NOTES REGARDING THE CALENDAR

BOLD entries indicate a High Holy Day ITALIC entries indicate a special festival (also High Holy Days) Other entries are holy days
Rituals reliant on variable events, such as the first snowfall of the year, are not shown below. Always check the cult's write up. If a major festival falls on a holy day, the god is given only a single entry—the major festival takes precedence.

Snaermonan

(Snowmoon)

Season

Hearthlands: Winter
Low Winterlands: Winter
High Winterlands: Winter

The start of the new year is a time of heavy snow, even in the Hearthlands. Flurries that started in Wulfmonan become more constant, blanketing the ground. Further north, in the Winterlands, Snaermonan marks the start of months of heavy snow.

Frostmonan

(Frostmoon)

Season

Hearthlands: Winter
Low Winterlands: Winter
High Winterlands: Winter

In the Hearthlands, the snows decrease during Frostmonan, replaced by hard frosts. With the ground frozen hard, travel actually becomes easier, though travelers must still contend with freezing wind and sleet. The Winterlands remain blanketed by snow.

Eostremonan

(Eostre's Moon)

Season

Hearthlands: Winter/Spring

Low Winterlands: Winter

High Winterlands: Winter

Traditionally, Eostremonan marks the end of winter. In days of yore, spring began on the day the first sacred sheep in the high temple in the Imperial City (now ruined) gave birth. These days, each temple maintains its own flock, and so different domains celebrate spring at different times. The Winterlands remain snow-covered, the sheep there not lambing until later in the year.

Þlofmonan (Plowmoon)

Season
Hearthlands: Spring
Low Winterlands: Winter/Spring
High Winterlands: Winter

With the frosts over and warmer rain falling, farmers in the Hearthlands begin plowing the soil, ready for planting. The first markets of the year are held at this time. Spring comes to the Low Winterlands in this month, though further north the snows are only just beginning to lessen.

Sowanmonan

(Sowingmoon)

Season
Hearthlands: Spring
Low Winterlands: Spring
High Winterlands: Winter/Spring

The traditional month for planting crops and moving cattle to the high pastures, Sowanmonan is a busy month for the farmers. Trade increases as the temperatures continue to climb. In the Low Winterlands, farmers both plow and sow in the same month, having smaller fields and less opportunity to delay their duties. Toward the Icewall, the snows lessen, and the first hint of spring enters the air.

Werremonan

(Warmoon)

Season

Hearthlands: Spring
Low Winterlands: Spring
High Winterlands: Spring

Werremonan remains the favorite time to war on one's enemies. The fields are planted, allowing the nobles to gather their militias to their banner. In less warlike domains, Werremonan is the time of the great markets and a dramatic increase in trade. The High Winterlands now enjoy their first days of spring. In the frozen wastes, war must wait while the farmers await newborn lambs, kids, and calves.

Sceranmonan

(Shearingmoon)

Season

Hearthlands: Summer
Low Winterlands: Summer
High Winterlands: Summer

As one might deduce, Sceranmonan is when the sheep are sheared of their heavy fleeces. Wool is vital for winter clothing across Rassilon.

Season

Hearthlands: Summer
Low Winterlands: Summer
High Winterlands: Fall

Grain crops are harvested during this month, the heads being stored for next year's seeds or ground to make flour. The stalks are left to dry in the warm sun to make animal feed for the winter. Toward the Hellfrost, it is time to gather supplies for the rapidly approaching winter.

(Harvestmoon)

Season

Hearthlands: Summer
Low Winterlands: Fall
High Winterlands: Winter

Other crops, including wild fruit and berries, are gathered at this time and prepared for storage. The fields are a hive of activity, as farmers work quickly to gather their crops before the heavy autumnal rains begin. The High Winterlands are already suffering the first snowfalls of the impending winter.

Falmonan

(Fallmoon)

Season

Hearthlands: Fall
Low Winterlands: Fall
High Winterlands: Winter

For agricultural workers, Falmonan means preparing the harvested goods, which must last for many months, and securing the livestock, which are brought down from the summer pastures. The last great markets of the year are held. The days begin to shorten, and the Low Winterlands might, on a bad day, see snowfall. In the far north, winter now begins, with light flurries quickly developing into constant snowfall.

Hearthlanders and their neighbors in the Low Winterlands take this time to gather game and cull their herds. Meat is salted or smoked, then placed in secure storage, away from the teeth and claws of wolves and bears. Snowfall in the Low Winterlands begins to get heavier, while the High Winterlands are already swathed in endless white.

Wulfmonan

(Wolfmoon)

Season

Hearthlands: Winter
Low Winterlands: Winter
High Winterlands: Winter

So named because wolves and bandits prowl closer to settlements, searching for easy prey to fill their hungry bellies. Winter has come to the Hearthlands, and the ground begins to harden. Snow flurries begin, though they rarely amount to much. The Winterlands are now locked in hard winter, and communities, isolated from each other, must rely on their own reserves to survive the cold, dark nights.
