Player's Handout: Letter from Lord Kyle

Sirs:

Let me take this moment to extend to you my heartiest congratulations on your already numerous and successes. Your names come to me with the highest regards.

But to the point: Here in the quiet Zuail Valley we have a small problem. A group of hobgoblin thugs have moved into an old keep near the village of Pembrose, from where I now write you. Sadly, there are none here able-bodied enough or willing to take on this well-armed and thoroughly scurrilous and obstinate group of foul-smelling brutes. They are a blight on our community and are standing in the way of plans I had for that keep! I am asking you then to extend to us your considerable talents in dealing with these sorts of problems. You will of course be compensated for your efforts. You may reach me at my estate near the village of Pembrose.

Thank you, and may the road be kind to you.

Sincerely,

Lord Kyle
