Winterblight's challenge was born in the now distant past when the author was publically challenged to write a sourcebook for a well-known game publisher. Having never before put pen to paper, the author of course accepted. After years of toil, the author eventually prevailed, as the hero in any good story should.

Now, Winterblight's Challenge wants to put you in charge. If you have purchased any product bearing the Winterblight's Challenge logo and have an idea you would like to see brought to life, we would love to hear about it. It could be a simple idea for a short adventure or a mini-setting, alternatively, it could be readout detailing an alien homeworld or planetary system – let your imagination run wild. All we need is a few paragraphs or bullet points with the seed of your idea and we will do the rest.

If your idea is chosen to be turned into a product, not only do you get a free copy of the pdf, but you get your name in the Concept by section of the credits. Submitted ideas must be generic and should be sent to winterblight@outlook.com
