Preface

The World's First RPG is a game I truly love and B/X Essential's treatment of it has quickly become my favorite version. I've always enjoyed the cyberpunk genre and even though there is a venerable game that mixes elves, dwarves, magic, and cybernetics, it has never had rules that I've enjoyed. For years, I've thought to myself, "Why isn't anyone mixing the the World's First RPG and cyberpunk in the OSR?"

Well, here is the beginning of my answer to that question. This supplement, which covers cybernetics, is the first of several that will allow the mixing of B/X Essentials and CyberPunk. Additionally, I've worked up a unified take on B/X Essentials called B/X Ascending, and there is an Appendix which converts the appropriate cybernetics to that revision.

Cheers,

Mark

CYBERNETICS

All sentient creatures have a Soul Rating of 7. Each major cybernetic upgrade lowers a creature's Soul by an amount specified in its description. A spellcaster cannot cast a spell higher than their Soul Rating (round down), e.g., if a magic-user has a Soul Rating of 5-1/2, it is rounded down to 5, and they cannot cast 6th level spells.

If a sentient creature's Soul Rating reaches 0, they will die within 10 minutes.

Unless stated otherwise within the description of a piece of cyberware, their bonuses do not stack, nor can they be bought multiple times.
