corpse of an Adept must be interred into a suitable structure. A suitable structure are those structures that can absorb and focus the ambient mana of the world and environment, such as pyramids, ziggurats, specially prepared crypts (usually involving obelisks or other mana-gathering monuments such as standing stones), or any other structure of interment that the GM deems suitable. The corpse to be transformed is placed in a location that allows them to receive the unique magical focusing efforts of the tomb, where it rests for several decades (or longer). At a certain point, a critical amount of absorbed mana is reached, whereupon the corpse re-animates, becoming a mummy. Note that only adepts can become mummies, though once activated they will not regain their magical capabilities for some time.

[81.5] Expanded Goods Cost List.

See the Expanded Goods Cost List Table 81.5.

83. ADVENTURE ACTIONS

[83.5] (Optional Rule) An adventurer can use his/her climbing skill to climb a structure.

Climbing Skill is an adventure skill like Horsemanship and Stealth. The prime difference is that Characters do not begin at rank 0. They must expend 100 experience points to become rank 0. Other than that, it operates in exactly the same fashion as the thief's climbing skill: $([4 \times MD] + [10 \times Rank]) - (\text{Distance climbed in feet}/10)$. A check is made for each entire vertical surface. If a failure occurs, roll % dice to determine at which height the character fell. A 100 would indicate that character fell from the top of the climb. Consult falling damage rules if a fall occurs.

Further descriptions not included in the Thief ability, but which should apply equally:

Once a ledge, or similar area, where a character can stand freely and rest is reached, the climb has ended. If he proceeds upward from that point, another success check must be rolled.

GM should account for loss of fatigue as climbing is a strenuous activity, and penalizes the climber as he sees fit. Typically a -10 should be applied for any character with 0 Fatigue.

A character can have both thief and climbing skill, in which case the higher rank applies for determining success.

If a character's rank in Thief is higher than his rank in Climbing, he need only expend half the experience to gain rank in the Climbing skill.

A character who has the Ranger Skill, and is has selected mountains (not caverns), as his area of specialty, need only expend half the experience points to gain rank in climbing, up to a rank equal to his rank in Ranger.

Armor effects a character's chance to successfully climb, similar to the way it effects Stealth, only the penalty is doubled, with the exception that Leather receives a -5 penalty, and cloth does not receive any bonus.

Furthermore, the chance of success is increased or reduced by 1 for each point above or below 15 that a character has in Physical Strength and Modified Agility.

Roll of 00 is an automatic failure, no matter what the percentage chance was, and likewise a roll of 01 is always a success.

[83.6] (Optional Rule) Falling Damage.

These rules provide for accidental falls as well as planned falls and jumping down from heights.

Here's the formula with explanations to follow:

Damage Points = Falling Points - Absorption Points

Damage Points = $(\text{Dist} \times \text{Sfc Mult}) - (\text{Mod AG} - 2d10)$

How it works:

1. Falling Points are calculated based on distance fallen and landing surface.

Falling Points = Distance (in feet) x Landing Surface Multiplier

Landing Surface Multiplier Chart

0.5 = Water, Hay Stack.

1.0 = Hard Ground, Flat Rock.

1.5 = Hard Protrusions, Jagged Rock.

GM should assess Multiplier as he sees fit. Perhaps a 0.9 for a wooden floor.

2. Absorption Points are determined based on Mod. AG minus (-) a dice roll. For planned jumps, use just the Mod. AG without the dice roll.

Absorption Points = Modified Agility - 2d10 (special - see note)

Note 1 - Roll 2d10, but treat 0's as zero not ten, ie. a roll of 2&0 would total 2 and not 12. There is also a special rule for rolls of 99. If a fall results in damage to the character, and a 99 was rolled, then the character has received a broken neck.

Note 2 - If it is a controlled fall or jump, rather than an uncontrolled fall, only one D10 is rolled and subtracted from Modified Agility. I.e. a character who decides to jump down into a 10 foot pit would use the controlled fall rules. A character that fell into a 10 foot pit that opened beneath his feet would use the regular uncontrolled fall rules.

3. Actual Damage Points are a result of subtracting Absorption Points from Falling Points. Actual damage is applied to Fatigue and then Endurance. Unlike combat damage, once Fatigue runs out, the remainder of the actual damage is subtracted from Endurance.

Damage Points = Falling Points - Absorption Points

4. Grievous Injuries: For every 10 Endurance points taken due to a fall, roll a Class C grievous injury check. For most characters, you'd have to be dead to receive 2 grievous rolls. If the roll falls between 01-69, no grievous injury occurs. 70-00, take the grievous injury.

EXAMPLE A: Delion gets pushed off a 35 foot cliff by a nasty Orc. Delion has FT=21, EN=19, and Mod AG=12. Lucky for Delion there are no jagged rocks where he lands. He rolls a 2&6 on his dice roll. He takes: $(35 \times 1.0) - (12 - 8) = 35 - 4 = 31$ points of damage. He loses all his Fatigue and $31 - 21 = 10$ points to Endurance so he's down to 9 EN and rolls a grievous. 78! Oh no! A massive chest wound! Broken ribs and other nasty stuff, he takes 5 more Endurance, now he's down to 1 EN. In 4 months when he recovers, he'll kick the Orc's behind I'm sure.

EXAMPLE B: Strongbow returns the favor to the Orc, unfortunately for the Orc, he doesn't miss the jagged rocks and boulders. The Orc has FT=24 EN=23 Mod AG=14. The Orc rolls a 7&9, he takes: $(35 \times 1.5) - (14 - 16) = 42 - (-2) = 44$ points of damage. All 24 FT and 20 more to EN now he's down to 3 EN, and has to roll for grievous twice. The first roll = 03, nothing. The second roll = 68, nothing again. The lucky Orc is unconscious but alive.

EXAMPLE C: Strongbow, realizing that his friend is hurt, and that the Orc isn't dead yet, decides to jump down and correct the situation. FT=24 EN=17 Mod AG=14. He tosses down his pack and weapons (hope nothing broke), now his Mod AG is 17. He hangs off the side of the ledge, effectively reducing his fall by 5 feet, and jumps from there. He rolls 1 D10, a 9 and takes: $(30 \times 1.0) - (17 - 9) = 30 - 8 = 22$ points of damage. He's got 2 FT and all 17 EN, plenty of strength to kill the Orc, and help the Dwarf to safety.

(Optional) Miracle Rule: Everyone has heard about someone falling a great distance, and surviving, well maybe your character needs the same miracle. If your character dies from a fall, you can call upon the god(s) for just such a miracle. Calculate the damage the character took from the fall, and the resulting negative Endurance points. The Character can get 2 points of Endurance back, but has to make a Class C grievous check. A roll of 70-00 means the character takes that injury. However, should he roll 01-69, he will get the 2 points back on EN. The character can continue to do this until he is either alive or mutilated beyond all recognition. Basically any character that needs more than 4 EN points to regain life will have to be very lucky to survive. It might even be fun to keep a tally of the mounting injuries a character takes until he finally gives up GM can pull the plug on the character after any grievous if he wants.

[83.7] (Optional Rule) Jumping.

Here are guidelines for various types of jumps.

1. Broad Jump

A broad jump is any jump where a character does not take a running start to make a jump. One or two steps make little difference in the distance actually cleared. A successful broad jump can be completed without tripping or falling, and needs only one step for recovery room where he or she lands. A player needs only room to plant his or her feet to make a standing broad jump.

2. Long Jump

A running long jump requires a good deal of running room to gain the maximum distance. Both a runway and landing strip are required for long jumps. The runway should be equal to twice the distance attempting to be cleared, and the landing strip should be equal to the distance jumped.

3. Jumping Distances

An average character can make a standing broad jump a distance equal to their height plus 6", and a running long jump equal to twice the broad jump distance. Modifications to this are based on higher and lower than average Physical Strength and Agility scores. Add 3" to a character's height for each point PS or Agility are over 15, and subtract 3" for each point under 15. Use modified ability scores to determine a character's ability in armor and with the items he or she is carrying.

Example Delion has a PS of 24 and a Modified Agility of 11 in his armor. He is 4' 3" tall, so he can broad jump $4' 9" + \text{Strength } (9 \times 3")$ and - Agility $(4 \times 3")$ for a total of 6'0". His long jump would be 12'0".

4. Extending for that extra distance

Extra distance can be added to a broad jump by diving forward. You can gain up to half your height in this fashion, but an agility check should be made. If for example Delion were broad jumping a 7' pit, he would have to dive, and catch onto something. Increase or decrease the agility roll depending on what there is to catch on the other side. If for example there were a handrail built into the edge of the pit, he should have a fairly good chance of catching it, say 5 times agility.

Two types of extensions can be attempted for a long jump, the leg extension or the dive. Leg extension landings, similar in fashion to Olympic long jumping, can add half of your height to a jump. If you extend in this fashion, you come to a crash landing, and take 1 fatigue point of damage, if no fatigue, then endurance.

Diving forward at the end of a long jump is a very dangerous maneuver. If attempted, a character should suffer damage similar to a fall of the same distance jumped. Like falls, the surface landed on can reduce or even eliminate any damage. In the case of a dive, the player must catch on to something similar to a broad jumping dive.

5. Short Runways and Landings

There are often times when the runway is not the required two times the distance to be jumped. A runway must be longer than the character's height who is attempting the jump, only broad jumps may be made if the runway is less than the jumper's height. In the case of a short runway follow these procedures to determine jumping distances.

Lets say Delion, in armor, needs to clear a pit that is somewhat less than 10 feet across, but he has only a 10' runway. Divide the runway distance (10') by Delion's maximum long jump runway distance, $(12' \times 2 = 24 \text{ feet})$ the result is 42%. Multiply this by Delion's broad jumping distance $(.42 \times 6' = 2.5')$ then add it to his broad jumping distance $(6' + 2.5' = 8.5')$ to see how far he can jump with the short runway. He may jump 8.5' with the 10' runway. Only dive extensions are available for short runway jumps. In this case, Delion can either dive to make sure he clears that pit, or remove his armor and weapons, and throw them across before jumping.

If the required amount of landing strip is not available, there are two options. In the case where a player is attempting to jump a 15' pit in a passageway, but the passage turns 10' after the pit, the player will end up slamming into the wall before coming to a controlled stop. The player should roll for falling damage of Required Landing strip minus Available Landing strip. In this case it would be a 5' fall, which would usually not end up in any damage. If a player were jumping a 15' pit and were trying to land on a 3' ledge, ouch! Essentially the player would be running full speed into a wall. That can really hurt.

The second option is the case where the landing strip ends into open space. If you are jumping from rooftop to rooftop, and you end up jumping a 15' gap and landing on a small roof area, with only 10' of landing space, you will need to dive onto the roof to avoid sailing over the edge. In this case you can continue your jump to another roof, hope one is near by, or do a fall and roll, take damage similar to hitting the wall. If the rooftop is even smaller, you'll have to make a dive or leg extension landing, and take appropriate damage.

6. Pole vaulting and High Jumping

What are you running a medieval track meet? Pole vaulting and high jumping skills are not going to be discussed, as they do not have any practical applications in the fantasy role playing game. Pole vaulting requires an extremely flexible pole, of which the technology in fantasy times does not exist without the aid of magic to make. You also need to plant the pole in a small hole to launch. OK, maybe you could try and leap over an 8' foot fence with a pole, but the average pole will snap into splinters if treated in such a fashion, and don't forget, that there is no padded landing pit on the other side for you. Plus who walks around carrying a 10 foot pole? If it is your pike, then you just left it behind you at the fence, as you do have to let go of it to complete the jump.

High jumping is a skill everyone possesses to a degree, but like pole vaulting it has no practical game time application. Of course you may want to jump over something, but since you can usually touch whatever it is you are jumping over, you can simply grab the top of the 8' fence, and swing your legs over it. You would look pretty dumb making a great effort to clear the same fence, and then crashing on your head on the other side of it, while your companions simply grab the top, swing their legs over and continue on there way.
