FOREWORD

This document is designed to be an aid for players and referees alike. Naming is important in any culture, and even in our fantasy we like consistency; how many times while adventuring have you encountered an NPC with your character's first name or last name?

The main reason for this document was so that in my own campaign there would be a consistency, yet allowing variety. If your half-orc runs into other half-orcs during game play, you might accidentally run into a long-lost cousin or more awkwardly, someone with your own name.

Player Characters need never be forced into rolling on these tables, although they might want to look at or roll on them at their discretion. PCs need never be forced to accept a name or nickname just because the dice rolled it.

Some nicknames are not positive and are used to imitate nicknames in society. Use at your own discretion and disregard any you find offensive.

For the players, peruse them looking for a good name only use dice as a last alternative. I can't count how many times someone generated a character, knowing the class and race, the kinds of initial items to buy and then just sat there...twitching, fidgeting and agonizing over a name for his latest masterpiece. Meanwhile the chorus of other players began the mantra, "Just pick a name; let's play!"

Hours later, Fred the dwarf was named.

For the Referee, this document gives you two entwined gifts: first not only can all your NPCs share a cultural naming scheme, but also you get the burden of naming a minor NPC who was never supposed to be anything more than scenery.

I recommend generating a dozen or so names of each gender before play begins and keep that list on hand for any occasion. Appendix B, the Open Game Content has a ready made list to get you up and going.

Now if you're in a pinch for a name, you can provide one easily and there can be some consistency in your names (it will sound like you have a complete culture for your humans and demi-humans).

Most Orc names use the hard version of vowels, so Aliolle is said AY-LIE-OLAY, and Clitus is pronounced KLIGHT-OOS. However that's simply most pronunciations for a chaotic race, and GizânuK can be pronounced Jihz-ahn-uhk or Gee-zay-nook at your whim. If the circumflexes (^) and umlauts (Ä) bother you, remove them from the name.

DICE ROLLING

In this document, d00 indicates using percentile dice (a pair of ten-sided dice) rolled to produce a number from 1-100. One die is designated as the "tens spot", while the other is the "ones spot"; a pair of 0s (00) indicates a 100 was rolled.

INSTRUCTIONS

Decide on the gender of the person you're generating a name for. Roll (or choose) from the name configuration table. If a Middle name is indicated, roll (or choose) an additional time from the First name tables.

NAME CONFIGURATION

d00	Configuration	Example
1-40	Firstname Surname	Johann Bach
41-55	Firstname Middlename (initial) Surname	Johann S. Bach
56-60	Firstname (initial) Middlename Surname	J. Sebastian Bach
61-72	Firstname (initial) Middlename (initial) Surname	J. S. Bach
73-00	Firstname Middlename Surname	Johann Sebastian Bach

Nickname

d00	Nickname	Females	Males	Example
01-70	None
71-74	Table 1 Prefix Nickname	p. 26	p. 57	"Big Johann" Bach
75-77	Table 2 Prefix Nickname	p. 27	p. 58	"
78-80	Table 3 Prefix Nickname	p. 28	p. 59	"
81-83	Table 4 Prefix Nickname	p. 29	p. 60	"
84-85	Table 5 Prefix Nickname	p. 30	p. 61	"
86-88	Table 1 Suffix Nickname	p. 31	p. 62	"Johann the Big" Bach
89-91	Table 2 Suffix Nickname	p. 32	p. 63	"
92-94	Table 3 Suffix Nickname	p. 33	p. 64	"
95-97	Table 4 Suffix Nickname	p. 34	p. 65	"
98-00	Table 5 Suffix Nickname	p. 35	p. 66	"

Nicknames, Firstnames and Middlenames are rolled by gender.

Half-Orcs

To simplify, just roll an orcish name (in fact many half-orcs simply have orcish names). However, if you want a more complex/realistic name, roll above and note each element of the name (firstname, surname, etc.) For each element roll any die with odds = a human element and even = an orcish element. Thus you could have an orcish firstname and a human surname. If the only element that's not consistent is used as an initial, assume you only use that name with that race (for example, if your name were Max G. (Gizânuk) Cobb, assume that when you're among orcs you introduce yourself as Gizânuk and among everyone else you're Max).
