Sanctuary's inhabitants persist as living beings, in each new volume of the series loving, giving birth, dying, stumbling into godhood or evading that trap of the heart, stabbing each other, tricking and being tricked, conniving, invading, launching revolutions — most surviving it all. There is not one Thieves' World, but many, and who would want it any other way?

That being so, it's important to know which Thieves' World you're holding in your hand. This one, the Thieves' World Companion, covers volumes 3-6 of the Thieves' World series: Shadows of Sanctuary, Storm Season, The Face of Chaos, and Wings of Omen. This supplement reflects those volumes and no others. Volumes 1 and 2, Thieves' World and Tales from the Vulgar Unicorn, are covered in Chaosium's original boxed supplement, titled simply Thieves' World.

That original supplement was much concerned with Sanctuary's physical layout, fantasy gaming, and a context of historical background. Such material does not much occur in this supplement — it has not changed, and we can hardly ask people who already own it to buy it again. Consequently, though, a few references in this book may be cryptical to roleplayers unfamiliar with the Thieves' World box. For instance, from the books you know that there is a Street of Red Lanterns, but you will not know which building on the Sanctuary map is Myrtis' Aphrodesia House without the area map for that part of town.

PLEASE NOTE THIS CHANGE: contrary to the statement on the back cover, the revised encounter tables are not here printed in full. The encounter table changes, in particular, mean little without the tables themselves, yet reprinting all of the tables, instructions, and their index map would require an appreciable expansion of this book, and require owners of Thieves' World to buy more of what they already have. Perhaps the obvious usefulness of the fragments can entice newcomers to take a peep into the original box.

Like Sanctuary and its mythos, the hobby of roleplaying also evolves. Several of the game systems which our original supplement embraced have, for various reasons, fallen by the wayside. Others are not usable by us at this time. Another system, RuneQuest, saw revision and then bifurcation into a Deluxe and a Standard edition. Other systems, like Middle Earth Role Playing, appeared after the original supplement and were perforce not included then.

Only RuneQuest and Middle Earth Role Playing character statistics are printed here. So far as players are concerned, the essential difference between Deluxe and Standard RuneQuest is that Deluxe has more complex character generation and a bigger array of spirit magic and divine magic spells ... and that Standard has a smaller price tag.

There is a full set of RuneQuest III Sanctuary characters: as tailored individuals, all are equipped with Deluxe-edition spells.

For Standard players and gamemasters, about 20 spirit magic and divine magic spells which do not occur in Standard RuneQuest are appended at the end of this book; at their option, Standard gamemasters may or may not decide to allow any of these spells to be earned, learned, or used in Sanctuary play. Deluxe players know of these spells and of many more. Spells occurring in Deluxe but not in Standard here have been termed "extra-standard" — for the convenience of Standard-owning gamemasters, extra-standard spells reprinted in the spells appendix are asterisked in the cults essays. Not all the spells have been reprinted, because there are so many. Since the Beysibs are in several ways the focus of this book, a complete set of the named cult spells for Mother Bey and Porta exists.

The MERPS statistics are usable with and intended as well for Rolemaster, an Iron Crown Enterprises predecessor of the popular MERPS version. As the introduction to those statistics makes clear, the crucial difference between the two titles is that Rolemaster characters may advance above 10th level.

With the background essays, the new personalities drawings, and the plan of the great dungeon, we hope that the Thieves' World Companion becomes a handy and intriguing friend for you.

Characters By Story

Thieves' World Volumes 3-6

Here is a list of significant characters appearing in volumes three through six of the continuing Thieves' World saga. Characters are listed by volume title and by story title. The order of entry reflects both the position of the story in a particular volume and (usually) the order of character entry within a particular story. Not every character is listed for every story; that might hinder as much as help. Important characters may have several names: no attempt has been made to regularize the list in that regard. If you do not know that, for instance, the Empress, The Beysa, and Shupansea are one and the same, stop right now and read the books instead.

The Beysib Empire

The Beysibs are an ancient culture inhabiting an island continent to the southwest of Sanctuary. Their population is large, formalizing their social customs. While the Beysib Empire strives to present an unchanging face to history, it does evolve, as witness the invasion of exiles which has set the Rankan Empire in general and Sanctuary in particular on their ears.

Ethnically homogenous, Beysib society is dominated by one physical type. Beysibs are commonly fair-skinned, but not pale. Brown and green eyes predominate, though other colors do occur; likewise most hair is in the blond to brown range, with blacks and red shades being relatively uncommon. The ash-blond color of Earth's Nordic phenotype is almost unknown. The most distinctive physical characteristic of the Beysibs is a nictitating membrane. The membrane is most developed and functional in pure-blooded aristocratic families, but it is a rare Beysib who lacks one.

Isig legends speak of the Fish-Eyed-Folk-Beyond-the-Sea, a clear reference to the Beysib and their unnatural staring appearance.

Beysibs also tend to webbed toes and fingers. For instance, Shupansea, an important political figure, has webbed toes. For practical reasons, finger webbing is removed surgically shortly after birth. But, as webbing is considered a mark of the Goddess Bey's favor, distinctive scars are left on the infant's hands to show that the child was favored at birth.

In aristocratic families, the women are commonly taller and sturdier than the men and throughout the population women noticeably outnumber men. The Imperial family is semi-divine by custom and possesses traits and abilities tending to bear out those pretensions. The further from the throne and court one goes, the more diluted are such ways, but outsiders find the Empire disconcerting everywhere.

The Beysib Empire is matriarchal. The Empress — the Beysa — passes power to her eldest daughter (the Ti-Beysa) during the Beysa's lifetime. The state religion is the worship of Bey, a threefold goddess of virgin-temptress-hunter, of mother-leader-planter, and of crone-judge-reaper. Usually enough potential successors exist within the Imperial family that each may enact a modality of these three aspects in mandatory rites. When there are not, women of suitable lineage may be adopted into the family.

Though the Beysa embodies the spirit of war and righteous anger, fighting is largely delegated to males, and the Beysa's advisors (except for members of her immediate family) are sometimes male.

Cult And Myth

The Beysa and her family are avatars of Bey, the eternal goddess who takes not only the three times three human aspects mentioned above but also three parallel and summary aspects — that of a venomous snake, the Beynit, that of a fragrant flower, the Beyosa, and that of a migratory sea bird, the Beyarl. On the Beysa's throne are manifested the goddess' twelve forms. But it is her relation to the Beynit which is most important to the state religion.

In the shadowy dawn of creation, Bey removed the Beynit from the gap between her legs, a feat borne out by the wound-like appearance of her descendants' crotches and the blood-red markings on the snakes' heads. After Beynit was removed, Bey was able to give birth to the universe. Thus the Beynit was a part of the goddess in a way which the universe was not. The Beysa is never seen without a Beynit wending its way around her anatomy.

The bite of a Beynit injects a deadly neurotoxin, which rarely takes more than a minute to kill. Death occurs through central nervous system trauma, and the reaction, once begun, is irreversible. It is not a pleasant death to watch — which the Beysa must often do — but death is quick enough not to be sadistic. No antitoxins are known.

Each female of the Imperial family is given a Beynit moments after her birth, since it is impossible to tell which daughter will be the eldest at the Beysa's death, and early introduction of the infant to the snake is essential. The snake is induced to bite the child then and repeatedly through the child's life. This sets the stage for one of the phenomena distinguishing the Beysa from her subjects and worshipers. She quickly becomes immune to the snake venom, and after menarche the venom is reproduced within her and moves naturally through her bloodstream. Needless to say, the handling and disposal of the Beysa's body fluids is done with great care in accordance to ancient ritual. The poisonous blood of the Beysa is used to dispatch sacrifices to Bey, as well as to execute state criminals.

Though she would not explain it so, the Beysa's ability to tolerate the venom is carried by sex-linked genes. Sons conceived by her, lacking the proper receptors, are subjected to venom-enriched blood in utero and rarely survive to term.

In theory, just about any Beysib female can be caused to tolerate Beynit venom, as the gene is widely dispersed. Girl children usually survive Beynit bites. However, the tolerance cannot be induced after menarche, and an adult woman either has internalized the venom or is as vulnerable to it as any man. Some women in the general population, by accident or design, can duplicate some of the Beysa's powers. Such women are often found in the ranks of courtesans and prostitutes, ensuring high deference to those professions. A secret organization of female assassins, the Harka Bey ("Vengeance of Bey"), utilizes their metabolic abilities for profit.

All duplications of the Beysa's powers and prerogatives are punishable by death, but that hasn't stopped the Harka Bey. These women, operating anonymously throughout the Empire, have infiltrated the Beysa's court and are also in the exile fleet moored off Sanctuary.

Every five years the Beysa and the other women of the Imperial family take husbands in accordance with their atavistic place in the hierarchy. The husband of the Beysa discards his former name and is known only as the No-amit, the Corn-king. He cohabits with the Beysa for a year and is sacrificed at the next celebration of the Amit, a harvest festival. Though the mortal life of the No-amit is short, his immortal rewards are presumably great, and the worldly honor is much sought-after, at least when the Beysa is not emulating Bey's crone aspect. The Beysa rarely takes a man she loves as No-amit, since as an avatar she is presumed at death to reunite with the goddess and to have no personal afterlife. Her most enduring male relationships are the friends she makes, usually with men in her father's family.

All daughters of the Beysa are honored members of their deceased father's clans, and spend portions of their childhood under that clan's tutelage. Through the relationships thus made, the clans maintain influence within the Empire.

No distinction is made between civil and church justice. All crimes are judged by the Beysa or her agents. Justice is unrelated to rehabilitation, though some sentences may be commuted to 'service to the Empire,' usually manual labor or military conscription. ●

The Nisibisi

The Nisibisi are a race of humans living in the Westwall mountains. The isolation of the Westwall allowed the race to evolve in unusual directions, partly physical and partly cultural. Contact between the Nisibisi and the Rankan Empire has resulted in a fierce war.

The Nisibisi are physically smaller than average humans, certainly smaller than a typical Rankan soldier. They are also more agile, and dislike direct assaults, either in battle or about problems, even when the strong assault is the best solution to a difficulty. The Nisibisi also are greatly talented in magic, with greater power and a quirk of mentality amenable to the conception and manipulation of magic. They survive by practicing all the normal mountain occupations: herding, farming where possible, mining, intricate craftsmanship, etc.

They have raised themselves to a respectable level of civilization, the equivalent of Barbarian in RuneQuest, nearly on a par with a Rankan Empire just now making the slightly debilitating transition to 'civilized.'

These mountain folk are organized into numerous clans, which send representatives to a council capable of making (in theory) binding decisions for all clans. Their politics are as bloody as those of Elizabethan Scotland, and the Nisibisi enthusiastically carry this tradition to outsiders.

Nisi' clans have relations with peoples on the far side of the mountains; they sometimes recruit these plains peoples as mercenaries to battle the Rankans.

Because of their isolation, low population, and peculiar magical prowess, they have abandoned traditional religion in favor of an odd rural practice of sorcery. The Nisi who colonized the Westwall originally had a well-established religion firmly centered in great temples far from the mountains. As economics and communications changed over the centuries, the Nisibisi became isolated from their religious traditions, and sorcery took a firm grip. This spiritual turning-inward makes the Nisibisi extremely independent, versatile, self-reliant, and individualistic. These qualities also amplify the grievances between the Rankans and the Nisibisi.

Nisibisi characteristics differ slightly from the average of humanity. In RuneQuest terms, their SIZ is 2 points less than ordinary human, their DEX is 3 higher, and their STR is 2D6+2. Their magic skills modifier is 5 points higher than their characteristics would ordinarily permit (e.g., a Nisibisi with INT, POW, and DEX of 10 each has a magic bonus of +5 percentiles).

All Nisibisi learn sorcery as their magic type. ●

Gods Of The Beysibs

The incursion of the Beysib brought new gods to Sanctuary. Even now they are attempting to fit themselves into the hierarchy of Sanctuary's gods.

Two gods are of importance to the refugee Beysib. Mother Bey is the principal god of her people and is worshiped by all in one way or another. Porta is the other, a destructive god of the sea, worshiped by some of the sailors and fishermen who brought the Beysib to Sanctuary.

Mother Bey

Bey is the goddess from whom the Beysib take their name, their strength, and their power. They say she gave birth to the world. Within herself she presents three faces to the world: the virgin-tempress-hunter, the mother-leader-planter, and the crone-judge-reaper. She thereby seizes for herself attributes of earth, agricultural, hunting, ruling, and underworld deities.

The basis of the religion is a powerful Earth goddess called Mother Bey. The ritual form of the religion is closely bound to a small poisonous snake called the Beynit. According to legend, "In the shadowy dawn of creation, Bey removed Beynit from the gap between her legs ... making it possible for Bey to give birth to the universe. Hence, Beynit was a part of the goddess in a way which the [rest of the] universe was not."

The goddess Bey takes on three human aspects (Virgin, Mother, and Crone), and three non-human forms: the Beynit snake, the Beyosa (a fragrant flower), and the Beyarl (a migrant bird).

Cult Ecology

Mother Bey is the creator and nurturer of the universe, and thus her worship must be continued or the world will end. By the law of kinds and perhaps because of a special law of consanguinity, Mother Bey favors women in most endeavors.

Virtually the entire Beysib race worships the goddess from whom they take their name. Even worshipers of Porta give respect to Bey. However, she is little known but in the Beysib Empire and in Sanctuary.

A female Beysib of the noblest houses can tolerate the deadly Beynit venom for a period of time in childhood. If recognized in time, this resistance to the poison can be cultured and expanded into a lifetime immunity. After this immunity is acquired, the woman's blood courses with the Beynit toxin, and the blood is itself a deadly poison. Women of the Beysib royal family who have been so treated are careful about where they bleed, especially during menstruation; an intense protective ritual is carried out for the safety of everyone at court. The venom-rich blood of a royal Beysib woman is also spiritually rich, and can be alchemically transformed to produce many useful potions.

The Cult In The World

Within the Beysib Empire, the cult is supreme. Conquered peoples' gods have been taken as consorts to Bey and the goddesses have been adopted as children. All now exist only as heroes of the cult.

Temples to Bey exist throughout that ancient Empire, many of them meeting the requirements of RuneQuest Great Temples. As yet, there is only a Minor Temple in Sanctuary, nestled into one of the rooms of the Governor's palace. Unknown to any non-Beysib, a Great Temple is secreted within one of the huge transport ships at anchor within the harbor of Sanctuary.

The cult hierarchy is formed by the noblest Beysib women, collectively drawn from the ranking clans of the Beysib Empire. A prerequisite of high rank is hereditary resistance to the Beynit toxin. Usually enough priestesses are available to enact the three aspects of the goddess at need. One office, the Beysa (chief high priestess), is pre-eminent at all ceremonies, and wields great political clout as Empress. Her clan attains great favor and power.

Shupansea was groomed to inherit this position from her predecessor, who endured her crone aspect into senility. When the old woman died, intrigues forced Shupansea and her clan, the Buriks, to flee the Empire.

Each temple to Mother Bey is organized into four parts. The dominant altar is dedicated to the goddess as a whole; the three subordinate altars each are dedicated to one of the three aspects of the goddess. Depending upon the staff or the traditions of the temple, different modalities of the same aspect may be emphasized. For instance, a temple in a grain-growing region might dedicate the three lesser altars to the Virgin, to the Mother as Planter, and to the Crone as Reaper. A temple with a political or administrative tradition might dedicate the lesser altars to the Virgin as Hunter, to the Mother as Leader, and to the Crone as Judge. Many modalities occur.

Temple staffing is flexible, since the aspects are always mutually friendly. The senior priestess present presides over the main altar, and the altars to the aspects are run by lesser priests.

In normal times, the center of the Beysib religion is at the main temple located in the imperial capital. The schism caused by Shupansea's exile has lessened that temple's authority, because the chief priestesses who went into exile with the Buriks took with them several holy objects which had previously graced the Imperial Grand Temple. A punitive expedition could arrive in Sanctuary to recover these artifacts.

Initiate Membership

Initiation into the cult of Mother Bey is automatic for everybody born in the Beysib Empire. Only tribal barbarians on the fringes of the Empire exclude themselves from the benefits of communion with Mother Bey. Adolescents are commonly initiated at the age of 15 years, the usual age of majority. Younger individuals can be initiated for important reasons, such as being intended for the priesthood. Non-Beysib can be initiated into the cult following the normal RuneQuest rules, but such must demonstrate proficiency in Orate, Human Lore, World Lore, and the ability to read and write in the Beysib language.

Initiates must sacrifice all their magic points but one on Holy days, and are encouraged to tithe to the church. Cult membership is also a community function — individuals who commit crimes against the state or community are excommunicated from cult functions as surely as if they had acted against the church.

The cult of Mother Bey protects the poor and provides most of the education available to Beysib youths.

The cult provides training in the skills of Human and World Lore, Read/Write Beysib, and Orate.

Commonly-available spirit magic spells include Demoralize, Heal, and Protection. Other spirit magics are available from specific temples.

Acolytes

Acolytes are sub-priests who are initiated into important cult mysteries, but who lack the time to run temples. Important clan leaders are given this status as a mark of recognition by the temple hierarchy; this also increases the number of persons eligible to lead religious observances. Acolytes can sacrifice for renewable divine-magic spells.

Rune Priestess Membership

Priestesses of Mother Bey intercede between the goddess's powerful and mysterious ways and the masses of enthusiastic but untutored worshipers who love their goddess and plead for her gifts. While the Beysib religion emphasizes the participation of women and demands that the highest ceremonial posts be filled by women who pass certain rigorous tests, the church hierarchy is by no means closed to males, and there is evidence that the secular Beysib culture may be male-dominated (with the obvious exception of the Beysa herself).

To become priestesses of Mother Bey, candidates must possess divine magic spells totaling at least 10 points, know Human Lore, World Lore, Read/Write Beysib, and Orate to at least 50% each, and pass a test of holiness abstracted as POW x3 or less on a D100 roll. Candidates failing in any part must wait one year to try again.

Priestesses of Mother Bey are constrained to spend 90% of their time working on cult business, performing ceremonies, managing cult properties, etc. In a large, rich cult such as that of Mother Bey, any priestess may find employment within the church sufficient for an adequate living.

The main Mother Bey cult provides all Common/Standard divine magic spells, plus an extra-standard spell, Enhance Venom.

ENHANCE VENOM

1 Point

Ritual Enchant spell, stackable

This spell is used to brew the poisonous blood of certain noble Beysib women into various magical potions. A whole complex of potions can be produced, and the only limit to their variety is the gamemaster's imagination. Each point of Enhance Venom permits one dose of drug to be enchanted. Simultaneously with casting the spell, the caster must sacrifice a fatigue point, magic point, hit point (general or by location), or a point of STR, CON, INT, POW, DEX, or APP. Depending on what is sacrificed, the potion's purpose differs. Generally, less-imposing sacrifices (such as a fatigue point or an easily-healed locational hit point) produce less stupendous potions. However, sacrificing INT would produce a most impressive potion, probably with a permanent effect of some type. As always, details rest with the gamemaster's interpretation of the Thieves' World books.

Sub-Cults

The sub-cults live in harmony with one another, enhancing the peaceful growth of a vast empire and adding richness to the Beysib religion.

The sub-cults draw their priestesses from the assembled Beysib clergy, without other regard. Buxom nymphets may head ceremonies to the Crone, and ancient and withered patriarchs can lead prayers to the Virgin. From time to time, particular priestesses may find themselves drawn to one or another aspect of the Great Mother. Similarly, particular initiates may favor one or another aspect of Mother Bey.

The Virgin: The Virgin sub-cult is concerned with education, exploration, hunting, and warfare, as well as the activities of youngsters. The Virgin also serves as a love goddess, and has a frivolous air not found in the other aspects.

While anyone can worship the Virgin, gaining access to her magic spells requires that the individual prove competent with Jump, Animal or Plant Lore (candidate's choice), Search, and Sneak by successful use of at least three out of the four skills while under temple test. No Power sacrifice or other requirements need be made.

The Virgin can impart the spirit magic spells of Bladesharp, Disruption, and Heal Wound, and the extra-standard spells of Lightwall,* Mobility,* and Shimmer.*

She can provide the divine magic spells of Command Bird, Shield, and True (sword), and the extra-standard spells of Regrow Limb* and Restore Health (DEX).*

The Mother: The Mother is associated with fertility, healing, agriculture, community, administration, and leadership.

Just as with the Virgin, anyone desiring benefits from the Mother must prove competent in her skills, which are Devise, Fast Talk, Human Lore, and Scan.

The Mother provides spirit magic spells of Countermagic, Heal Body, Speedart, and the extra-standard spells of Darkwall,* Endurance,* and Second Sight.*

The Mother grants the divine magic spells of Absorption, Command Gnome, and Heal Body, and the extra-standard spells of Restore Health (STR)* and Bless Crops.*

The Crone: The Crone includes the infertile mother, the judge of life and death, and the death-dealer who gives cause to life; she is the circler, the reconciler of opposites, and the final answer.

Her sub-cult requires skill competence in Conceal, Listen, Sneak, and World Lore.

She can teach spirit magic spells of Befuddle and Detect (substance), and the extra-standard spells of Dispel Magic,* Extinguish,* Light,* and Slow.*

Associated Cults

Three distantly-related sub-cults (Beynit, Beyosa, and Beyarl) also exist, plus a host of related local deities, none of which have representation among the emigrant Beysibs of Sanctuary, and which are not covered in this essay.

Notes

Priestesses: The only full priestess in Sanctuary is Shupansea herself, though acolytes certainly exist.

The Harka-Bey: It is generally believed that only Beysib women of royal lineage can attain immunity to Beynit venom. However, a society of assassins, the Harka-Bey, knows that most, possibly all, Beysib females are immune to the Beynit before adolescence and, with proper acclimation, can attain the venom-rich blood characteristic of the Beysib royal house. Full assassins of the Harka-Bey all possess this ability, and use their blood for a variety of deadly purposes, not least to poison their weapons.

Porta

Porta is a demon, happily dwelling in the depths of the ocean amid monsters, elementals, and lesser demons. A territorial entity, she takes vengeance of those with the temerity to sail her domain without asking her leave.

Sailors in the Beysib Empire know the value of appeasing Porta before venturing across her seas. The Beysib sailors know that crews who sacrifice to Porta have a much better chance of surviving the unknown dangers of the high seas than those who do not.

Cult Ecology

Porta is worshiped by sailors who wish safe voyage across the unknowable deep seas. As a demon, she commands some of the evil things which beset ships, and can be propitiated by sacrifice of magic points and by the building of shrines suitable to continuing her worship. Her initiates still lead lives of peril, however, for Porta has no command of wind and storm, or ship's construction, or of human greed and treachery.

The center of Porta's power is the deep blue sea, far from land, where the hapless sailor has no recourse in his hour of peril, and where nothing marks the glory of Porta's triumphs over the incautious mariner.

Sailors worship Porta before setting out to sea, and are careful to tell her to where they want to sail.

Porta, ensconced in the dark, unchanging depths of the sea, observes no holy days.

The Cult In The World

Porta, devourer of ships, has little formal position in the Beysib Empire. Her worship is maintained by hardy and practical, but fearful, sailors, who will take any reasonable pains to add to the safety of an ocean voyage. Porta is not part of the ruling Beysib cult, and the few priests of the demon have no social standing outside the sailing community.

Porta is exclusively worshiped by Beysib sailors. Her cult has been a part of the life of Beysib mariners for many hundreds of years.

Few sites sacred to Porta are larger than tiny shrines located on harbor quays. Three minor temples exist at large dockyards in the Beysib Empire; a shrine has been established in the quarter of Sanctuary settled by the Setmur clan. The Sanctuary shrine is presided over and maintained by an otherwise nondescript initiate named Hakmor.

Worship is led at a shrine by an initiate who is paid a small offering for his services. Such initiates are often sailors retired from active life or are otherwise shorebound, allowing them to tend the shrine.

Initiate Membership

Initiates to Porta must be adults of reputation and sincerity satisfying to the examining initiate, must offer an adequate cash donation to the cult, sacrifice 1 point of Power to Porta, and are expected to know Boating, Shiphandling, World Lore, and Scan. Examining senior initiates decide who is admitted to Porta's mysteries.

Initiates to Porta remain in the demon's service because they fear death at sea. So long as there are sailors who respect Porta's powers, worshipers will keep the cult alive. The cult keeps no records of members or non-members; any sailor who knows the mysteries can come forward to lead the prayers, no matter how long it has been since he last worshiped.

The cult of Porta is a social focus for the Beysib sailors, more so in the cosmopolitan Beysib cities than in Sanctuary, where most of the sailors' social needs are provided for by the clan.

Not surprisingly, Porta initiates are good people to contact when looking for instruction in the cult skills. Instruction is on an individual basis for any initiate.

Porta's initiates can teach Worship Porta,* the only spell she grants to her initiates. A successful cast of the spell assuages Porta, who then allows the sailors to cross her seas unimpeded by her lesser demons, monsters, and great fishes.

Rune Priesthood

Few priestesses or priests of Porta exist. The cult is in competition with the established and all-pervasive Beysib cult for many of the usual priestly functions, and the practical sailors have come to realize that Porta cares nothing for the affairs of humans not crossing her waters.

Would-be priests to Porta typically become initiates shortly after their majority, and keenly follow the cult for decades. Porta favors neither sex, so some men find this cult of greater opportunity. For some men and women, Porta allows a mystical experience, possibly in the form of savage nightmares, in which the would-be priest learns of the correct ceremonies to be followed to worship Porta more closely and to gain her highest trust and approbation. Some priests have been executed for crazed bloody orgies held in the name of the demon; others seemingly have been more circumspect.

Priests and priestesses of Porta seem not to have any consistent taboos. The priesthood requires fifty percent of the priest's time. The priesthood receives the dubious benefit of close spiritual contact with the demon, and of a fair living from sailing community offerings.

Porta's priests can sacrifice for all common/standard divine spells, and the extra-standard spells of *Breath Air/Water and Float.* A priest or priestess can sacrifice for these spells at any shrine, no matter how small, a feat impossible to normal gods. However, a spell which Porta grants always costs double the listed points of power. ●

Gods Of Ranke

The Rankan religion is the closest thing to monotheism found in the world of Sanctuary. Savankala is the main god, and all the other gods depend on his power. Only his warlike son Vashanka has real independent existence, and he was lately killed in an unsuccessful battle with Shadowspawn. Sabellia, the lady of stars, is subservient to her fiery lord and has no independent hierarchy.

Savankala's priests can act as priests for both Sabellia and Vashanka.

Savankala

Savankala is the progenitor, the sun who gave birth to the world. Savankala is god of light, heat, and life. He joined with the goddess Sabellia and she bore him twelve passions which personified the emotions of the world. Eleven of these passions, led by envy and pride, rebelled against their parents and sought to consume them, but the twelfth, Vashanka, god of violence, stood against his siblings. He slew ten of them and raped the eleventh — his sister Azyuna, goddess of betrayal.

Cult Ecology

As the ruling god, Savankala is the god of the nobles, and his power is accepted more than supplicated. All Rankan nobility officially worship him, and the Emperors of Ranke are his personal emissaries. As long as the Rankan Empire exists in any form, so does Savankala.

Savankala keeps himself removed from the hurly-burly of everyday worship. He sits in the sky and depends on his priests to maintain his power. His main hatred is darkness and the gods thereof. Scholars say that he tires of godhood and depends on his son to perform day-to-day godly duties.

The center of Savankala's power is the city of Ranke, capital of the Rankan Empire.

The Cult In The World

This cult is the main cult of the Rankan Empire, and thus powerful wherever the Empire has influence. Any Rankan town of any size has a temple to Savankala, usually with smaller chapels to Vashanka and Sabellia. Great temples are in all the major cities of the empire, along with subsidiary temples to Sabellia and Vashanka. Until the coming of Kadakithis, Sanctuary had only a minor temple, but Molin Torchholder's new edifice is considered a major temple due to the increased worship of the victorious Savankala and his wife and son.

Each temple has a high priest, plus representatives of the three cults in subsidiary positions. These are known respectively as the Eye of Savankala, the Heart of Sabellia, and the Fist of Vashanka. They act as an advisory council for the high priest, representing in microcosm the actual power relationships of the pantheon.

The center of Savankala's power is in the imperial city of Ranke itself.

Initiates

Nobles, scholars, and members of the burgeoning middle class may join Savankala's worship. Ordinary women can worship his spouse, Sabellia. Soldiers become initiates to Vashanka.

Membership is automatic, for members of the Rankan nobility. Other candidates must pass the usual test. Skills tested are: Evaluate, Human Lore, Orate, Speak Rankan. Members of the lower class may not join under any circumstances.

Initiates can receive the spirit magic of Glamour,* Farsee,* Light,* Lightwall,* and the extra-standard spells Detect Enemies* and Mindspeech.*

Priests

Priests of Savankala are chosen for their dedication to the political purposes of the cult. Piety is a secondary consideration.

The highest-ranking priests are raised from the children conceived by the representatives of Vashanka and Azyuna during the yearly celebration of the Ten-Slaying. Such children are carefully raised within the temples and thought to hold more innate knowledge of the gods than mere mortals. The son conceived during the recent celebration in Sanctuary is thought to be the only remnant of Vashanka on this plane.

Priests of the cult can learn all Common/Standard divine magic spells, Command (eagle, hawk) and Shield, and the extra-standard spells Cloud Clear and Sunspear.

Sub-Cults

Alestina Ever-Virgin: This little known martyr to celibate womanhood is an avatar of Sabellia as untouched virgin. She is deserving of separate chapel facilities in Sanctuary but has little power or importance within the cult.

Azyuna: The well-known but little-worshiped daughter of Savankala and unwilling mate of Vashanka. She embodies the passion of betrayal and is constantly blamed when treason or infidelity is in the air. She is called the matron of adulterers and whores, but such transgressors usually call upon her more benign mother, Sabellia.

Niko

Sabellia: Sabellia is the Mother of Stars and the healer goddess. Her priestesses are usually part of the Savankala temple. Rarely do men become priests of Sabellia.

Sabellia requires ability with the skills of Animal Lore, First Aid, Human Lore, and Plant Lore.

Her cult teaches the spirit magic spells of Heal, Second Sight,* and Vigor.*

Sabellia's cult also teaches the divine magic spell of Heal Body, and the extra-standard spells Restore Health (STR)* and Regrow Limb.

Science: Science is the title of a spirit in the service of Savankala, lord of knowledge. His main function seems to be to encourage his followers to take things apart to see how they work. The results of these investigations may prompt Ranke's pre-eminence in the world, but most of the followers of this sub-cult are reclusive men who pursue their smelly and often distasteful investigations outside the immediate view of the surrounding populace.

Worshippers of Savankala who wish to follow science must demonstrate their knowledge of the craft or lore they are pursuing. Once a follower, the scientist, as he is called, must spend his every waking hour in pursuit of his particular obsession.

The only benefit accruing to a scientist is the satisfaction of adding to the store of the Empire's knowledge. Rare members of the profession have been honored for their contributions, but most have been laughed at for their pains, and the honors for their every achievement stolen by appreciative priests and nobles. Still, the quest for knowledge is the important thing, and they pursue it to their dying days.

Vashanka

Vashanka Ten-Slayer is the war god and storm god of the Rankans, the dutiful son who foiled the plot of his siblings to slay their parents and who in revenge slew ten of them, all but his sister Azyuna. His is the main associate cult to that of Savankala's.

He is called capricious and hungry, even by his own priests. Sages say also that the signs show that he is dead, though his temple priests refuse to address these rumors.

Vashanka has long been the wargod of the Rankan empire and credited with their long string of victories. His symbol is the tent peg with which he is said to have slain his siblings.

The Cult In The World

His worship is powerful because of the might of the Rankan military, but except for a few warrior-priests, his worship is handled by priests within the Savankala temple system.

Some philosophers say that Savankala has turned over the duties of his godhood to Vashanka, which is why Ranke has been so expansionistic over the last few centuries. There is no way to know the truth of this.

Vashanka has few priests dedicated to him alone, but many warrior-initiates.

Initiates and Priests

Any soldier who is ready to follow the bloodthirsty ways of Vashanka may become an initiate. Certain regiments, such as the fabled Stepsons, are made up entirely of initiates of Vashanka.

It is possible to retire as a soldier and remain an initiate by taking up the duties of a priest in the small but militant Vashanka hierarchy within the Savankala temples. Otherwise, retired soldiers usually lessen worship of the son to concentrate on the father.

Skills expected of and taught to initiates and priests of Vashanka include weapon attacks and parries, Jump, Search, and Scan.

Spirit magic spells taught to initiates and priests of Vashanka include Bladesharp, Demoralize, and Protection, and the extra-standard spells Mobility* and Strength.*

Divine magic spells taught to initiates and priests of Vashanka include Berserk, Lightning, and True (weapon), and the extra-standard spells Cloud Call and Thunderbolt. ●

Gods Of The Ilsigi

The gods of the Ilsigi were firmly established many centuries before Ranke became a kingdom, much less an empire. Over this time worship of the two progenitors of the gods split into a man's religion and a woman's religion, though the division is not so firm that a woman cannot worship Ils, or a man worship Anen or Thili.

Despite the many gods involved in the pantheon, and the number of temples erected or dedicated to each of the gods, the actual worship divides into branches — the knowledge-trickster-ruler worship of Ils, and the earth-goddess worship of Shipri.

Ils

The legends of Ils the Thousand-Eyed treat him as a trickster and a god of knowledge, ruling men and gods not by right of his strong arm but by the keenness of his intellect. He is not directly connected with the sky, either as a sun or storm god, though his visage is said to radiate light. Instead, he deals with the relationships between humans and their land.

Cult Ecology

As the Ilsigi god of wisdom and knowledge, Ils serves as the focus of resistance to the claims of Savankala. The gods are definitely present in Sanctuary, and Ils has many worshippers who refuse to believe in the finality of the Rankan conquest. The recent slaying of Vashanka by Ils' pawn, Hanse, shows they may be right.

Ils' legendary enemy is Gundr, whom he eliminated as a threat to his rule. The Rankan pantheon is now his opponent, though he has been quoted as calling Savankala "brother," and Vashanka "nephew." He abides until his machinations bear fruit. His son, Him Whom We Do Not Name, is called upon in times of war, but Ils prefers to win wars through indirection, an example his followers were unable to follow successfully against Ranke.

The Cult In The World

The conquest of the Ilsig Kingdom by the Rankan Empire left Ils the head god of a conquered people. Realizing that Ils and his pantheon still exist, and should not be provoked, the Rankans extol the virtues of their conquest and hope to convert enough Ilsigi that the worship and power of IIs and his pantheon decline.

The high priests of each temple are the spokesmen of the IIsigi people, now that the royal family of IIsig has been killed or driven underground. As the ruling deity of the conquered IIsig kingdom, IIs has no influence outside that geographical area.

Only the High Temple in IIsig itself is a Great Temple. The Main Temple in Sanctuary on Temple Row is a Major Temple, and there are no longer any other temples to IIs in Sanctuary, though shrines to his various children abound in the city.

Temple organization is a simple patriarchy, with the Archpriest in charge and half-dozen subordinate priests handling particular functions. In Sanctuary, the Archpriest is the senile Gordonesh, and his functionaries run the temple.

Since the destruction of the kingdom, no center of power for the worship of IIs exists.

Initiates

Initiates of IIs must be members of the IIsigi nobility or children of priests. The young candidate must be sponsored by a priest, which can be promoted by a parent paying a priest to act as sponsor.

An IIs initiate is in training to become a priest. IIs demands a 30% tithe of time and money. Outside duties are usually tied to the mundane maintenance of the temple. For instance, a woodcarver might spend the non-temple portion of his time carving holy items for sale to pilgrims.

In return, an initiate receives free board and room and is party to something important. Initiates have the opportunity to become priests and take a place of political power. (This power has been largely theoretical since the Rankan conquest, but the priests and their initiates keep in practice.)

Initiates must have skills of 50% or more with five of the following: Conceal, Dodge, Evaluate, Fast Talk, Human Lore, Orate, Sleight, Speak Own Language.

Standard spirit spells taught to initiates include Demoralize and Disruption, and the extra-standard spells of Detect Enemies,* Glamour,* Mindspeech,* and Shimmer.*

All Common/Standard divine magic spells are available to initiates, except for the cult secret spell, Command Sikkintair.

The ritual for crossing to the plane of Sikkintairs is always kept from mere initiates.

Priests

The priests of IIs are former initiates of IIs or the cults of his sons who excel in the IIs cult skills. They have no particular restrictions not common to all RuneQuest priests. One benefit of the status can be the chance to learn the ways of Sikkintairs.

Any initiate of the sons who wishes to be a priest has revealed to him the essential oneness of IIs with his sons, and becomes a priest of IIs, even though he may preside over a shrine to one of his sons.

All Common/Standard divine magic spells are available to priests, as well as Shield, Reflection,* all Illusions, and the cult secret spell, Command Sikkintair.

Sub-Cults

Thufir the Farseeing, Friend of Sikkintairs: Thufir is the aspect of IIs as god of travel, trade, and pilgrims. Like all sub-cults; Thufir usually has his own temple, as well as being worshiped in the IIs temples. His sign is the sign of the sandal, often nailed up beside doorways as a sign of good luck.

Initiates in this cult must be proficient in Fast Talk, a Craft, Evaluate, Human Lore, and World Lore.

Worshippers in this sub-cult can learn the extra-standard spirit spells of Detect Enemies,* Farsee,* Glamour,* and Mobility.*

Shalpa, God of Thieves: Shalpa is the personification of IIs as Trickster. Most IIsigi do not realize they worship IIs by worshipping this son, which is just the way IIs wants it.

Initiation into this sub-cult is an elaborate ritual, and serves as an induction into a brotherhood of thieves. This brotherhood acts more as a professional society than guild, and has no real control of its membership. Most thieves worship Shalpa, but do not become initiates. Initiates into this cult must be proficient in the skills of Conceal, Dodge, Evaluate, Hide, and Sleight. They add to their revenues by training others in these skills.

Spirit spells available are Befuddle, Demoralize, Shimmer,* and Slow.*

Him Whom We Do Not Name: When war is upon them, the IIsigi call on the nameless one for strength and vigor and skill with weapons. He is the god of soldiers and warfare, and his visage is said to be both unbearable to look upon and the same as every mercenary who ever lifted a sword for pay.

The harsh-featured one has little glory among the long-civilized IIsigi, which may account for their inability to withstand the younger, war-loving Rankans.

Worshippers who wish to become initiates into this anonymous cult must display proficiency with Climb, a melee weapon attack and parry, Scan, and either a missile weapon or Ride.

Initiates are taught Bladesharp, Demoralize, Mobility,* and Protection.

Sikkintairs: Sikkintairs are worshiped as demi-god creatures who accompany IIs. Testimony indicates they are both that and creatures who inhabit another dimension which the priests of IIs have learned to enter.

The creatures are treated as a sub-cult of the god, though cynical priests eventually deduce that they are simply beasts from another place whom IIs' priests have the secret of controlling.

Initiates of the Sikkintair are taught the Spirit Spell of Farsee,* and the Sikkintair is thought to be the source of that spell for IIs.

Associated Cult: Shipri All-Mother

The Earth Mother, Shipri is also the wife of IIs. She is the healer and nurturer. Most of their children are actually part of her pantheon, not IIs'. From Shipri, IIs gains the spell of Restore Health (INT).*

Shipri

Shipri All-Mother is the daughter of Gundr, a god defeated by IIs early in his career and who was then exiled to live beneath the mountains the Mountain Men call the Gunderpah. Shipri bore IIs the rest of the IIs pantheon and in time he made her his official consort. She is the patron of all mothers, with special feeling for those forced into motherhood out of wedlock. Now she is known as the All-Mother.

Shipri is the earth goddess, the font of fertility for all the pantheon. Without her there would be no growing things and no living earth.

Shipri is usually worshiped in the same place as IIs though, unlike Sabellia (whose hierarchy is subservient to Savankala's), Shipri is supported by an entirely separate hierarchy. The chief representative of the mother is subservient to the archpriest of IIs, but in all other ways their organizations are separate.

Initiates

Initiation into the hierarchy of Shipri herself, rather than the specialized initiation of her progeny, calls for proficiency in Ceremony, First Aid, Human Lore, Plant Lore, and Search.

Initiates must serve the temple full time and immerse themselves into the temple, acting as the workforce that makes the temple operate. Spirit spells taught to initiates include Heal, Second Sight,* and Strength.*

Priests

Priests of Shipri may be either male or female initiates, though most are female. Entry into the priesthood depends on the quality of their service as initiates and their piety. Initiates with political ambitions either within the temple or without are transferred to the IIs hierarchy as soon as they are identified.

Priests are obligated to succor the ill and aid the helpless. How well they fulfill these obligations varies from temple to temple.

Her priests have access to all Common/Standard divine spells. Special divine spells include Command (beasts of the field), Heal Body, and Restore Health (Any).*

Sub-Cults

The sub-cults of Shipri are those of her various progeny. Just as Thufir, Shalpa, and Him Whom We Do Not Name portray aspects of their father, the manipulator, so Anen, Eshi, Thili, and Theba portray aspects of their mother, the nurturer.

Anen, God of Grain and Beer: Almost unique among pantheons, the IIsig divinity of agriculture is male. As well as being the god of farmers, he is also the patron of drunkards and cuckolded husbands. Anen is portrayed as a paunchy, red-nosed imbibor whose constant jollity is overlaid with the continual sorrow of yearly death and rebirth.

Initiates of Anen must display ability with Animal Lore, Ceremony, Craft Wood or Craft Brewing, Plant Lore, and Search.

Initiates are also those drawn upon to supply the yearly sacrifice of Anen to keep the crops in their cycles. Usually, this is simply a worship ceremony which does not involve the actual death of the initiate. He or she is made "dead in the eyes of the goddess," given a new name, and consigned to work in the basements of the temple until the spring ceremonies where he is reborn back to his former name.

Since the defeat of the IIsig kingdom, rumors state that the sacrifices have become real again, in an attempt to redeem the IIsig in the eyes of Anen and thus appease his parents. IIsig priests claim the rumors have been started by Rankans.

Spirit magic taught to an Anen initiate includes Heal, Second Sight,* and Vigor.*

Eshi, Goddess of Earthly Love: Eshi is the goddess of sensuality and beauty. Her mate is Anen, and stories of her infidelities while her husband lies in drunken stupor appear throughout the legends of the pantheon.

Where Thili is the goddess of matrons and wedded bliss, Eshi deals with carnal love and is worshiped by the seducer and cuckold. She is well-thought-of by residents of Sanctuary, who consider her tricks and peccadilloes just another aspect of her trickster father.

Initiates of Eshi are expected to be proficient in the skills of Ceremony, Craft/Carnal Sex, Craft/Courtesan Sex, Human Lore, and Sing. Most initiates are older women who are dedicated to the philosophies of their craft and find meaning in the embrace of the goddess.

Initiates are given the spirit spells of Endurance,* Glamour,* and Vigor.*

Thili, Goddess of the Hearth: Where Eshi is the goddess of sensual delights, her sister Thili is the goddess of the delights of marriage and the hearth. Thili is not so much worshiped in Sanctuary as she is in other, more staid areas of the former IIsig kingdom. It is common for women to ostensibly shift their worship from Eshi to Thili, however much their hearts may stay with the less decorous sister. Initiates of Thili are always matrons. They are expected to be proficient in Ceremony, Craft/Cooking, Fast Talk (which they use for bargaining with merchants), First Aid, and Human Lore.

Initiates can acquire the spirit spells of Glamour,* Heal, Second Sight,* and Strength.*

Initiates who are widows or divorced often become priestesses of Shipri's Thili sub-cult.

Theba, Goddess of Lost Causes: Worship of Theba is for the downtrodden and destitute. Like her mate, Shalpa, she is considered a last recourse in the face of adversity. Where Shalpa preaches retribution through theft, Theba promotes acceptance and worldly gain through right living.

Significantly, in Sanctuary, Shalpa is well-liked and well-respected, while Theba is the god of slaves and the dregs who cannot fight back by any means. This may carry over from the days the city was established, when runaway slaves and gladiators took the path of Shalpa's rebelliousness and repudiated Theba's accommodating ways.

Initiates of Theba are expected to have proficiency in Ceremony, any Craft, Devise, Listen, and Search. They gain the benefit of company in their misery and a position of importance within the cult, much as the member of an obscure club may gain status among his peers by taking on an office within the organization.

Initiates can obtain the spirit spells Endurance,* Heal, Mobility,* and Vigor.*

Associated Cult: IIs, All-Father

As spouse to Shipri, IIs is the main associated cult of the Earth Mother. From her spouse she gains the spell of Reflection.* ●

The Outsider Gods

In the by-ways of Sanctuary lurk presences of the outland gods, gods and goddesses who are not part of the ongoing IIsig/Rankan struggle and who serve few members. Worshipers either brought such faiths with them to Sanctuary, or want to circumvent the obvious paths to spiritual power in Sanctuary.

While these gods may be powerful in their home lands, in Sanctuary most of them (with the obvious exception of the Blue Star) are minor godlings, hanging at the edge of the spiritual banquet and begging for scraps of worship.

Dyareela

Dyareela was born of waste and despair. She found power by fulfilling the wishes of those who wished to see others laid low. Even now, Dyareela is the god of the despairing who seek power at the expense of others. However, like those who worship her, her main motivation is not to elevate herself to the standards of the main gods of the world, but to lower all others to her state.

Her particular enemy is Heqt, the replenisher. Dyareela has no friends. Like any secretive cult, there are no known centers of power or holy places. Certain devastated places are thought held holy by her worshipers, but followers caught worshipping there can expect quick execution from the adherents of the gods of life and plenty.

Dyareela is a secretive goddess. Her followers erect their temples in places like The Maze of Sanctuary, where the representatives of law and rationality dare not go. Because she appeals to the envy and power-lust of the lowest sort of humanity, her worship has spread beyond any national pantheon such as that of IIs or Savankala. However, no nation officially worships or welcomes this religion within its borders.

Temples never get beyond Minor Temple size, and those only in the largest cities. In Sanctuary there have been several Shrines built, but the number of worshipers has never climbed to Temple size. Generally, a lone priest who has managed to carefully hide his profession is the only functionary at such a shrine, living off the meager contributions of other followers.

Initiates

Becoming an initiate is simple: come, worship, and Dyareela will take you. Remaining an initiate depends on the worshiper's willingness to follow the dictates of the priest.

The benefits of initiation depend on the worshiper's need for secret power and knowledge. Any initiate of the cult is already convinced that he or she deserves secret power, and certainly craves cataclysmic revenge on all enemies.

Skills encouraged in Dyareela initiates include Conceal, Dodge, Fast Talk, Hide, Listen, Sleight, and Sneak.

Spirit magic spells available to Dyareela's priests are Demoralize and Disruption, and the extra-standard spells Shimmer* and Silence.

Priests

Charismatic deceivers, many of Dyareela's priests never give a point of POW to her, preferring to maintain and increase personal POW, and depending on charisma and subterfuge to maintain control of the worshipers. Her priests have the benefit of being priests of an outlaw goddess — those who come to worship must already sacrifice to even associate with co-religionists. Further hardship at the demand of their priest is small burden to shoulder in the face of the hostility of the rest of the world.

The sole common divine magic spell for this cult is Worship Dyareela;* special divine magic includes Command (fear spirit, madness spirit, pain spirit, snake), all Illusions, and Madness.

Heqt

Toad-headed Heqt is the eternal opponent of Dyareela. She is the sustainer and preserver, constantly battling to reclaim the devastated wastes that Dyareela relishes.

As long as the people of Cirdon (a conquered province of the Rankan Empire) need an earth goddess to sustain them, they will worship Heqt.

Heqt shields them against the ever-encroaching desert represented by Dyareela. The Waster, as Dyareela is known, is a goddess of evil known throughout the empire, not just in Cirdon, and Heqt has been worshipped as a champion against Dyareela in more places than Cirdon.

Heqt should not be confused with agricultural gods such as Anen. She is a representation of the fecund earth, defiant of any assault on mankind.

The state religions of the Empire have curtailed Heqt worship while subsuming some of her functions. Only in Cirdon do noble houses actively worship her.

Temples to Heqt are scattered throughout the Rankan Empire, as the Empire does not discourage worship of Heqt. However, except in Cirdon, the temples are usually in slum areas and do not attract large congregations. None are larger than small Temples except in Cirdon.

Usually there is a priest and a few initiates at a Heqt Temple, doing their best to help the downtrodden of the slum in which they live.

Initiates

Initiates of Heqt are usually from Cirdonian noble houses or priestly families. As appropriate for a fertility goddess, there are no celibacy requirements for members.

Initiates of Heqt receive knowledge of the growing world and the ways of the Destroyer. They are committed to destroying the ploys of Dyareela wherever they are found.

Skills encouraged in Heqt initiates include Animal Lore, Climb, Mineral Lore, Plant Lore, Track, and World Lore.

Spirit magic spells taught to Heqt initiates include Heal and Speedart, and the extra-standard spells Second Sight,* Strength,* and Vigor.*

Priests

Priests of Heqt must foster the health and growth of their parishioners and fight the influence of Dyareela wherever they may find it. The restrictions to her priests are found in most other religions.

The principle benefit for becoming a priest of Heqt is the ability to sense the presence of the works of Dyareela wherever they may be.

Divine magic spells of Heqt include Command (toad, snake, vulture, dog), and the extra-standard spells Restore Health (any characteristic but APP),* Sureshot, and Worship (Heqt).*

Weda Krishtawn

Weda Krishtawn, goddess of the sea, is the principal deity of the island of Sherranpip. Sherranpip is the ruling isle of an archipelago many leagues to the south and east of Sanctuary. Her people credit Weda Krishtawn with taming the seas and teaching them how to use boats and how to fish.

Because Weda Krishtawn tames the seas which sustain Sherranpip, she is pre-eminent among the gods of the archipelago. While Weda Krishtawn is little known outside her archipelago, there she is both ruler and sea goddess.

In Sherranpip is a Great Temple to the goddess, and every island of the archipelago has either a Major or Small temple. Most other gods of the people of Sherranpip have been subsumed into the worship of Weda Krishtawn.

The worship of Weda Krishtawn is ancient. Over the years it has built up an immense hierarchy and established rituals to govern every aspect of temple life.

It is rumored in Sherranpip that the high priests of the goddess also practice sorcery.

Initiates

Initiation into the worship of Weda Krishtawn is available to anyone who lives in the archipelago. Initiates must be willing to give a tenth of their time and income to the temple. Selected initiates may serve the Temple full time.

Initiates must be proficient in five of the following skills: Boat, Craft/Wood, Evaluate, First Aid, Human Lore, Orate, Speak Own Language, Swim, World Lore.

Spirit magic spells taught to initiates include Protection, and the extra-standard spells Coordination, Strength,* and Vigor.*

Priests

Priests of Weda Krishtawn are politicians as well as spiritual advisers and magicians. Ability with the communication skills above is as good a road for advancement to priest as knowledge of the goddess's powers or history.

Priests of the goddess must never bathe except in the sacred waters of Weda Krishtawn. Because of the life-sustaining qualities of butter, priests are allowed to coat themselves in that substance if they are away from the holy waters.

Divine magic spells obtainable by the goddess's priests include all Common/Standard spells, Command (Specific Sea Creature), and the extra-standard spells Breathe Air/Water,* Float, and Worship (Weda Krishtawn).*

Blue Star

The Blue Star is the perfect embodiment of Law against Chaos. It may once have been an actual god, but its purpose has become abstract and it does not manifest itself in the world save through its representatives.

Blue Star ritual tells of an ancient pact of all the anti-Chaos gods who chose one of their number to be the bulwark against Chaos, and gave him access to all of their magics. In exchange, he lost all identity of his own.

The Blue Star exists solely to fight Chaos when the world comes to an end. It has one center of power, The Place That Is Not, a seemingly extra-dimensional point which any member of the cult may reach spiritually by simply contemplating his or her sigil. The Place That Is Not is also called the Temple of the Star-Sharers.

Members of the order of the Blue Star may regain their divine magics by such spiritual visits.

The Blue Star is not truly known to the rest of the world. The rest of the world sees its members as an order of wizards of great power, not realizing that its members tap into a godlike source for their magics.

The order is apolitical. Since the "god" has no temporal function, there is no barrier to members learning sorcery as well as divine and spirit magic.

Initiates

Initiates are selected by members of the order and given the choice of belonging. If they choose not to, their memories of the invitations are erased. If they choose to learn, they are taken to the Temple of the Star-Sharers for a century of training in both the rituals of the Blue Star and in sorcery, and in various useful skills, both combat and craft.

To be invited, initiates must display proficiency in one weapon attack and parry, Ceremony, World Lore, and any two other skills.

It is possible to leave the order after the initiate period is over, but this is arduous and the initiate loses all ability to learn the Blue Star's store of divine magic. Tempus and Cime are two who made the break, and each did so only to fall under the sway of a harsher master.

Priests

The priests of the Blue Star are rarely called priests and never function as priests. As long as they follow their geases and preserve their secrets, they maintain their powers. The only worship ceremonies they ever lead are when they are on their occasional (perhaps one year out of a century) tours of duty in the Temple of the Star-Sharers.

By ancient pact, priests of the Blue Star have access to all of the special spirit and divine spells of all non-Chaos gods. In addition, they have access to other magics not among the normal run of divine spells, some of which are described in the description of Lythande in the original Thieves' World scenario pack. They are also encouraged to learn sorcery. ●

Spirit Magic (95%): Countermagic 4, Demoralize (2), Dispel Magic 4, Speedart.

Divine Magic: Tempus has erratic support from the god Vashanka, for whom he is an agent and sometimes avatar. This support has been totally in abeyance since the recent banishment of Vashanka. When this support is available, Tempus has the use of any Divine spell available to Vashanka cast without a chance of failure and without sacrifice from Tempus.

Sorcery: Damage Boosting 84%. Tempus has forgotten most of the sorcery he once learned, but his sword is enchanted to always have a Divine Truesword and also has a Damage Boosting Intensity 6 matrix.

Magic Items: besides his sword, he also has cuirbouilli armor enchanted to be worth 9 armor points with an Armorer enchantment.

Treasure: none personally, but he can command large amounts if he needs to.

Notes: Tempus still possesses two gifts from Vashanka, the ability to regenerate hit points and the ability to cast an illusion over himself to appear as someone else. Neither power costs him any magic points.

* When Vashanka is present on this plane and favoring Tempus, he can regenerate one hit point in each location damaged each melee round. With Vashanka gone (and during periods in which Vashanka is not favoring him), he regenerates 1 hit point from a random hit point each full turn.

Treasure: probably his stash contains scores of soldats.

Notes: Dubro's anvil is set up in the Bazaar next to Illyra's divination booth. One wonders at a fortune teller's set up next to an anvil; there must be some sort of magical silencing, or at least the heartfelt desire that some could be provided. Dubro is a competent blacksmith who has not escaped involvement with the gods of Sanctuary.

Lalo

Treasure: though he is more mysterious than wealthy, still it may be assumed that Enas Yorl and his servant and "pets" will never starve. Probably has a reserve of thousands of soldats.

Notes: Enas Yorl has been cursed. His physical form changes constantly, and so his STR, CON, SIZ, DEX, APP, form, features, sex, and voice can change at any time without notice.

Spirit Magic (68%): Befuddle (2), Coordination 4, Heal 2, Shimmer 2, Silence 2. Hanse is an agent of IIs through the aspect of Shalpa the Swift.

Skills: Climb 84%, Conceal 88%, Devise 56%, Evaluate 85%, Hide 74%, Human Lore 35%, Listen 47%, Orate 25%, Scan 57%, Search 62%, Sleight 58%, Sneak 85%, Throw 52%.

Languages: Speak Ranke 19%, R/W Ranke 9%, Speak IIsig 43%, R/W IIsig 21%.

Magic Items: a set of enchanted armor and a magic helm and shield which he does not normally wear.

Treasure: never rich, he does have a cash reserve of precious metal hidden in a well on an abandoned estate outside of town. Normally Hanse can't get to this money, so he lives a hand-to-mouth or hand-to-other's-purse existence.

Notes: Hanse started as typical Maze scum, a youngster with an ego as big as his body. Hanse is skillful, and his reputation has preceded him. He has recently become a pawn in the struggle of IIs against the invading Rankan gods. Recently the Stepsons trained Hanse in bastard sword and shield.

Notes: An immortality spell protects her body. Ischade has a reputation as a vampire, but this is not technically true. She came to Sanctuary because she felt that her personal tastes in lifestyle would be less unappreciated there than in other climes. She has a long-standing rivalry with the witch Roxane. Ischade is enthusiastic about fire and flame-based magic.

Treasure: rumor holds that Jubal's storerooms hold wealth rivaling the Prince's.

Notes: the statistics for Jubal are his before he suffered his crippling wounds and the dispersal of his gang. Jubal regained the use of his legs through therapeutic magic, but his eagerness to heal led him to overdose with a powerful potion, which prematurely aged him. Treasure: Kurd has the modest noble living of a Rankan lordling. Most of his ready capital has been invested in curious instruments of scientific inquiry.

Notes: Kurd is a vivisectionist, an initiate of the Scientist sub-cult of Savankala, and is determined to extend the limits of anatomical knowledge without benefit of cadavers. When Hanse rescued Tempus from Kurd's laboratories, Kurd was tied up and left to die, but his corpse was never recovered, so Kurd may yet live.

Spirit Magic (88%): Coordination 2, Demoralize (2), Heal 1.

Divine Magic (98%): Representational Animation (3 POW per SIZ animated). This magic requires that the caster first make a drawing of that which is to be created. Then divine power is invoked to transform the image into an actual living, breathing, eating creature which wanders off into the world to fulfill its own peculiar nature. For the time being, IIs and his cohorts provide Lalo with all necessary POW for the spell.

Sorcery Magic: Inner Perception 91%, a peculiar spell known to Enas Yorl. This spell enables the caster to derive the essential nature of another person despite attempts at disguise, magical alterations of form, etc. Yorl taught the spell to Lalo with exotic magical methods. For Lalo, the spells works only if he is making an artistic representation of a subject.

Notes: Lastel is a rich Rankan nobleman whose unusual ambitions led him to establish himself as a figure in the low life of Sanctuary. While Lastel doubtless considers himself equal to The Maze's challenges, the slum has eaten him alive, as slums have overwhelmed their residents in other times and places. Probably it is fairest to say that Lastel has simply found his own level as One-Thumb, owner of the Vulgar Unicorn.

At one time, Lastel hired Mizraith to protect him against assassins by casting a spell such that anyone killing Lastel would live forever in agony. Through another spell, somebody transported Lastel to the Spirit Plane, where he would up killing himself, thus triggering the eternal agony. Eventually, the spell ended (with Mizraith's death?), but Lastel is now a shadow of his former self, with a POW reduced to 5.

Magic Items: Cime's diamond rods. These two rods are very important to her, and are probably her only important possession. One, when touched to the skin, clothing, or armor of another person, automatically lowers the target's POW by 1D6 (no resistance is possible). The other acts as an always-on divine magic Absorption 5. Each rod also acts as a matrix for all the spells that Cime knows.

Treasure: for such a powerful woman, she has amazingly little riches. She often owns no more than the admittedly costly clothes and jewels on her body.

Notes: Cime has a dangerous reason for life —the orderly extermination of sorcerers. Since she is a harlot, access to the mostly male Rankan sorcerer class is easy, and she has wrought havoc.

Treasure: comfortable at home, and with resources in Sanctuary. Probably Jamie either had a remittance payable through the Prince's palace, or stashed some money outside of town. Jamie can raise hundreds of soldats at a moment's notice.

Notes: Jamie and Cappen Varra were inseparable during the first books, and now have seemingly left town indefinitely. Sanctuary is duller and grayer without them.

Magic Items: she belongs to the mystical order of the Blue Star, and keeps all her spirit and sorcery spells on matrices.

Treasure: she does not own property, nor does this interesting person have an obvious source of income. Nonetheless, Lythande probably could command hundreds of soldats at a moment's notice.

Notes: she left Sanctuary in the company of some demi-humans, and has been seen only occasionally since then. She has received Immortality spells from an early age.

Magic Items: possibly has access to secret clan magic usable in an emergency, probably including something interesting in the way of a Command Sea Monster matrix.

Treasure: Monkel is the elder of a smallish clan whose wealth is tied up in its working capital, the boats and equipment of the fishing fleet. The fleet probably makes sales of about 50,000 soldats a month in the Sanctuary marketplace, and Monkel commands a tithe of this, plus what his own ship earns.

Notes: Monkel is an acolyte in the Beysib religion, and is as able in practical matters as his opposite number, Shupansea, but his skills are definitely not political in nature, and he lacks the sage advice available to his betters.

Sorcery Spells (free INT 19): knows all common sorcery spells at 75+1D20%. He knows Shapechange Human to several varieties of ferocious animals at 80+%, and combines this with Enhance or Diminish SIZ. He specializes in shape-shifting magic, using such spells as Shapechange Human to Bear, Hound, or Mongoose on himself, adding suitable protection, damage enhancement, and anti-magic spells, and wading into physical combat. His Bite and Claw skills are listed above.

Treasure: Randal seems to be on a mission in Sanctuary. If he has a permanent home, it is elsewhere, perhaps in the Westwall. He bunks at the Hazard Mages' Guild Hall, and apparently lives off a stipend from the Stepsons.

Notes: Randal has been imported into Sanctuary by forces friendly to the Stepsons, with whom he serves from time to time.

Magic Items: a collection of foci for most of her spells. Also has minor and major spirit and magic point matrices.

Treasure: Roxane has access to large quantities of money.

Notes: Roxane is one of the infamous Nisibisi witches involved with the mysterious Mygdonians and the war with Ranke in the Westwall Mountains. Roxane has established herself in Sanctuary for some of the same reasons as has Ischade, but also intends to take dark actions against the Rankan Empire. Roxane's magic seems to be a combination of undead creation and weather control.

Middle Earth / Rolemaster Stats

Middle-Earth Role Playing (MERP) and Rolemaster (RM) are related game systems. In a sense, MERP is an introductory version of Rolemaster tailored for J.R.R. Tolkien's world of Middle Earth. The games are essentially compatible.

Rolemaster is particularly well-suited to adventures in Sanctuary. Unlike most roleplaying guidelines, including MERP, Rolemaster is a truly generic system, not based on any one setting or particular collection of races. Alignments, racial bonuses, and cultural baggage are absent from basic Rolemaster rules.

Instead, Rolemaster assumes that the GM will use his own world as a setting. Sanctuary is one of many such settings and is one of the better spots in which to run a wide-open series of Rolemaster adventures. After all, Sanctuary's characters have professions, often use magic, and frequently employ discernable skills. Fighting is a fact of daily life and the culture provides for plenty of creative leeway.

The MERP system is quite adaptable to Sanctuary adventures, although MERP is more restrictive than Rolemaster. Many Sanctuary characters, for instance, are rated above 10th level, the limit to MERP character progression. Although MERP permits high-level non-player-characters (NPCs) to interact with the player-characters, the latter are necessarily restricted. Adventures involving powerful Sanctuary figures may be beyond the skills of a group which contains no player-character higher than 10th level.

MERP's character generation and character description guidelines are largely based on race, for they are couched in terms of Middle Earth. Since races in Sanctuary differ from those found in MERP, GMs need to ignore, modify, or draw analogies from racial types. As a simple rule of thumb, which I have used here, characterize all Sanctuary characters either as Common Men (in MERP terms, Urban Men or Rural Men) or High Men (MERP's Dunedain and Black Numenoreans). A GM can use these types when applying race bonuses (if such bonuses are desired).

After a GM addresses these concerns, using MERP in Sanctuary is rather simple. Specific religions and cultures, spells and items, politics and power, and of course plots can all be plugged in which relative ease, for although MERP is less flexible than Rolemaster, it is essentially an adaptable game system.

Explanation Of Character Descriptions

Due to space considerations, most statistics are abbreviated and some are listed under general headings. Following a character's name, the numbers represent in order the character's Experience Level (Lvl), Concussion Hits (Hits), Armor Type (AT), Defensive Bonus (DB), Shield (Sh), Greaves (Gr), Melee Offensive Bonus (Melee OB), Missile Offensive Bonus (Missile OB), Movement Maneuvers (Mov Man), and Notes. An asterisk (*) means that magic is involved (e.g., a magic shield or weapon).

AT — Armor Types are described in two ways. The two-letter abbreviation represents MERP ATs: No = none; SL = soft leather; RL = rigid leather; Ch = chain; Pl = plate. The number following the slash represents the equivalent Rolemaster ATs (e.g., 1 = none; 20 = full plate).

DB — Defensive Bonuses include stats and shield (if any).

Sh — "Y" indicates a character commonly bears a shield; "N" means no shield. The number following a Y indicates a quality bonus (e.g., Y10 = +10 shield).

Gr — "A" and "L" are used to indicate arm and leg greaves, respectively. A parenthetical reference indicates that there is some equivalent protection.

OB — OBs are divided into melee and missile categories. Weapon abbreviations follow OBs and represent favored weapons.

ba	battle axe	ml	mounted lance
bo	bola	qs	quarterstaff
bs	broadsword	pa	pole arm
cl	club	sb	short or horse bow
cp	composite bow	sc	scimitar
da	dagger	sl	sling
fa	falchion	sp	spear
ha	hand	ss	short sword
hb	halbard	th	two-hand sword
hcb	heavy crossbow	ts	throwing star
ja	javelin	wh	war hammer
lb	long bow	wm	war mattock
lcb	light cross bow	wp	whip
ma	mace

Animal and unarmed attacks are abbreviated with three-letter codes. The first letter represents size or magnitude of strike: H = Huge, L = Large, M = Medium, S = Small, and T = Tiny. The second and third letters represent the type of attack: Ba = bash (MERP Ra), bi = bite, Cl = claw, and Gr = grapple. When using MERP, consult table CST-1 in the MERP rules to determine a weapon's attack category. For MERP animal attack categories, use table CST-2.

NOTES — The statistics describe each type of combatant. The character's profession, race, age, and demeanor are provided. When two professions are listed, MERP professions precede the slash and Rolemaster professions follow the slash.

STATS — The stats given are drawn from Rolemaster. For MERP stats, use Re (Reasoning) for Intelligence (Ig).

SPELLS — The spell lists are drawn from Rolemaster. MERP equivalents are cited.

— PETE FENLON

Volumes 3-6

Of the non-player-characters appearing in the Thieves' World volumes Shadows of Sanctuary, Storm Season, The Face of Chaos, and Wings of Omen, I have chosen as significant of those troubled times the following characters:

Beysib Nobleman	Mor-am
Chenaya	Moria
Haught	Niko
Hort	Randal
Ischade	Roxane
Kama	Shupansea, The Beysa
Mradhon Vis	Stepson
Monkel Setmur	Zip

By most significant, I mean merely that they are the most likely to prompt or be involved in actual player-character fights and other interactions, leaving for walk-on parts those more retiring souls who settle matters by other than melee and magic.

These characters have been prepared with attention to local campaigns in which characters are called on to do many things besides fight; also, some of the characters from the stories have been seen as themselves not emphasizing the fighting arts, and have been constructed accordingly. This may not work so well for campaigns in which the player-characters draw steel at everything that moves. For these situations, gamemasters should reevaluate NPC fighting prowess in terms of their own standards, and adjust them accordingly without worrying about balance or the sum of development points. After all, NPCs are stage-props to be used, shaped, colored, and discarded as gamemasters need.

The tides of history have brought to Sanctuary two new peoples, the Beysib and the Nisibisi. These peoples are neither Common nor High men and women, nor are they elves or anything non-human. I have prepared new racial bonus tables for these peoples.

Beysib: ST = +10; EM = -5; SD = +5; Hit Dice are D10, Max Hits = 150. All else is as Common humans.

Cime

Nisibisi: QU = +5; IN = +5; CO = -5; Resistance Rolls Essence = +5; Channeling = +5; Mentalism = +5; Poison = -5; Disease = -5; Recovery = .8x. All else is as Common humans.

In regard to the spell lists, the selection for the magic-using NPCs is contrary to the strict interpretation of Spell Law. This was done deliberately for these later-book characters because the writers of the stories had the characters doing wierd, wild, and wonderful magic, and some of the spell lists were mangled together to provide the range of effects that the books say these sorcerers, etc., accomplished. This in no way licenses players to similarly equip with abandon their favorite power-spell users — it's just artistic license in order to lend later Sanctuary the elusive flavor of magic gone wild.

The new characters have been integrated with the characters from Thieves' World and Tales from the Vulgar Unicorn. All are listed in alphabetical order under the following scheme: "Prince and Officials" essentially covers the Rankan powers in Sanctuary; "Residents" includes most of the people who seem to have continued presence in Sanctuary or who have had specific residences; "Transients" includes the Beysib presence (though they certainly are more powerful than Kitty-Cat's meager retinue) and other folk without strong commitment to the city; "Generic Folk" includes a Beysib nobleman, a Hawkmask, a Hell Hound, and a Stepson; and "Gods and Extraplanar Beasts" includes a handful of useful beings.

Encounter Changes

The boxed Thieves' World adventure supplement includes complete Sanctuary encounter tables, based on the events of the first two books in the series. As a testament to the excellence of the work done by Midkemia Press, virtually all the tables are valid as they stand, even with Sanctuary in its currently-destabilized condition.

The rest of this article explains how to modify certain tables to reflect Beysib-era events.

No changes occur on the general city encounters table; changes suggested occur on specific encounters tables 1, 2, 6A, 7, 7G, 9A, 9B, 10, and 11.

Spells Appendix

BLESS CROPS, 1 Point — Ranged, Instant, Nonstackable, Reusable.

In the Spring, this spell is cast upon an area of ground equivalent to that which a farmer can plow in a day. It will guarantee a minimum return of an average year's harvest the following fall.

BREATH AIR/WATER, 2 Points — Ranged, Temporal, Nonstackable, Reusable.

Castable on air-breathers or water-breathers, for the duration it allows the target to breathe as if it was in its own element while in the other.

DARKWALL, 2 Points — Ranged, Temporal, Passive (Active to move the wall).

This spell can create a darkness 10 meters square in area and 10 centimeters thick. The Darkwall can be moved by the caster a rate of 1 meter per strike rank. Light sources within the darkness give no light nor can any sighted being see through. Other senses, such as sonar or other sound, are unaffected by this wall. A Darkwall can be moved or shaped into the height or width desired, so long as the total area is 10m square and the thickness is always 10cm.

DETECT ENEMIES, 1 Point — Ranged, Temporal, Active.

The caster must have some sort of fetish (a willow wand, a magnetic compass, a marble, etc.) that can guide him toward potential enemies. The fetish first guides the caster to the closest person within 100 meters who knowingly intends to harm him or her. The caster does not have to overcome the magic points of the target in order to find the target. If the spell is still in effect, it then guides the caster to the next closest enemies, and then the third closest, etc., for the duration of the spell. The sensing effect is stopped by one or more meters of dense substance such as stone, metal, or earth.

DISPEL MAGIC, Variable — Ranged, Instant.

This spell eliminates magic. One point of this spell removes one magic point's worth of spirit magic or sorcery spell; two points of this spell removes one magic point's worth of a divine magic spell. With sorcery spells, only the Intensity of the spell must be eliminated to destroy the spell. Thus to Dispel a Befuddle requires 2 points of Dispel; to Dispel a 1-point Shield requires 2 points; and to Dispel a Smother 4 with twice the range and duration would require 4 points. You cannot Dispel part of a spell.

When cast against a target without specifying any specific effect or target, the Dispel always first destroys defensive spells, beginning with the most powerful spell that it can affect. However, it may be cast against a specific spell if the caster thinks he or she can discern it.

ENDURANCE, Variable — Touch, Instant.

This spell adds to the stamina of the target. Each point cast adds 5 fatigue points to the target, up to the target's maximum (before subtracting any penalty for ENC). The Endurance spell has no effect on creatures that do not have or use fatigue.

EXTINGUISH, Variable — Ranged, Instant.

This spell puts out fires and flames, and cools hot materials to the ambient temperature. One point of Extinguish puts out a candle, torch, or lantern; two points put out a small campfire; three points eliminate a bonfire, etc.

FARSEE, Variable — Ranged, Temporal, Passive.

Each point of this spell halves the apparent distance as seen by the caster to the rest of the universe. The effect includes foreshortening of the field of vision, exactly as if a telephoto lens was used. If a particular target is specified, then the spell magnifies only the target, and the viewer's Search ability is increased by 5 percentiles for each magic point spent powering the spell.

FLOAT, 1 Point — Ranged, Temporal, Stackable, Reusable.

Each point of this spell lifts 100 kg to just below the surface of the water. Heavier objects will not float, though they will sink more slowly than they would if the spell had not been cast. Lighter objects will be raised to be about halfway out of the water, bobbing about.

GLAMOUR, Variable — Touch, Temporal, Passive.

Each point of the spell adds 2 APP points to the target for the duration. The target must possess APP to be affected. The appearance of the target does not alter, but the quality of the appearance increases, so that soon the perceiver is not reminded of the person whom he might otherwise recognize. Characters are recognizable only when within half of their previous total APP. Example: Ugly Frederick, APP 4, will be unrecognizable as himself after applying 2 points of Glamour; Gorgeous Arleen, APP 15, is still recognizable after applying 3 points of Glamour.

LIGHT, 1 Point — Ranged, Temporal, Passive.

This spell must be cast on some physical thing. A wand, fingertip, or wall will do. It will then light everything within a 10 meter radius from that point with a radiance good enough to read by, though not as full as daylight. This spell is not affected by Extinguish.

LIGHTWALL, 4 Points — Ranged, Temporal, Passive (Active to move wall).

This spell creates a wall of light which is 10 meters square by 10 centimeters thick. The wall presents a bright glare on one side which is visually impenetrable, while from the other side it can be seen through. Further, the glow illuminates 10 meters on all sides like a Light spell. It may be moved by the caster at a rate of 1 meter per strike rank, and it can be specified to take any form, provided it is always 10cm thick and contiguous.

MINDSPEECH, Variable — Ranged, Temporal, Passive.

This spell allows mind-to-mind communication, like mental telepathy. Each point of the spell allows one more person to be in contact with the caster. It will transmit only the thoughts intended for transmission by the caster. The thoughts to be transmitted must be whispered; receivers hear the message in their minds, in the language sent. Knowledge of spells and magic points cannot be transmitted. Mindspeech does not create an open link between the caster's communicants: though A casts the spell on B and C, B and C are not in contact.

MOBILITY, Variable — Ranged, Temporal, Passive.

Each point of this spell adds 1 meter of movement rate per strike rank for its duration. An adventurer under the effect of Mobility loses one additional fatigue point per each 3 points of this spell or fraction.

REGROW LIMB, 2 Points — Touch, Special Duration, Nonstackable, Reusable.

This spell regrows a severed or mangled limb. The gamemaster should roll D100 whenever a limb is lost. The result shows how much needs to be regrown, at the rate of 10% per game week if the spell is applied within 10 minutes of damage, lengthening to 10% per game-month thereafter. This spell does not heal damage, so that the regrown limb must naturally heal or be otherwise magically aided.

REFLECTION, 1 Point — Ranged, Temporal, Stackable, Reusable.

This spell reflects spells which fail to overcome the magic points of the protected being. The next strike rank, the reflected spell attacks its caster. The magic points of the reflected spell attack are equal to those that the original attacker launched. They are compared to the current magic points of the attacker (after the spell was cast) in a resistance contest. If the spell overcomes the attacker's magic points, he or she suffers reflection and his or her own spell's attack.

This spell reflects 2 points of spirit or sorcerous magic, or 1 point of divine magic per point of Reflection stacked in a single spell. The effects of Reflection do not occur if the incoming spell overcomes the magic points of the protected being.

RESTORE HEALTH, 1 Point — Touch, Instant, Stackable, One-Use.

This spell restores points of a characteristic that have been lost to disease or to the effects of Tapping, a sorcery spell. A cult in Sanctuary may have one or all of the versions. Versions for STR, CON, SIZ, INT, DEX, and APP exist. Restore Health does not cure any disease that may be present.

The spell restores 1 point of the particular characteristic, but only up to the amount the character had when first created.

SECOND SIGHT, 3 Points — Ranged, Temporal, Passive.

This spell allows a person to view the Power aura of living beings and to gauge its relative strength. This spell does not allow the user to view the spirit plane. Shamans naturally have this ability and do not need to expend magic points to use it.

The aura of all creatures within the spell's range will glow only to the caster. If there are a large number of creatures within range it will be difficult for the caster to determine the Power of each. Undead things do not glow this way, for they have no characteristic Power. The Power of enchanted items also is visible to users of this spell, though the magic points in spells are not.

The gamemaster should tell the player whether the Powers of the viewed creatures are much less than the Power of the user, within 5 points of it, or much greater than the user's. (A shaman will have a fetch; include the fetch's Power.) An adventurer can use the Second Sight spell to target spells and blows against enemies in the dark, so long as they possess Power. He will be unable to parry any blows received from that enemy.

Any heavy opaque surface — a thick woolen blanket, a wooden wall, etc. — blocks Second Sight.

SHIMMER, Variable — Ranged, Temporal, Passive.

This spell blurs and distorts the target's visual image, making it harder to hit with weapons. Each magic point powering the spell subtracts 5 percentiles from the skill of any enemy for purposes of attempting to hit the affected target.

SLOW, Variable — Ranged, Temporal, Passive.

This spell slows down an enemy at a rate of one meter/SR per point of spell. It may reduce the movement of a creature to zero. The creature loses fatigue points for its exertions in normal fashion.

A creature whose movement is reduced to zero may still move by increasing its movement rate by running, though a sufficiently powerful Slow spell immobilizes even a runner. This tactic also increases the target's fatigue point loss for the distance traveled, and will tire him out.

STRENGTH, Variable — Touch, Temporal, Passive.

Each cast of this spell adds 3 points of STR to the target for the spell's duration. The target must already possess the STR characteristic in order for the spell to work. This spell affects skills modifiers, damage done, and ENC for the duration of the spell. Although there is no limit to the stacking of this spell, a creature's STR never may be increased beyond twice its current, unadjusted STR.

VIGOR, Variable — Touch, Temporal, Passive.

Each cast of this spell adds 2 points to the CON of the target. The target must already possess CON in order for the spell to work. These extra points increase normal hit points for the spell's duration. Hit points per location probably will need refiguring. Although there is no limit to the stacking of this spell, a creature's current CON never may be adjusted to be greater than twice its current, unadjusted CON.

WORSHIP (God/Goddess), 1 Point — Nonstackable, Reusable.

This ritual spell allows a priest to lead a formal worship service to the deity specified. If this service is held on Sanctified ground or temple on a holy day of the god, then it will allow the priests a Power gain roll. If held on the High Holy Day of the deity, it allows all priests and initiates to attempt a Power gain roll.

Thieves' World Companion

The Thieves' World stories began in 1979, to instant acclaim. Not long after, Chaosium published a boxed Thieves' World roleplaying supplement which garnered awards and more acclaim. Since the first book hit the newstands, more than 2200 paperback pages and eight additional Thieves' World volumes have been printed—a phenomenon others imitate but cannot duplicate.

Sanctuary, the town too mean to die, has changed little from the time it first saw print, but many new characters now stride the city's streets, pillage the foolish in its alleys, and connive in its back rooms. Lalo, Ischade, Roxanne, Niko, Mradhon Vis, The Beysa, Chenaya, Zip, and many more have come to life, and are now included in the Companion's full character stats for the RQ3 and MERPS systems.

New essays consider Rankan, Ilsigi, Beysib, and Outsider deities in the light of further tales of Sanctuary, that place which is the funnel of the gods and the eye of the Rankan hurricane.

The excellent encounter tables from the Thieves' World box have been revised to reflect later events and personalities, and are presented here in full. There are also floor-by-floor isometrics of the Great Dungeon. Though adjacent to Kitty-Cat's palace, nobody seems to go there. Now you can study its defenses and understand why.

Alone or along with the Thieves' World box, the Companion rekindles the fabulous world of Sanctuary—Thieves' World.

Fantasy Roleplaying Adventure

Roleplaying Supplement for Vols. 3-6 Of the Thieves' World® Series

A companion box, Thieves' World®, surveys the city of Sanctuary, including maps of The Maze and The Maze Underground. Cities and Carse, two books of size similar to the Thieves' World Companion, offer respectively details for realistically populating RPG towns and cities and a vision of a very different town of Sanctuary's size.
