Terran Colony Ship

When humans left Earth for the stars, they built an enormous ship to carry all the equipment the colony would need and its cryogenically frozen colonists. Though the mission was peaceful the builders had no idea what dangers the colonists would face and built some safeguards into their design.

The front of the ship is a heavy slab of armor designed to stop micrometeorites and radiation from harming the colonists. Heavy shields protect the sides and engineering compartments from cosmic radiation. Bulk liquid and recycling tanks surround the active crew quarters. Finally the array of cargo modules encircles bays full of frozen colonists.

Bulk Freighter

Far from ferrying hopes and dreams, this cargo ships it just bulk freight, the mass produced stuff of everyday life in the Sol system.

Bulk Freighter

In the years after the first colony ship was built the colony corporation kept building the massive ships, some would be sent to other stars, while most of them became bulk freighters.

The bulk freighters weren't going into uncharted space, they weren't carrying precious living cargo, mostly just mass produced tech for the Mars colony and heavy equipment for the Jovian moons. Sure there are some pirates in system, but the heavy lasers and shields should suffice to hold off the light weapons of their typical fighters and transports.
