

The Grand master

Grandmaster Wang Shujin was a Chinese mob boss who spent much of his life in Shanghai. He was a key supporter of Chiang Kai-shek and the Kuomintang in their battle against the Communists in the 1920s, till he was run out of the country. He showed up a year later in Rock Junction ready to make a new place for himself in America. He is soft spoken and will strike his foes in lethal attacks if angered. He runs the Chinese laundry and Wang's wife is a notable criminal in her own right. She is the leader of the Green Gang, and has her hand in off track gambling houses and provides opium enforcers for the many dens in Lakefront city. A stickler for fine clothing and women, Wang surrounds himself with White Russian bodyguards, and frequents the city's best nightclubs and sing-song houses. He is also known for having a superstitious streak — he has three small monkey heads, specially imported from Hong Kong that he keeps in his office.
