THE SOUL REAVER™

THE DARK KIN

THE DARK KIN

"Power is available to anyone with the ambition to do whatever is necessary to grasp it, but only the cunning can survive it. What depths will you tread for power? How long do you think you can walk amidst its venomous barbs before reaching the end of your path?"

—Archon Salaine Morn

This web-exclusive supplement to THE SOUL REAVER provides new options for Dark Eldar Explorers that players and Game Masters alike can use alongside the Kabalite Warrior Career Path featured in the main volume to explore new facets of the insidious Dark Eldar. This supplement requires a copy of the ROGUE TRADER Core Rulebook for use.

These new options include the Wych Career Path, for players who wish to take on the role of these elegant and brutal killers. Unlike Kabalite Warriors, who focus on inflicting suffering at range, Wyches are artists of the arena, melee combat specialists who do their dark work up close. To them, a dying breath is not a whisper heard from afar, but a billowing breeze that stirs around them each time they kill.

Further, it contains three Alternate Career Ranks to help players construct iconic Dark Eldar characters. The Skyterror is a master of aerial combat, the fiendish Fleshcrafter Disciple twists bodies into terrifying new forms, and the Incubus Initiate relentlessly pursues martial perfection. With these deadly tools in hand, we hope that players will go on to create unique Dark Eldar characters to overcome deadly challenges, reap vast and terrible rewards, and shake the Koronus Expanse to its very core.

WYCH CAREER PATH

"Anything less than perfection is waste."

—Anyalra, Succubus of the Cult of the Withered Blade

Though the high towers of the Kabals may be the centres of political power in Dark Eldar society, the arenas of the Wych cults are the beating, bloody hearts of their settlements. As such, Wyches often hold places of

STARTING SKILLS, TALENTS, TRAITS, & GEAR

Dark Eldar: The Wych Career uses the rules for Dark Eldar Explorers on pages 96-99 of THE SOUL REAVER.

Starting Skills: Acrobatics (Ag), Awareness (Per), Chem-Use (Int), Dodge (Ag), Silent Move (Ag), Speak Language (Eldar) (Int), Speak Language (Dark Eldar) (Int).

Starting Talents: Ambidextrous, Decadence, Disturbing Voice, Hard Target, Melee Weapon Training (Primitive, Universal), Thrown Weapon Training (Universal).

Starting Traits: Keen Senses, Non-Imperial, Matchless Grace, Power Through Pain, Speak Not Unto the Alien, Soul's Nemesis.

Starting Gear: Best Craftsmanship splinter pistol or Common Craftsmanship shardnet, Best Craftsmanship wychknife or Common Craftsmanship impaler or Common Craftsmanship razorflail, wychsuit, micro-bead, translator unit, gruesome trophy or kill-recorder, 2 doses of any one poison or 3 doses of any one combat drug, 2 Eldar plasma grenades.

prestige in Dark Eldar society, and the greatest of their champions, individuals like the fabled Lelith Hesperax, wield great power through the Kabals whose members patronize their circles of bloodshed. Still, first and foremost, each of these individuals is a killer of the highest calibre, and all other pursuits are secondary to refining the art of total lethality.

In the Nexus of Shadows, the greatest such arenas are the Shadowspine Pits, built by the Cult of the Withered Blade. The pits are perched above the vast, gaping maw of the ancient structure upon which the Nexus has spread like a cruel stain, and terrible spectacles of carnage and gore take place in the arenas daily to slake the endless thirst of masses of outcast Dark Eldar who reside in the Nexus of Shadows.

The Wyches of the Cult of the Withered Blade are the depraved performers who dance across this stage with utmost grace, effortlessly slaughtering all manner of exotic and deadly creatures and offering up their suffering to the others of their brutal and thirsty kin in attendance.

Wyches wield a staggering variety of arms that clearly demonstrate the twisted genius of the Dark Eldar weaponsmiths, from lashing chains of blades known as razorflails to cruel, tearing nets to the strange spiked gloves called hydra gauntlets. The Wyches of the Cult of the Withered Blade, however, frequently prefer the elegant simplicity of their knives. With these supremely honed edges, they can find gaps in any armour.

In the arena, the Wyches of the Withered Blade Cult are a stunning sight indeed, dreadful and enthralling as they weave between the blows of the deadliest enemies and disembowel with the most delicately efficient of cuts.

SKYTERROR

"Kill in a single pass, without slowing, without hesitation. Relish knowing that your foe is dead before he does."

—Idris Cwn'Anwn, Dark Eldar Mercenary

The Eldar claim to have mastered the subtle nuances of gravity long before humanity mastered bipedal motion. Regardless of any truth or falsehood behind this assertion, the Eldar have danced on the wind since before their empire collapsed in a horrific pit of its own decadence.

The Dark Kin of Commorrhagh turn their mastery of gravity to the wickedest of ends, much as they do with all of their eldritch knowledge, twisting this apparent miracle for their sadistic purposes until sheer terror overshadows any awe it might inspire in onlookers.

The Dark Eldar particular revel in flying at a mad pace, slaughtering fleeing prey and their rivals alike, and they can be found mocking the feeble grip of gravity all across the Nexus of Shadows.

The bladed towers of this Dark Eldar haven in the Koronus Expanse Webway are haunted by countless gangs of Hellions, feral and vicious Dark Eldar who spurn the authority of the Kabals to ride the bloody draughts that blow between the Bonespires and around the Palace of the Archon. Their bladed skyboards carry these killers from place to place, where they seek new thrills and new torments. Though they reject the hierarchy of Dark Eldar society, these anarchic killers still ascribe to its most basic tenets; those swift and savage enough to claim victory prize it from the spattered corpses of their foes.

There are others still in the Nexus of Shadows who put a premium on high-velocity murder. Reaper pilots swirl around the Shadowspine Pits on their shrieking jetbikes, showering the arenas of the Cult of the Withered Blade and their occupants with gore from their own aerial battles. These heedless riders can guide their artificial mounts with unfathomable precision, severing the limbs or even slitting the arteries of dumbfounded foes who find themselves dismantled and drowning in gouts of their own blood before the pain even sets in.

The most talented and depraved of these pilots go on to pilot the terrors known as Razorwing fighters. Named after the swift, voracious avians that sometimes accompany Dark Eldar Beastmasters onto the field of battle, these sleek vessels are move with a deadly grace, spreading pain and terror in their wake.

Dark Eldar voidships function in much the same way, but on a far grander scale, slipping through the void, silent and unseen until it is far too late for their hapless prey to retreat. The pilots of these craft have been known to perform manoeuvres that would tear an Imperial vessel in half, practically dancing between monstrous shells in the tempest from a group of macrobatteries to dart in, delivering crippling strikes and savage boarders alike. Shrouded by fields of utter darkness, these ships come from nowhere and return just as quickly, seeming to blink into existence only long enough to wreak terrible harm upon their victims. In this way, their vessels have been known to bleed giants to death, slowly shearing apart the defences of even the most formidable voidships before leaving their crippled husks to die from a death of ten thousand cuts.

Despite their relentless savagery, Dark Eldar warriors do occasionally serve in the company of Rogue Traders. Though only the most audacious of Rogue Traders openly employ xenos, let alone the callous and treacherous Eldar, those who do find themselves in command of Dark Eldar mercenaries quickly learn to value the swift wits and swifter reflexes of their sinister subordinates. On the surface of alien worlds, in strange skies, and even in the deep void, the Dark Eldar practice their killing art with equal grace. And so long as a Rogue Trader can pay the great and terrible toll the Dark Eldar demand and direct their fickle attentions elsewhere, he finds their thirsty blades at his side—and not in his back.

Required Careers: Any Dark Eldar

Alternate Rank: Rank 2 or higher (7,000 xp)

Requirements: Ag 35, Pilot (Any One)

Other Requirements: The Explorer must have the chance to hone his skills as a pilot of Dark Eldar craft. This could have been amidst the Hellion gangs who haunt the spires of Dark Eldar settlements, the Reaver jebike riders whose deadly chases swirl around the arenas, or even the elite pilots who guide the deadly Dark Eldar transports across the battlefield or their eldritch voidships through the Webway on their way to raid vulnerable worlds.

PASSING SLASH (TALENT)

Prerequisites: WS 35, Pilot (Any One)

This warrior has studied the high-speed kill through exhaustive personal experience, and slows for nothing—least of all his hapless foes!

Once per Round, when the Explorer flies within 1 metre of a foe as part of a Full Move Action, he may make a Difficult (-10) Pilot Personal Test (or a Hard (-20 Drive (Skimmer) Test if he is driving an appropriate vehicle with the Open-Topped Trait). If he succeeds, he may make a melee Standard Attack Action against the target as a Free Action. He gains a +1 bonus to Damage on the attack for every two Degrees of Success he scored on the Pilot (Personal) or Drive (Skimmer) Test.

ARTERIAL STRIKE (TALENT)

Prerequisites: WS 40, Passing Slash

There is more to slaying the lesser creatures than raw velocity and power, and this character has mastered not just the brute technique but the delicate art of killing this way.

The Explorer may make a melee Called Shot Attack Action in place of the Standard Attack Action when making an attack with the Passing Slash Talent.

FLESHCRAFTER DISCIPLE

"Knowledge is valuable, yes, but you can't teach inspiration. You have to find it yourself. You have to tear it out, bloody and thrashing. And once you do—once it's in your grip—you can start to create something truly worthwhile."

—Haemonculus Anasta Skaein

The Dark Eldar see the art of manipulating as they see everything else; it is a thing to be mastered utterly, so that it can be used in the most depraved ways imaginable to assuage the Prince of Excess' eternal gnawing at their haggard and worn souls. The body is ultimately disposable to the Dark Eldar—the Haemonculi in their shadowy pits long-ago conquered death. But nothing in their power can overcome the grip of Slaanesh upon their immortal essence. Nor is it the pain of the body that they crave in others, for such corporeal torment is shallow and unsatisfying. Nothing less than wracking the very soul of another brings the Dark Eldar a modicum of relief.

Still, the soul is most easily reached through the body, and so the Dark Eldar have turned aeons of knowledge, from before the Fall of the Eldar and beyond it, towards their deplorable studies. Physiology is a plaything to these creatures, to be manipulated, twisted, and subverted as they see fit.

Some Dark Eldar approach this path by becoming Wracks, wretched creatures who turn themselves over to the dreaded Haemonculi for experimentation. They do so in the hopes of finding an end to the eternal corrosion of their spirits, though none can say if they ever succeed, for their twisted forms are inscrutable and horrific. Wracks serve as the assistants to the Haemonculi, acting as the hands of their masters, who rarely deign to bloody their own hands in mundane toil over unfortunate victims. Some whisper that the greatest of Wracks, whose inspiration and depravity begins to rival that of their superiors, in fact become Haemonculi, but none can say if it is true or not. The Haemonculi, after all, have no room for servants who do not obey in their laboratory domains.

The deadly and beautiful Lhamaeans also master the art of the body, and these courtiers can be found in the inner circles of many powerful Archons. Unlike the Haemonculi, who explore a dark myriad of arcane sciences in the dark recesses beneath Dark Eldar holdings, their focus is clear; Lhamaeans are masters of intrigue and poison, their tongues and their blades both carrying wicked venoms equally capable of destroying any who stand in their way. Trained in the school of Shaimesh, deity of poisons, they stand as peerless masters of their craft.

Finally, the Haemonculi themselves are perhaps the greatest and certainly the most debased of those who study the fleshcrafter's art. Their poisons can dismantle a foe at a cellular level, wreaking miniscule and debilitating harm wherever it passes. Their knowledge of anatomy is unparalleled, and with a blow they can break bones, rend organs, and tear muscle in a perfect pattern that leads to the slowest, most agonising possible death. Who can say for certain what pit these creatures emerged from, what part of the Dark Eldar mind gave birth to such horror? What is certain is that they are here to stay, and that the flames of their mad desire can never be quenched, no matter how deep they wade into seas of blood, ichor, and bile.

Requirements: Int 40, Medicae, Trade (Chymist)

Other Requirements: The Explorer must have had the opportunity to train in the Dark Eldar ways of the fleshcrafter, the poisoner, and the alchemist, and learned to wield the double-edged scalpel of depraved healing and exquisite harm that comes with starting down this dark and twisted path.

TORMENTOR'S INSPIRATION (TALENT)

Prerequisites: Power Through Pain, Surgical Precision
Madness has entirely consumed this Dark Eldar's mind, and of this insanity comes a brilliance unparalleled in its acuity and depravity.

Whenever this Explorer gains a Pain Token, he gains a +10 bonus to the next Intelligence-based Test that he makes before the end of his next Turn.

Once during an encounter in which he has gained three or more Pain Tokens, the Explorer may spend a Fate Point. If he does, he gains the Unnatural Intelligence (x2) Trait until the end of the encounter.

TORMENTED PHYSIQUE (TRAIT)

Prerequisites: Dark Eldar, Corruption 30+

This twisted creature has gone to lengths even others of its depraved kin deem mad, twisting its body through atrocious augmentations in pursuit of new pleasure and pain. Even the fleshcrafted horrors that this wretched and wracked terror has inflicted on itself, however, do not truly give form to the abomination of a soul that resides within, and so it ever seeks to create new and more monstrous things.

The Explorer gains the Natural Armour (2) Trait, the Toxic Trait, becomes immune to the effects of diseases, poisons, toxic effects, and gains no benefit from combat drugs of any sort. Additionally, the Explorer gains one additional Vile Pleasure (see page 99 of THE SOUL REAVER) of his choice (he can still only gain a single Pain Token per Action or non-Action event, except as dictated by individual Vile Pleasures).

INCUBUS INITIATE

"Why do I fight? A foolish question. Over centuries of battle, I have flensed away all but conflict itself. I fight because war is all that I am."

—Incubus Valstran Doomblade

Incubi are warriors first, last, and only, killers who dedicate themselves to this side of violence so thoroughly that they eschew the intrigues and politics of their dark brethren. Under the Hierarchs who rule the temples at which they train, Incubi lead lives of brutal asceticism, denying themselves all else as they sharpen their skills and their discipline. It is said that alone amongst the Dark Eldar, the Incubi can be trusted to keep their word to the end, so bound are they by their unrelenting code.

Though an outsider might mistake the utter devotion of the Incubi for piety or a moral centre, these cold-hearted killers spurn such things as much as any of their kind. Their honour is heartless, and they feel no compassion nor respect for the foes they butcher so skillfully in their endless quest for perfection. They, as much as any scheming Archon or depraved Haemonculus, are truly Dark Eldar, and the blood of those who have forgotten this fact flows freely across the pages of history.

To become an Incubus, a Dark Eldar must walk a razor path that few survive, overcoming terrible trials. He must claim his own life time and time again, slaughtering other trainees before the iron statues of Khaine, the Eldar god of war, that adorn each of obsidian shrine. After slashing through the countless ranks of aspirants, an Incubus must win his place in the temple by taking the life of a senior warrior, a full Incubus, whose armour he can claim in savage battle.

Even this accomplishment merely marks a new stage of training. After besting a more experienced Incubus, the aspirant must seek out an equally deadly foe: an Aspect Warrior of the Craftworld Eldar. After hunting this foe, using every trick that he has mastered, the Incubus must vanquish his target utterly, defeating him in a duel and smashing his soulstone, that he may take the shattered spirit of his foe and defile the gem that contains it into a deadly psychic weapon. Once equipped with a so-called "tormentor" as proof of mastery, an Incubus is finally considered complete, and joins the ranks of the veteran killers of the order.

Incubi traditionally wield great two-handed swords called klaives, which they see as the pinnacle of weaponry. Only the greatest among them, warriors who bear the rank of Klaivex, wield the deadly weapons known as demiklaives, paired versions of the klaive that can be joined together into a massive and devastating greatsword.

These warriors stand as far above their subordinates as an Incubus stands above the common rabble. Such is their skill that some who have witnessed them in battle claim that they must possess some mystical powers. Of course, few have seen their deadly talents put to use and survived.

Required Careers: Any Dark Eldar

Alternate Rank: Rank 6 or higher (21,000 xp)

Requirements: WS 45, WP 35

Other Requirements: The Explorer must have had the chance to train in the arts of the Incubi, usually at one of their obsidian shrines in the Webway cities of the Dark Eldar.

MASTER DUELLIST (TALENT)

Prerequisites: WS 40, Wall of Steel

This warrior has survived countless duels to the death and learned the bitter lessons that only such battles can teach, finding victory in the spattered blood of the vanquished.

Once per Round, when the Explorer successfully Parries a foe's attack, he may make an Opposed Weapon Skill Test against that enemy. If he wins the Opposed Test, his foe suffers a -10 penalty on all Weapon Skill Tests to Parry the Explorer's Attacks or Attack the Explorer until the end of the next Round. If the Explorer wins by four or more Degrees of Success, he disarms his opponent, forcing him to drop the weapon he used to attack.

MURDEROUS ONSLAUGHT (TALENT)

Prerequisites: WS 45, Battle Rage, Blademaster, Frenzy
This Explorer descends into a cold fury in battle, his mind finding a state of dissonant clarity and savage precision in the storm of bloodshed that swells around him.

The Explorer may enter a Frenzy as a Free Action when making a Charge Action. Whenever the Explorer hits with a Melee Attack while Frenzied, he may spend a Pain Token. If he does, he may use any of the following Actions while Frenzied until the end of his next Turn (instead of being limited to only All-Out Attack and advancing towards the nearest foe): Aim, Called Shot, Charge, Dual Strike, Feint, Manoeuvre, Stun, and Swift Attack.
