Man attacks 'Possessed' Girl

(dated nine months ago)

In Tagashi district today a man was arrested for harassing a young girl. He insisted she was the origin of a demonic creature he claims has been haunting him for the last few months. The man was obviously suffering from a severe mental breakdown, and police believe he fixated on the girl (who cannot be named) due to her 'gothic' clothing and dark make up. However, witnesses claim she replied to her attacker saying 'I didn't ask for him. I don't want him.'

Local Man Brutally Murdered

(dated eight months ago - 2 months before the Kuro incident)

Several arrests were made today at the crossroad bus stop in Tagashi district when locals decided to take the law into their own hands. Acting on allegations of child abuse, several local people raided the house of Sasaki Hayato and murdered him before police could intervene.

Sasaki san was a respected local bus driver, still grieving over the recent suicide of his daughter Meiko. Her recent death had been due to a long battle with depression and was not regarded by the police as suspicious.

The local people arrested insisted Sasuki had been abusing his daughter, and that this was the cause of her depression. However, an investigation into her medical records revealed there was no suspicion or evidence of abuse. None of those arrested were able to say what evidence they had uncovered that led them to this tragic act of what is now believed to be mass hysteria.

This is not the first ill luck the area has suffered recently. Over the last year its crime rate has increased and many of the local businesses have closed as customers rarely come to this once-thriving area. It is suspected that today's horrific act was driven by a sense of anger and despair felt keenly by the area's inhabitants. There is little doubt that today's arrests will spell the end of this small district.
