WELCOME TO THE NON-PLAYER COMPENDIUM

Born from the Non-Player Cards, the Non-Player Compendium allows you to create and build characters and NPCs for virtually for any use, whether inside a tabletop RPG or for an acting class or creative writing purposes.

These cards answer questions that you may ask when creating or enhancing a character, such as: What should I name the town noble? Who will the hero encounter in the wilderness? What is her non-generic secret?

We broke up character creation into eight separate categories. Instead of just being a mass of roll lists, each entry features inspirational text to help you built out the concept of your new character.

Names

First you will have the choice of 2700 diverse names to choose from. If those names don't do it for you then you can create your own name by rolling or choosing a prefix, joint, and suffix, so that you can generate literally several million unique names.

Professions

The famous question, "What do you do?" comes to life within these cards. Is the character an innkeeper, an assassin, or maybe an herbalist? The professions deck provides a wide range of jobs and occupations for your NPCs.

Relationships

How does this character know the PCs? Is it a family member, a past lover, an old mentor? Perhaps it reflects how they are related to other NPCs.

Personalities

Is your NPC an analyst, studying how people act and react before making a move? A perfectionist, trying to make everything (or something particular) absolutely perfect? These cards describe how your NPC may act or react to various scenarios, granting various degrees of depth to each.

Traits

What can be observed that is unique and original about your character? Is he covered in mushrooms? Does she have a distinctive scar or mutation? Perhaps he carries a bejeweled weapon?

Quirks

What does the character do (observable behavior) that is different or unusual? Although similar to traits, these are more akin to habits, which your players may discover with prolonged exposure to your NPC.

Goals

What is the NPC trying to personally accomplish beyond merely practicing their trade? What drives them forward? Maybe they to seek vengeance or perhaps to gain renown.

Secrets

There are some secrets that are meant to be discovered... and others that should never be revealed.

PREFIX-BUILDER

A name is composed of a Prefix + Suffix or a Prefix + Joint + Suffix.
 With these tables you you can create your own names by rolling up or selecting your own name segments. After rolling for a segment, you can choose between three options, either pick one or save them all to play with the combinations.

| Roll   | Prefix- |        |        |

Academic

You make your living in the higher arts of academics and research. You could be a professor, researcher, experimenter or philosopher. You are studious, perhaps bookish, and have an obvious passion for learning.

Acrobat

The air is your canvas, and your body the brush. Using your talent for physical grace and strength you perform daring feats for entertainment or employment.

Administrator

In a world full of chaos, you bring order, ensuring every “i” is dotted and every “t” is crossed. When others need guidance they come to you; when blame needs to be assigned, you take it.

Agent

Wherever there are secrets, you work to uncover them for your masters. You show exceptional guile and cunning, and a will to achieve your goals by any means necessary.

Apothecary

People come to you for medical advice, potions, poultices and the wares you craft from materia medica to aid others—or to ail them. For good or ill, you wield nature’s gifts with a studied hand.

Architect

Where others see an empty plot, you see potential. You see both the big picture and the small details, and can bring them together to create anything from quaint homes to grand palaces.

Artist

The Muses inspire you, be it in painting or sculpture or music. You may even be lucky enough to have a patron, or renown, but more likely you struggle to make a decent living.

Assassin

You are a hunter of men, and every head has its price. You may have chosen to be in this line of work or you may have fallen into it, but no matter—you have a predator’s instinct, and humanity is your prey.

Baker

You make pastries, breads and loaves. You may be employed by a larger organization or you may own your own shop, in which you get to talk to the locals and hear the latest news.

Banker

Money makes the world go round. You know the intricacies of converting currencies, calculating taxes, managing tithes and recording loans. If there is a debt to be collected, you know who owes it.

Barber

Trusted to wield blades around people's heads, you have a confidence and skill few can match. With careful attention to detail and a sunny disposition, people talk to and around you about things they wouldn't want known.

Beggar

You live your life day-by-day, trying to get enough money to buy food. If you're lucky, you stay at a local inn. You most likely did not choose to live this way, but there are those who humbly follow this path.

Blacksmith

Hands rough and blackened, your life is the anvil, hammer and forge. You may create household objects and implements or you may craft armor and weaponry. You have a great tolerance for heat and an arm as strong as iron.

Brewer

Without liquor the world would be less merry by far, and with your skills as a brewmaster you bottle that merriment. Although you may live a simple life, it is a full one making creative concoctions.

Builder

You craft from wood, metal and brick the homes and workplaces of tomorrow. It's hard work and you've likely built up corded muscles for carrying heavy loads, tolerance for the weather and a head for heights.

Butcher

Your knowledge of anatomy and skill with a blade let you carve meat with a minimum of waste. Slaughtering animals doesn't faze you, and you respect the source of your wares far more, you suspect, than your customers.

Caretaker

Overlooked by others, you maintain the cleanliness and perfection people expect when they visit your charge. Whilst looked down upon, you nevertheless take pride in holding your work to a higher standard.

Chef

Cooking isn't merely following a recipe. You create art to be appreciated by all the senses. The kitchen is your kingdom, and you rule it ruthlessly in pursuit of the perfect dish.

Coachman

People and cargo need to get places and you're the person to take them there. You know the routes and the risks, and you have the courage and determination to see your charges through to their destination.

Courier

When something needs to get somewhere fast and secure, people come to you. You will go anywhere and brave any obstacle to get the messages, packages or mail you are entrusted with to their destinations.

Craftsman

You create things, be they functional or decorative, with skill and attention. You may be an artisan commissioned to create great works, or a humble crafter of common items that are always in demand.

Crewman

You have met many people in your travels, but your vessel is your only true love. You know the value of working in a team, trusting your fellow crew with your life and respecting the authority of your captain.

Criminal

You live a dangerous life, operating beneath the eye of the law with other unscrupulous individuals. You do what you want, because you have to and because you deserve whatever you can take.

Doctor

You have dedicated your life to studying people, how they work and, most importantly, how to fix them. Be it a minor ailment or a serious condition, you have the skills and the knowledge to heal and mend others.

Engineer

Yours is the language of the slide-rule and the blueprint. Whilst others craft trinkets, you engineer, creating things of complexity and ingenuity through meticulous planning and design.

Entertainer

You may be a street performer, a tavern musician or member of a traveling troupe. Skilled in the performing arts, you weave emotions as a tailor weaves thread, and make your living bringing wonder into people's lives.

Explorer

There are dangerous and uncharted parts of the world few choose to explore. You, though, are driven by the urge to get away from civilization, a thirst for adventure or danger, or the hope of discovering great riches.

Farmer

You enjoy the feel of soil in your hands and sun on your skin. You may till fields or herd animals as part of your role, but ultimately you are a provider and a hard worker.

Fisherman

There is serenity in all things if you only sit down and watch. You enjoy a simple life, free of hardships and away from the drama of the city. The waterways are your home, and no one knows them better than you do.

Guard

To protect is your role, whether it's protecting a merchant caravan or famous individual, or as a member of the city watch. You stand ready to put yourself in harm's way in order to keep the peace.

Hunter

Living on the wild frontier, you make your life hunting game. This could be for furs, meat, bounty or keeping the balance between predators and prey.

Innkeeper

Anyone with the coin can be your friend, with a drink in their hand, a meal in their belly or a room for the night. You have a friendly but no-nonsense demeanour and know when to forget what you hear, as well as remember.

Inventor

The next great breakthrough is waiting to be unlocked, and you are the one to do it. You tinker and toy with all manner of mechanisms and materials, revelling in your own ingenuity. Knowledge and creation are the same thing to you.

Jeweler

Your beautiful creations are wrought of fine gold, silver and gems. You may work from an exclusive store, selling to the upper classes, or perhaps travel from city to city selling your services as a premium designer.

Landlord

You provide others with a home, if they have the coin to pay for it. Savvy in business, you manage your lands and properties to ensure they turn a tidy profit whilst looking after your tenants.

Leader

You know what has to be done for the good of all, and how to motivate others to help achieve your goals. You have natural charisma and empathy which gives you insight into those you lead.

Merchant

You carry what you can sell; fine luxury goods, weapons & armor, equipment or just baubles and trinkets. Are you a honest trader, or a swindler who puts profit before everything, leaving before the locals catch on?

Miner

Stone and darkness and the swing of a pick are familiar to you. It's cramped and dangerous, but you take it in your stride, and bring to light the treasures of the earth.

Navigator

You use your keen eye, knowledge of maps and familiarity with the stars to guide people through strange lands and across treacherous seas. You have an intuition for direction and are rarely lost.

Politician

You rule by the trust of your peers, comfortable making the hard decisions others lack the will for. Bureaucracy and politics come as naturally as breathing, tools to use in service of your community, or your own ambition..

Royalty

Through birthright or conquest, you inhabit a world above that of normal folk. Granted a great privilege, you are also burdened with responsibility and embroiled in constant political maneuvering.

Scribe

What good is a lesson or a story without others to see it? You make sure such things are written down to be shared. True or false, gospel or gossip, there are hungry eyes waiting to read, and you are more than happy to feed them.

Servant

You perform tasks for others so they don't have to. It's honest work, cleaning, fetching, looking after children and homes. With free rein of their homes, you have an insight into the inner workings of your employers lives.

Shepard

Long days on the hills with your herd has you preferring the company of animals over people. You are wise and insightful, as you spend much of your time in introspection and contemplation.

Slave

As a slave, you live at your master's mercy. You may like them, or despise them, but regardless, they are the one who controls your fate, unless you dare to defy them.

Soldier

Battle, duty, training. Your life is one of order and discipline. Even outside the military, mercenaries live their lives ready for battle. You have a strong sense of honor, or at least a code, and have seen death before.

Specialist

You are an expert in your field - all your skills, knowledge and abilities focus around this one narrow area. You have a wealth of experience and a solid reputation, standing far above your peers at any related task.

Tailor

You craft garments in a wide range of styles. Perhaps you cater to the working man, creating utilitarian accoutrements or you create bespoke finery for the social elite. You have an eye for detail and a steady hand.

Teacher

You have dedicated yourself not to the pursuit of knowledge, but to the sharing of it. You have a talent for deconstructing ideas and concepts in order to communicate them to others.

Thief

Property is a lie — you own what you can take. You might be a master thief, employed to acquire things that are not for sale, or a petty criminal, stealing to survive. You have a talent for stealth and sleight of hand.

Abductee

You were kidnapped once. Perhaps it was some semi-legal authority, a ransom ploy or a personal obsession. You're free now, but still feel a connection to your abductor and the thought of seeing them again scares you.

Apprentice

You are being individually mentored in a craft or discipline. Working so closely with a master is both humbling and frustrating - you can see where you are headed but you have a long way to go to be their equal.

Assaulted

You were assaulted. It may have been provoked, or you made a convenient target for someone's rage. Either way, that brutal attack left a scar and a grudge. The perpetrator may have been punished, or justice may still be waiting to be served.

Black Sheep

You aren't like the rest of your family, and they treat you like a pariah. You may have been at the centre of some family scandal, or involve yourself in activities the family does not approve of.

Bound

You each hold a secret that, if revealed, would mean the end of your lives as you know them. It might be some terrible incident you covered up together, or some quality you both share that must never be discovered.

Brother In Arms

You took part in a vicious battle and lived to tell the tale. You may have scars, but your shared experience has brought you together as blood kin. You both carry the burden of your duty and know you can trust one another to the end.

Bully

You like to toy with people, seeing how badly you can treat them before they snap. You torment them just because you can. As long as they keep reacting, you stay entertained, eagerly awaiting the moment they explode so you can laugh in their face.

Caught Thief

You were once caught stealing by them. Now they know what you are, they feel violated by your intrusions. When you were caught, they may have turned you over to the authorities, cut a deal or just let you escape.

Child

As a child, you have a special bond to your parents. They created you and you carry a part of them within you, for better or worse. You may idolise your parents or despise them - regardless, you have a bond that transcends emotion.

Childhood Rival

As children you were rivals, always competing, always looking to one-up the other. You may have been encouraged into it by others or naturally developed it, but the rivalry might still burn under the surface all these years later..

Close Friend

You've known each other a long time, been through thick and thin and come out the other side stronger than before. You've got each others backs and you're closer than family - after all, you don't get to choose your family.

Competitor

Someone sees you as their constant professional rival. You've beaten them to every promotion, won every competition and pulled off every demonstration of your work better than they. And they never stop trying to beat you, fuelled by resentment.

Confidant

When bad things weigh others down, they turn to you for support. As a confidant, they confide in you their doubts and worries, and you're there to listen without judgement. You've made true friends, and know a lot of secrets.

Creditor

Someone owes you, big time. It might be money or a favour, but they need to deliver or there'll be hell to pay. Fair is fair, and a debt must be repaid, anything else is disrespect. Nobody disrespects you for long.

Crime Witness

Theft, assault, arson, embezzlement - you witnessed a crime with your own eyes, or have irrefutable proof of it securely locked away. Will you bring them to justice, bury the evidence out of fear, or blackmail them to line your pockets?

Disciple

You follow a spiritual leader, benefiting from their guidance and faith. You have become a disciple of their religion or philosophy and are eager to learn more and to share their teachings with others.

Dominator

You have no time for free will or disobedience. Your word is law and will not be questioned. You dominate another utterly, crushing them into submission. They are not your slave, they are their own person - just so long as they submit to you without question.

Emotional Influence

You have had a profound emotional influence on another's life. It might have been one of love, hate, soaring joy or crushing sadness, but the emotions are still strong. You play a pivotal role in their emotional development.

Fellow Survivor

You share a bond of hardship, having survived a terrible situation where many others died. You may share survivor's guilt or just want to put the incident behind you. You have camaraderie with your fellows, bonded through that terrible experience.

Former Friend

You were friends once, but then something happened. You drifted apart after a betrayal or mistake that couldn't be forgiven. You are both bitter about it and still haven't managed to move on.

Former Leader

You were a leader, once. They obeyed your orders and respected your command. You may not have liked them, or perhaps you were war buddies, but your authority over them was clear. You may remember old times fondly, or be full of resentment.

Former Lover

You two were an item, once. Was it an amicable split as you drifted apart, or one full of bitter recriminations? In any event, you both have a deep history with each other and know things about each other few others do.

Guardian

You are responsible for someone, protecting them regardless of whether they feel the need or not. They are your charge, not your master, and you must keep them from harm; it is your duty to protect them, even from themselves.

Healer

You brought them or one of their loved ones back to health. You nursed wounds and restored strength until your patient was good as new. Perhaps you even saved their life. They will always be grateful, even though you parted ways.

Helpful Benefactor

As a benefactor, you give to others in order to help a cause you both believe in. Your project at the moment is grateful for your assistance, but perhaps they're just taking advantage of your generosity? You watch closely and offer advice, ready to cut ties if they betray your trust.

Idol

You are idolised by a fan, held in highest regard as a role model. Placing you on a pedestal, they are obsessed, and while you might find their attention flattering it's also creepy and a little threatening.

In Debt

You've had a shadow over you for some time, a debt that must be repaid and now it has caught up with you. Maybe you owe someone money or a favour, and it's time to pay up or run. Those owed rarely take delays, disrespect or non-payment lying down.

Liege

You rule over others, demand allegiance, commanding respect and expecting obedience. When you speak, most people listen, but there is always someone who refuses to bend their knee - a thorn in your side, you resent their blatant disregard for hierarchy.

Lover

You two are one, body and mind, and it's far more than just a fling. You know each other inside and out, and while you enjoy your time together now, you find yourself excited by thoughts of your future together.

Mortal Enemy

You crossed someone and became their mortal enemy. Now they will not rest until you are dead, and there will be no diplomacy or mercy. It's likely they've already tried to kill you, and you know they will not stop until you breathe your last.

Murder Witness

You witnessed a murder. You may have come forward or just tried to forget, afraid for your own safety even as you are racked with guilt. The murderer might not even be aware you are a witness, or perhaps they are already on your trail.

Nemesis

Beyond mere rivalry, you stand against another as the antithesis of everything they represent. A nemesis in every sense, your hatred is mutual and it is only a matter of time before you destroy each other and everything you each hold dear.

Old Hand

You're the best at what you do and everyone knows it—and you aim to keep it that way. Now another has shown you up on more than one occasion with undeniable prowess. Your jealousy and pride compels you to put them in their place

Previous Sale

You have sold things to them in the past, perhaps legitimately, but not every transaction need be entirely honest. You may have an understanding due to past deals, or an enmity due to fallings out over theft or cheating.

Previously Employed

You were once hired by them to help out with menial chores so that they could focus on more important things. When the job was done, you were discarded. Seeing them again, as equals, reminds you of the sting of that dismissal.

Prophet

A prominent religious figure, you are a lighthouse in a sea of beliefs. You have shaped the faith and spirituality of others just by your prominence in the community, if not directly.

Pupil

You study under a teacher or mentor. You might begrudge having to learn things when you could be doing something more interesting or you might enjoy it. Your teacher has a huge influence on your life, moulding you into who you will become.

Rekindled Friendship

Once friends, you were separated by circumstance. You've fought to find each other again and rebuild the connection you shared. Now you reminisce about the good old days and make new memories, while discovering how each of you have changed.

Romantic Rival

The current focus of your passions is being wooed by another. The heart can be a fickle beast and lead to poor choices, rash acts and unfortunate consequences, but none moreso than when your rival is involved.

Saved

They once saved from a terrible fate. You will be forever grateful to them as your saviour. You hold them in high-esteem and always grant them the benefit of the doubt. After all, they saved your life, it is the least you can do.

Saviour

You saved them from a terrible fate and they are forever grateful, revering you as their saviour. You may have rescued them physically from danger or delivered them from a spiritual evil. In either case, they are now your most loyal friend.

Secret Lover

No-one knows, but you've been in a relationship for a while. You both value your privacy, keeping your dalliances discrete to avoid exposure. Perhaps your culture would frown on the union, due to marriage or social station.

Senior Colleague

You are more than just a colleague, you are their superior. You may be the boss of the entire company, their immediate manager or perhaps just an experienced, long time employee they respect.

Sibling

Your sibling reminds you of yourself and the person you might have become, which may make you glad or jealous. Friends, rivals or divided by hatred, you share a blood connection neither of you can overlook.

Sidekick

Not everyone gets to be the hero, but you are okay with that. You support your hero, helping them be their best and sharing in the praise and rewards heaped upon them. What you do is important, but you are always second fiddle.

Slave

You are a slave, owned by another and forced to serve them however they see fit. Perhaps you dream of freedom, or find the idea of independence frightening. Defiant or defeated, you know your master has all the power and holds your life in their hands.

Slave Owner

You own another as a slave. They are just property, like an ox or a work hound. You may treat them fairly, as long as they do the work asked of them, or you may revel in the power you hold over them and abuse it, treating them cruelly.

Supporter

You aren't a leader, but you support the cause of one, aiding in small ways within your means. You agree with their points in public and argue for their point of view, publicly pledging to follow their lead and donating towards their causes.

Teacher

You help other become the person they are meant to be and hone the skills that they possess. As a mentor and teacher, you have imparted great wisdom and knowledge upon them, training them to be more than they were.

War-Brother

You fought together in battle and had each other's backs. You may not have liked each other but it was just you, together against overwhelming odds, and the experience forged you closer than family. The things you saw and did together are still fresh in your memory.

Amoral

To the foolish, morality isn't black and white, but to you it's isn't shades of grey either. There is no good and evil, just a cost (to others) and a benefit (to you). You weigh the options and take the most appropriate action to achieve your goals.

Analyst

All things can be explained and predicted. You see trends and connections in events that others don't. These studies may absorb your life completely, or you can take advantage of your insights, making you a powerful ally or adversary.

Architect

You are a master planner; you set up the pieces, position the players and eventually orchestrate your desired outcome. You believe that only you can control your fate, and that each event requires precise planning and execution.

Autocrat

In your life, there is only room for one will—yours. You must be in control at all times, you must be the ultimate authority on any matter of importance. It is your right to rule, to lead, and to control.

Brute

You have little tolerance for weakness, especially in yourself. You could be a proud warrior or a simple bully. You know that the strong devour the weak and those that can't defend themselves deserve what they get.

Caregiver

Taking care of those that can't care for themselves gives your life meaning. In a dangerous world, anyone could use a caregiver. You genuinely feel for others and want to help and nurture them.

Classy

You are prompt and professional at all times, respectful and reserved. Manners are as important to you as breathing, and observing the laws of chivalry, taste and decency are how you measure both yourself and others.

Competitor

You are a winner—there is no greater thrill than that of victory, and you'll do anything to feel it. Winning is everything and earning that place on the podium, looking down at the others that didn't quite make it, is intoxicating.

Content

You don't want or need anything more in your life. No adventure or excitement, you have modest needs, and are glad for what you have. Why risk ruining it when everything is already good enough?

Critic

You point out the flaws in all things, sometimes out of malice, but more often out of a desire to educate. You may be oblivious to the pain this causes for others, and believe you are giving them an opportunity to do better.

Curmudgeon

You're irascible and cynical, and vocally so. Finding little to be satisfied with in life, you are determined to sour it for everyone else as well. You are happier ruining someone's day than helping improve it.

Cynic

You've seen enough in your life to know nothing is free, good runs turn bad, nothing is what it seems, and everything fails. You distrust the world, and want nothing to do with it, preferring to live like a dog.

Fanatic

You have a cause to which you are dedicated with absolute faith, a faith that burns inside you until nothing but the truth of your conviction remains. Nothing can turn you from your path or dissuade you from your cause.

Flirt

You have it, so you flaunt it. You love the game, the battle of wits, charm and sexuality. It's fun, it's arousing and you feel powerful and confident when toying with other's emotions.

Follower

Where others lead, you follow. Your own vision is clouded, but you are quick to see the importance of goals held by others. You're happy to help the leader accomplish their vision, while you strengthen their resolve.

Free Spirit

You are carefree, without worries or regrets. The material world won't keep you down, your mind has set you free. You hold peace and love in your heart and seek to share your enlightenment with others.

Guardian

The world is a dangerous place, and you've survived long enough to see the worst it has to offer. Rather than breaking you, this hard-won knowledge can now teach others to survive as you have.

Honest

Honesty is the best policy and integrity is the greatest virtue. You are true to your values and to everyone around you—all the time. Some may consider you a bully, at least until they see the underlying integrity.

Impulsive

You act spontaneously, usually driven by whim or whatever new idea has popped into your head. You are prone to rash decisions and quick action, often without thinking about the consequences.

Insecure

You are unsure and nervous, finding it hard to accept praise. You see evidence of your failings in everything you do. You react badly to criticism and are suspicious of praise, lacking the confidence to follow through on your own decisions.

Introvert

It's inside your head you feel most at home. People are sometimes just too much for you, and you prefer to be alone. That isn't to say you can't enjoy the company of others, as long as it's in moderation.

Jester

Everything can be improved with humour and you have it in spades. Pranks, jokes, puns and tricks are all part of your repertoire and you use them to ease situations, garner goodwill or just make people laugh.

Leader

In your opinion, you always know the best way to go about doing something. You might not know how to perform a particular task, but you still feel your guidance would be beneficial. It only makes sense that others follow your lead.

Listener

You enjoy other people, and especially listening to their stories and opinions. You provide silent company, a shoulder to cry on or a willing ear. Sometimes you give advice too, and it's usually wise and considered.

Lone Wolf

The path you walk, you walk alone. You shun the company of others - they would just get in your way or slow you down. Maybe someone forced you upon this path, but it is your choice alone to remain upon it.

Manipulator

You find people fascinating to play with. They are complex dominoes to be placed and pushed at just the right moment. In your games, the pieces fall into intricate patterns carefully designed to do your bidding.

Meddler

You just can't leave well enough alone and have to have a hand in everything. Nothing is complete without your interference, regardless of whether you know anything about it or not. Nothing is complete without your touch.

Mediator

You always act as the neutral party and try to resolve differences between people. You have a way of breaking down barriers, finding common ground and help others see things from both sides of the argument.

Modernist

You have a strong appreciation for the future. The old is useless, simply by being old. You are on the bleeding edge of the most recent tech, styles and trends, and are always looking for the next new thing to involve yourself in.

Nonconformist

Whether it's because of your ethics, beliefs, or general view of people and society, you just don't fit in. In fact, you revel in your non-conformity, and some accuse you of being contrary on purpose.

Optimist

You can always see that silver lining, despite the dark clouds looming. Even when it is pouring, you feel the sunshine behind the clouds. Everything will work out in the end, and always for the best.

Penitent

You have done something horrible and shameful - while some may have forgotten, you never will. You now devote all your energy to atoning for your sin. Perhaps it will never be enough, but it won't be for lack of trying.

Perfectionist

Everything you do, even smallest task, must be perfect and without flaw, anything less is failure. You may even have forgotten the reason you do anything, making perfection both the means and the end.

Pessimist

You know that the worst case scenario isn't just a possibility, it's inevitable. What can go wrong, will go wrong - you've seen it time and time again. You say it all the time, why won't anyone listen? More fool them.

Philanthropist

Rich or poor, you are content with what you have, and even feel you could do with less. You invest your wealth, or give a tithe, to those who need it. Who knows, past kindness may someday save your life.

Praise-Seeker

You absolutely crave the approval of your comrades. A clap on the shoulder, or unison praise from your peers is what you need remain motivated. The amount of positive attention you get is your measure of success.

Predator

Every predator has its prey and you are no different. You feed on others, not like a parasite, but taking what you want with the impersonal detachment of a hunter. The only fear you hold is of one day meeting your match.

Rebel

Your independent will is your guide, and you ultimately desire freedom from unpleasant social bonds and obligations. Passive resistance is not enough for you - you must strike out against the chains that bind until they break.

Recognition Seeker

You love being yourself, and long to have everyone think about you as much as you think about yourself. You don't necessarily want praise, but rather fame - you want strangers to recognise you and know your name.

Revolutionary

The current powers need to be toppled and something better put in their place. You are an uncompromising agent of change, the force that will lead the world into a new tomorrow that is free from the shackles of tradition.

Rogue

What has the world ever done for you? Honesty is a mugs game, and a little white lie here, some sleight-of-hand there never hurt anyone. You see an advantage, you take it, and you look good while you do it.

Sage

Your life stretches out behind you, and you've learned many meaningful lessons on the way. Instead of losing all that insight, you hope to pass it on. You've found an inner peace and wisdom that you freely share with others.

Show-off

Just succeeding isn't enough, everyone must see it. You go far beyond what is necessary, showing-off even when it's unnecessary or dangerous. The opposite of succeeding is not failure, but not being seen.

Straight-Talker

You don't believe in skirting around the issue and prefer to get straight to the point. When there is something that needs doing, you cut right to it. Some think you are too direct, but you prefer to think of it as being efficient.

Superstitious

You adorn yourself in various totems and tchotchkes to ward off spirits and bad luck. You make use of a wide range of rituals and practices, because you believe wholeheartedly in fate and cling to anything that may help you control it.

Supplicant

Humble in the face of the divine, you entreat the gods for blessings and wisdom, hoping they might show you the way. Yours is a simple faith, and you trust completely in something you know you can never fully understand.

Survivor

You know danger, and it knows you. No stranger to risky situations, you still haven't faced anything deadly enough to end you. No matter what happens, you'll pull through on top somehow—you have so far.

Thrillseeker

You need adrenaline, badly. Without it your blood goes stale, and your heart stops beating. Without it, you feel dead. If new thrills find you, you attack them head on. If they don't, you go looking for them yourself.

Traditionalist

Things are the way they are for a reason. They work, and change always comes with the chance of failure. Why change what's worked for ages? Good solutions are always tested by time. You are the ultimate conservative.

Visionary

You see a future that only a few can even glimpse. Most are caught up in the old modes, but you shed that long ago. Whether by invention or revolution, it is your passion to reach that perfect future state.

Abnormal Height

Your height is far from the norm and you either have trouble reaching things or must take care to avoid hitting your head on door frames. Your abnormal stature draws a lot of attention and is often a source of ridicule.

Adorned

You wear a lot of jewelry, including chains, brooches, rings, amulets, necklaces, bracelets, anklets and perhaps piercings. They aren't necessarily all gem-encrusted riches, but hold sentimental or cultural value.

Ageless

You always look the same. No matter your actual age, you have an appearance of youth or age (your choice) that people assume represents your span of years, and will lead to other assumptions.

Androgenous

You can pass easily for male or female as your gender expression is almost entirely neutral, with no strong indicators of masculinity or femininity.

Artificial Limb

You have a prosthesis of some kind to replace a lost body part.

1) Leg 2) Arm 3) Eye 4) Nose 5) Hand 6) Foot

Accompanied

You are always accompanied by your trusty assistant, squire or servant. You have been together for a while and they obey you without question, regardless of how they may feel about you personally.

Asymmetric

You have a deformity that makes you look asymmetrical. One of your arms may be much smaller than the other or one of your legs may be too long. Whether this is by birth, curse, accident or profession is up to you.

Bears Heraldry

Emblazoned upon your person are heraldic symbols marking your association with a noble house, an order, or a nation. Educated observers may interpret the stories told by your symbols, or recognise them and the history behind them.

Bookworm

You always carry a book that never leaves your side. It might be a religious text, a notebook, journal or a favourite work of fiction that has sentimental value. Perhaps you inherited it, and cannot yet read the contents.

Companion Animal

You always have a small animal companion crawling or flapping about your person. It is fiercely loyal and often gets into mischief, but you'd never willingly be parted.

Carries Excellent Gear

Everything you carry with you is in excellent condition. You may have just recently brought everything brand new or you may be an expert in maintaining things, and take pride in your equipment and its upkeep.

Carries Exotic Equipment

The weapon or equipment you always keep with you is exotic and strange to the citizens of the land you travel. Its unusual design stands out, often drawing interest from fellow adventurers and those that craft similar items locally.

Carries Rundown Gear

Your gear has seen better days. Your clothes are tattered and worn, your armour and weapons rusted, dented and pitted with pock-marks and stains. All you own is held together with patches and string, giving you a downtrodden, pitiable look.

Charming Smile

You have a charming smile which is both alluring and infectious. It sets hearts aflutter and makes people flock to you. Some will trust you with their deepest secrets, and some will become jealous at your popularity.

Covers up

You cover yourself so that barely any skin is shown. Perhaps you wear gloves, scarves and hats, or use heavy robes, bandages and masks to avoid showing flesh. It might be for religious reasons, a disguise or to conceal a disfiguring disease.

Decorated

You have a rich and distinguished military background, and you wear your badges and medals of honour proudly. You wear them openly on uniform-style dress, so that others may see the evidence of your duty, service and conquest.

Deformed

You have a grotesque physical deformity that draws both pity and fear from others. Your face may be misshapen, or you may have a hump, vestigial tail or something more extreme such as a under-developed conjoined twin.

False Teeth

You have false teeth to replace the real ones you have lost. They may be of poor quality and made from wood, or high-quality ones almost indistinguishable from the real things. How you lost the originals could be a story in itself.

Fancy Shoes

You wear fine footwear that sets you apart from the rest. No footwraps or sandals for you - your feet are covered with only the finest materials and adorned with fancy, expensive buckles and clasps and polished to a high sheen.

Foreign Accent

You have a strong foreign accent that instantly marks you as an outsider. Some people may find you difficult to understand, others find your voice exciting and exotic.

Heterochromia

One eye has a different colour to the other. Some find this unsettling, whilst others find it intriguing. Either way, it makes you memorable the moment you lock eyes with someone.

Heavily Armed

You make no effort to hide the fact that you are ready for war. You are heavily armoured and carry many deadly weapons. A walking arsenal, you look like you could take on an army single-handed.

Missing Limb

You are missing a limb or body part, and have a stump or scar where it would normally be.

- 1) Leg
- 2) Arm
- 3) Eye
- 4) Nose
- 5) Hand
- 6) Foot

Noticeable Nails

Your nails are remarkable due to their decoration or shape. They might be exceedingly long, or painted in vivid and interesting colours or designs. You may even have sharpened or augmented them, turning them into weapons.

Noticeable Scent

You carry with you a distinct odor, from either a perfume or from a natural emission of your body. It is quite noticeable to anyone with even the weakest sense of smell, though whether they find it pleasant or not is another matter.

Physically Impaired

You have a disability or impairment that is both permanent and physical in nature. 1) Blind 2) Deaf 3) Mute 4) Crippled 5) Chronic pain 6) Immuno-compromised

Piercings

You sport a number of piercings in visible places on your body. You may simply have pierced ears, or sport other modifications such as cheek or septum piercings, or multiple piercings covering large parts of your face or body.

Profuse Perspiration

You sweat a lot, far more than usual and even on a cold day, you can feel it glistening on your brow. You often have to change clothes regularly to avoid getting damp, and perspiration constantly runs into your eyes.

Ritual Scarification

You display upon your body patterns and artwork created via the deliberate and careful creation of scars, through ritual or specialist practices. You might have simple brands or symbols, or elaborate full-body patterns and images.

Rugged

You look unusually hardy, like you could survive in the wild with just a knife and your wits. Grizzled and tempered by the elements, people assume you can stand up to anything life might throw at you.

Special Walk

You walk with an unusual gait. You might have a limp, strut, slouch, bow-legs or knock-knees, or walk powerfully and with purpose. Whatever the reason, it makes a noteworthy feature and you can't easily change your stride.

Tattooed

Your body is a canvas for artwork rendered in ink and blood. Your tattoos may be small symbols or images, or elaborate full-sleeve or full-body artwork with complex and vivid imagery.

Trophies

You carry trophies that serve to count your past enemies. These grisly tokens of your victories may take many forms: a necklace of finger bones, a cluster of dog tags or grisly snippets of hair, ears or other parts.

Uncommon Complexion

You have an uncommon complexion. Perhaps your skin is pocked by disease or tanned rough by long hours in the sun. Alternatively, you have albinism, are covered in vitiligo patches or bear extensive birthmarks.

Uniformed

You wear a uniform that identifies you as a member of the military or other service or order. You may be proud to serve or just in costume, but either way people love someone in uniform.

Unique Fashion

You wear only the most avant-garde fashions, or create an ensemble that stands out with flair. Wherever you go, you stick out in the crowd and are often the subject of gossip, envy and admiration.

Unique Eyewear

You wear strange ocular fixtures. They might be a pair of ornate goggles, thick glasses, mysterious shades, a dapper monocle or a profusion of hinged lenses. You are never seen without them, causing some to view you with suspicion.

Unique Hair Style

You have a unique coiffure that stands out. It might be a series of elaborate braids, buns or loops, or merely be extremely long or short compared to the local customs. Maintaining it takes time, but will garner you attention.

Unique Hair Colour

Your hair colour is extremely unusual, perhaps dyed in fantastic and uncommon colours, or merely a product of nature that is very rare and distinctive. It could include all your body hair, not just your head.

Unique Headwear

You wear a unique hat or piece of headwear that most people think makes you look top-heavy or unbalanced at best, and ridiculous or insane at worst. Where did it come from, why do you wear it, and what might it cover?

Unique Scar

You have some obvious scars that are the subject of rumour and gossip. You may tell tales of terrible battles you have fought in or injuries you have endured, pointing out where each scar came from.

Unique Trinket

You carry a unique trinket with you which draws a lot of attention and comment. It may be a belt buckle, medallion, clasp or ring that speaks of an interesting and rich history, or something truly strange and unidentifiable.

Unusual Frame

You have an unusual body shape that makes you stand out. You might be heavily obese, dangerously underweight, or have very wide or narrow shoulders or hips.

Unusual Mount

Unrecognised or rare in the lands you travel, your mount or vehicle stands out as strange and intriguing. Breeders or inventors show great interest in it, while others find it intimidating or perhaps even a little frightening.

Unusually Clean

You are unusually clean, always well presented, and perfectly groomed. You smell of excellent perfume, deodorants or disinfectant and never have a speck of dirt on your skin or clothes. You keep your belongings in a similar state of cleanliness.

Unusually Dirty

You are not a clean person and personal hygiene is not a priority for you. You barely wash and are caked with dirt and muck, such that even the most filthy peasant looks at you in disgust.

Uses a Walking Aid

You use an item to help you walk, perhaps a walking frame, crutches, staff, wheeled chair or cane. It may be merely affectation, or you may be mildly crippled and rely on it when walking becomes difficult.

Wears a Veil

You keep your face covered, perhaps due to modesty, religious practice, discretion or vanity. You may use something like a demure veil or bandanna, or make a bold statement with a full mask or helmet.

Wears Heavy Makeup

You make heavy use of face paint or makeup to change your appearance. You might daub yourself in tribal warpaints or use fancy cosmetics to make yourself stand out, cover up blemishes or fit a cultural role such as a geisha or actor.

Wears Minimal Clothing

You wear as little as possible, due to concerns about safety, a religious or social practice or just because you enjoy exposing yourself to nature. Some find your choice in attire risqué and others think it foolhardy or eccentric.

Acquiescent

You hate to disappoint people and always agree with everything, regardless of your own opinion on the matter. Whether you follow through on anything you agree to is another matter.

Always Drinking

You are a tippler, always drinking something, be it a cup of tea or some Dutch Courage from a hipflask or waterskin. You often speak from behind a mug or glass and it is a rare moment when there isn't a drink passing your lips.

Anachronistic

Your sense of fashion and turn of phrase comes from an older, better time. You use archaic mannerisms and out-of-date references as a way to celebrate and relive the ways of the past.

Anxious

You are always worried, concerned that something might happen unexpectedly, be it good or bad. It's the not knowing that frightens you, and you find yourself on the edge of panic all too often for the most inconsequential of reasons.

Arithmomaniac

Numbers are everywhere, and you feel compelled to keep track of them. You count things obsessively and try to make sure the world has pleasing amounts of things. Perhaps you are driven to destroy things that ruin the perfect count.

Bad/Good Timing

You always seem to show up at significant moments. Maybe you have impeccable timing, a sense of drama or just a knack for being in the wrong place at the wrong time.

Bibliophile

You love everything about books, from the smell of the dust on the pages to the feel of the spine in your hands. Books are sacred to you, both as objects of physical beauty and as founts of knowledge and entertainment.

Blunt

You believe that honesty, brutal and unyielding, is always the best policy. You tell things like they are, not holding back or dancing around the issue. Many find this approach irritating or outright insulting but some find it refreshing.

Compulsive Gambler

Gambling is a way of life for you, a measure of your worth. You will risk anything and everything in the hope Lady Luck will smile on you. You take any chance to roll the dice and look fate in the eye, even if it would ruin you.

Constantly Swears

It seems like every sentence out of your mouth is littered with profanity. Whether it's a lack of social awareness, your upbringing or some kind of uncontrolled tick, you tend to use expletives even when a more polite turn of phrase might do.

Daydreams

You have a habit for wistful thinking and daydreaming, often zoning out completely, even in the middle of conversations, as your mind wanders. The places you go in your head are just more interesting.

Dermatillomaniac

You're full of anxiety, and picking at your skin is the only way to let it out. You are always scratching, picking or pulling at your skin, often resulting in ugly marks, blemishes and bruises.

Doodler

You always carry a pad and pencil with you, doodling whatever comes into your head or drawing the things around you. You might even do so while engaged in other things, your hand drawing while your mind is occupied.

Easily Distracted

There is always something on your mind that keeps drawing your attention away. You often jump between trains of thought, get bored easily or find your mind wandering to the next interesting thing.

Exhausted

You seem physically or mentally exhausted nearly all the time, as if just being alive is draining. You often take naps, sit down to rest and can be found yawning and nodding off at the most inappropriate times.

Fiddles

You are always playing with something, be it a strand of hair, a coin or other small object. Never still, you find sitting for too long uncomfortable and always need to be doing something, unable to just sit and wait.

Forgetful

You have a terrible memory for faces. And names. And probably other things too - you can't remember. Facts seem to go in one ear and out the other, and sometimes you'd forget your own head if it wasn't attached.

Gluttonous

The word moderation has no meaning to you. When others are having seconds you're having fourths. After all, if you'd had too much, you'd stop, and you still want more. Pass the salt?

Gullible

You believe everything you hear - after all, why would anyone lie to you? You're sure those wallet inspectors will be back soon, so you can pay that gullible tax someone told you they were collecting.

Hoarder

You loathe throwing anything away. Who knows when something may come in handy? You have stacks of old papers, broken toasters, and knick-knacks. In extreme cases you may store your bodily waste, filling your home with jars and a terrible stench!

Illeist

You often refer to yourself in the third person, narrating out loud as if you were a character in the story of your own life. It often gets you some weird looks, but that only enriches the narrative.

Immature

You act far younger than you are, behaving like a child when you should know better. You have real world responsibilities to take care of, but happily ignore them in favour of childish fun.

Indecisive

You have trouble making decisions. When confronted with several choices, you often find yourself paralysed. Many people find you annoying and unreliable as a result, or try to hurry you along and making it worse.

Intense

You are extremely focused and serious. radiating an aura of intensity that can be frightening to some, and awe inspiring to others. Everything you do has an air of gravitas that is hard for others to ignore.

Kleptomaniac

Items just seem to appear in your bags and pockets. It's not your fault, some of those pieces just want to be there. Some things were just begging you to palm them away and other oddities, well, the owner won't even know they're gone.

Lecherous

When you find someone sexual appealing you make no effort to hide it, leering over them with obvious looks, whistles and bald-faced innuendo. Many people find your brand of attention unsettling or rude.

Monotonous

You have such a dull, monotonous personality that people fall asleep to the sound of your droning voice. You are boring, living the same routine day-in day-out, and manage to relate even the most exciting things in a yawn-worthy manner.

Malapropist

Through ignorance or accident, you have a habit of using the wrong word at the wrong time. Words that sound similar get swapped around, often causing confusion and hilarity in equal measures.

Messy

You are untidy and dishevelled. You leave a mess wherever you go, unable to comprehend the basic precepts of tidiness. Your messiness gets you in trouble, either because you lose things in the chaos or because it annoys those around you.

Miser

You avoid spending money whenever possible. It isn't that you are poor, just overly careful with your spending. You forego comfort or luxury when you can get something plain and utilitarian for less.

Narcissist

Everything you do is for the praise. After all, you are the most important person here, the best and brightest, and you deserve recognition and adoration. Woe to anyone who steals your spotlight.

Nervous Twitch

When under pressure, you exhibit a twitch that only draws more attention to you. Maybe you make sounds, or suddenly jerk your head - whatever the manifestation, you have learned to live with it, despite the embarrassment.

Onychophagia

When nervous or stressed, you chew on your nails, biting them down to the quick, and sometimes bite the surrounding skin as well. Some people find it distasteful, while others are annoyed by the chewed nails you leave behind.

Overly Physical

You're a very tactile person, more so than most. You can't just talk to someone - you have to tap their shoulder, caress their hair or stroke their arm to properly communicate, even if it makes them uncomfortable.

Paranoid

"They" are out to get you, and only you know it's all part of some vast conspiracy. Others dismiss you as a crank. Of course, that's what collaborators would say, convince you you're crazy and strike when your guard is down...

Perfectionist

Everything you do must be perfect, from your house to your achievements to your pets. You desire a world of perfection and when you see a mistake in anything, from a pattern to a social event, you find it unbearable.

Phobic

You find something out there absolutely terrifying, whether it's the dark, spiders, heights, magic or gnomes. You can rationalise it all you want, but when confronted, you shrink away, paralyzed with terror.

Repetitive Phrase/Action

You have a phrase or gesture you drop into your speech. Maybe you are trying to establish a catchphrase, or perhaps you aren't even aware you are doing it. What starts off as quirky ends up grating to anyone dealing with you.

Ritualistic

You order your life with a strict series of practices or rituals which you always perform in a certain manner. Any departure or interruption from your routine is extremely upsetting, often to the point where you can no longer function.

Sarcastic

You are deeply sarcastic, ridiculing and mocking everyone and everything. You employ irony and bitterness as weapons, and your acerbic wit often lands you in trouble, even when you intend it for humour.

Short-Tempered

You have little patience for insults, idiots or things that don't go your way. Your temper runs hot on a short fuse and all it takes is one minor slight to send you off the deep end into a raging tantrum.

Sickly

Either a poor constitution or just hypochondria, you always seem to be ill or coming down with some infection or disease. Runny noses, puffy eyes, sweating and coughing are your constant companions and people give you a wide berth.

Signature Move

You have a unique and distinctive move which you use to show-off or impress. It might be a dance, a victory pose or a way of walking and smiling that makes you stand out from the crowd.

Smokes

You smell of tar and tobacco and often have a haze of smoke around you after indulging in your habit. You regularly disappear to take quick smoking breaks, and may have turned smoke blowing into an art form.

Soliloquist

You have a habit of vocalising your internal monologue, sharing your inner thoughts with the world by talking to yourself. Some people find it curious, while others are cautious, assuming you have a mental illness or are possessed.

Spits

You have a habit of spitting. Maybe you just produce too much saliva, or use it to punctuate your sentences. Whatever the reason, you spit a lot. You spit in public, you spit as a show of disgust and you spit when you're bored.

Stammers

You have trouble getting your words out, tripping over your own tongue as you hesitate and repeat yourself. For the most part, people pity your condition, though some find it frustrating and try to finish your sentences.

Techno-Babbler

You speak almost entirely in jargon specific to your trade or interests, spouting words and acronyms in conversation that most people find incomprehensible. You expect others to know what you mean - it's obvious, isn't it?

Trichotillomaniac

You react to stress by pulling your hair or absently-mindedly chewing on a loose strand. This can result in hair loss and embarrassment, or even gastrointestinal problems, but you manage to keep those issues under wraps.

Whistles

You always have a tune on your lips, humming away to some internal melody or whistling your troubles away. Jaunty tunes, melancholy drones and annoying ditties, you have music in your heart that needs to get out.

99-100 Zeal

Altruism

You want to help others - not because they deserve it, not because you owe someone, nor for any reward or recognition. You just want to do the right thing because you believe it's proper. Altruism isn't a myth, you're proof it's a living reality.

Atonement

You've done terrible things, things that have caused misery, pain and suffering. Maybe they were accidents. Maybe you were a different person then. Now you seek redemption for your past acts. Before you die you have to find some meaningful way to atone.

Concealment

Maybe you are hiding from your past, or simply being cautious and remain unseen and unnoticed so you won't have to hide in the future. You rarely reveal your true self, if you even reveal yourself at all.

Control

You've been on the edge for some time, and you don't like what you see in the depths below that precipice. Now you spend every moment carefully maintaining control, of yourself and perhaps of others. Preventing it all falling apart is your responsibility.

Cruelty

Cruelty is a life lesson you give to the weak, an exercise in culling the herd and picking out the strong. That you enjoy your work inflicting spite and pain on others is a bonus. You revel in the suffering of others, be it overt physical pain or subtle, psychological damage.

Deception

Some lies take on a life of their own, a whole new reality building up from them until it risks collapse like a house of cards. You protect such a lie, for good or ill, because the consequences of its revealing are too dire. The world isn't ready for the truth.

Devotion

You have a leader, authority figure or employer that directs you, and you live to serve their cause. You draw an inner strength, confidence and serenity from knowing your actions have a greater purpose.

Disappearance

Sometimes you just need to escape your past, put everything behind you and fade away. Whatever made you feel this way haunts you, or hunts you, and everything you do is geared toward being forgotten by the world.

Endurance

You need to find the edge, then leap off it. Inside you is a burning need to see just how far you can go, to just what extremes you can push yourself. While most meander in mediocrity, you are not content with anything less than walking that knife-edge between can and can't, and laughing into the abyss.

Epiphany

There is something more than yourself, more than everyone, something spiritual and divine, and you seek to bask in the glow of that light. Be it gods, angels, spirits or fae, you seek to experience something of the intangible, to fill the void in your soul.

Extermination

Some beasts need to be put down. Perhaps a creature harmed or killed a loved one, or perhaps you seek to protect others from a terrible threat. In any event, something is out there and you know that you need to take it down.

Family Honor

When people hear your family name it's hard not to cringe at their reaction. At some point the name became more of an insult than a badge, but you're fighting to reclaim the lost honor and prestige of your house, not just for you, but for all your family.

Family Reunion

They say blood is thicker than water, but you can only bleed so much. Even family has its limits and the ties that bound you to them were cut. Now you seek to make amends, find common ground, forgive and mend those old wounds, if they'll let you.

Golden Age

The world isn't what it should be. The world isn't what it could be. You aim to change that, to forge a new destiny for the world, to guide it into becoming the paradise you imagine. A grand undertaking, but nothing worth doing is small.

Ideology

Nothing is more pure than an idea. Nothing more noble than a cause. There is a right way to govern and to be governed that you endorse wholeheartedly. You spread this political ideal to others, for hope, for what's right, and for the future.

Independence

You know you have an inner strength that makes you stand out from others, but such assertions must be made through action, not words. You venture out alone, self-sufficient and proud. To accept help is to fail.

Indulgence

Life is short, so why not indulge yourself while you still have the chance? You are a hedonist, doing what you will and indulging every whim and want. Who cares if you leave a good-looking corpse?

Instruction

The greatest gift is knowledge, teaching another the skills to become more than they are. You teach because it is your passion to help others learn and grow. You may teach just for the joy of it, or you may train students in specific skills in order to build a new future.

Joie De Vivre

Life is a beautiful thing and you want to experience it all, instead of sleepwalking towards the grave. The world is full of new experiences, new joys and wonders. You try to embrace opportunities to live each day to the fullest.

Kindness

A little kindness can be hard to come by in this harsh world, but you make it your mission to show others that it can happen. It might be small acts for individuals or larger gestures to your community, but as long as people know someone cares, you've done your job.

Laughter

Laughter is ambrosia to you. Hearing it created by your words and deeds fills you with joy and an immense sense of satisfaction. You seek to teach, enlighten and entertain with laughter, something you hold close to your heart.

Leadership

If you're not lead dog, the view never changes. You make it your goal to know people, to think ahead, to lead them where they need to go. One day you'll take charge, be it for personal glory or to help realise the dreams of those around you.

Learning

The world has infinite mystery and wonder and if you could, you would unlock every secret. To learn, to discover and understand, those are the greatest adventures. You seek knowledge every day, bearing a light into the gloom of ignorance.

Longevity

You almost crossed to the other side, once, and you don't plan to go back. You could accept death, but why? Life is precious, so you dedicate yourself to staying alive, fleeing anything that might send you to your final rest.

Manipulation

People are tools to be used, and like any good tool they need to be properly kept. You seek to weave a web around others, tying them up in invisible strings of words and thoughts so you can puppet them for your own cause.

Mourning

Grief is a wound that only time can heal. You need to retreat from the harsh realities of the world and take time away from those that remind you of what was lost. You will eventually deal with your grief, say goodbye and move on, but not today.

New Beginning

Your partner was lost to death or circumstance. All you care about now is that your children have a loving family. You want to make sure they have two parents, for their healthy growth and your own sanity. You don't want to raise them alone.

Obedience

You just want to follow the rules, keep between the lines and observe the letter of the law. It makes life easier to manage, working within a system—rebels and those that flaunt their brazen disregard for the rules make you extremely uncomfortable.

Peace-Keeping

You want everyone to get along, or at least not fighting and killing each other. You hate conflict and seek to find peaceful resolutions to the problems around you. When it's clear there will be no reasoning, those who desire peace prepare for war.

Perfection

The impossible dream is what you chase. In the areas of life that matter to you, you want to become the ideal, the measure against which all others are judged and found wanting. Practice, dedication, and discipline are your daily routine and nothing has higher priority.

Possession

You search for something you've lost, something of great value. Each day is a hunt, a meticulous search and eventual disappointment. But you hold onto the hope that the next place, the next clue, the next contact will lead you to your precious goal.

Powerful Physique

Physical prowess and feats of strength are how you define yourself. You use your muscles to woo the crowds and draw the eye as you demonstrate your awesome power. Hungry for praise, you eat up the adoration and awe of those impressed by your might.

Proselytize

There is life beyond merely living, something ineffable. You want to help people know the truth and embrace it in their hearts. Faith will set them free, the rules and rituals of belief will give them purpose. You want to teach them by the example of your virtuous life.

Reclamation

You quest to reclaim that which was wrongfully taken. Property, people or something less tangible, your mission in life is to see it returned, so you hunt your quarry tirelessly. Maybe you do this for yourself, or were set to it by your superiors..

Redemption

You've made bad mistakes, leaving the wreckage of your disappointments, embarrassments and failures behind you. Now you're fastidious, planning and triple-check everything. You're paranoid about self-sabotage, but this time you'll do it right.

Respect

Everything you do, you do for the respect of your peers. All your life you've not been taken as seriously as you feel you deserve, but you plan to change that. People will respect you and what you have to offer, through hard work and perseverance.

Reunion

Someone close to you was lost and you've spent many a waking moment trying to find them again. Perhaps they were taken, or they just disappeared one day—no matter, you know in your heart they are still out there, and that you won't give up on them.

Revelation

There are secrets that need to be revealed, truths that must be exposed. It will mean ruin for some, salvation for others but whatever the reason, the darkness will give up its treasures. Something is out there and you will be the one to find it.

Revenge

Some crimes can never be forgiven. Someone left your life broken and empty where there had once been joy. Now the void can only be filled by vengeance and every step you take is towards your day of retribution.

Selflessness

The world is a selfish and unforgiving place, but you take a stand to show that it can be a caring and compassionate one too. Be it through healing, assistance or simple labour, you make helping others your goal.

Service

Great deeds are done by a rare few, and rarely are they done alone. You follow a doer of such deeds, and are proud to serve and support him or her. Whether they are a great hero or a humble preacher, you have taken their cause as your own and follow wherever they lead.

Survival

You just want to live. Life is hard and the world is unforgiving, so you just try to hold on, the squeeze out as much life as you can before the end. Whatever doom is hovering over you, be it illness or enemy, you fight to hold on. You will survive.

The Hunt

There are two kinds of life—the hunter and the prey. Hunting is a way of life to you, something pure and primal and true. It isn't even about what you catch, but the act of hunting that defines you and your actions.

Theft

What's yours will be mine—that is your creed. Theft isn't just an act, it's an assertion of your will, a statement that you will not be defined and controlled. You take control from others, their belongings are your trophies, the proof of your freedom.

Transformation

All your life you've been told who you are or who you are meant to be. Your life has been planned and arranged and, one day, you'd like to become the person of your inner dreams. You might sink into escapism, or seek a more permanent change.

Travel

The world is an amazing place with countless things to do and learn, see and explore. You have no hope of taking it all in, but you're going to travel as much as you can, see as much as possible. And getting there is half the fun!

Truth

You have your doubts, you've been lied to or misled by someone who knows the truth, and you intend to know it too. There is so much unknown, but you will learn the reality behind the veil for yourself, whatever the cost.

Understanding

Some people study all their lives and know many things, others seek answers in faith or philosophy to the greatest questions in life. What you seek isn't platitudes or facts or faith—you have to understand how it all works.

Wealth

Money makes the world go round, and as a through-and-through capitalist you believe that truism more than anything. You are driven by greed, ambition or the sheer thrill of it to keep making more. Peanuts are for monkeys; you want the world.

Zeal

You saw the light. The path was revealed and you cast off your old life to pursue it. Upholding these principles keeps you from falling back on bad habits and bad people. It gives you purpose and strength. You once were lost, you freely admit, but now you're found.

Abandoned Family

You had a family, a spouse and children, but you abandoned them. There are still out there, and maybe you care about them. You may have left for selfish reasons or to spare them from harm, but you left without warning and they will always wonder why.

Abuser

While you seem nice enough casually, in the privacy of the home or workplace you are cruel and unkind. You abuse those under your care - your spouse, children or employees, but they keep silent and hide your secret so as not to set you off.

Accomplice

You were an accomplice in a major crime. People may have been hurt, but it wasn't your fault, you were just helping. However, the blame is at least partially on your shoulders, and the authorities are looking to question or arrest you.

Addict

You have an addiction you hide from others. You have it under control, at least that's what you tell yourself, but if someone discovers the truth it could be very embarrassing or worse—they might make you stop.

Adopted

You were adopted, and while you don't feel ashamed by this, you don't want it to define you. Such knowledge might create doubts about your adoptive parents, cause issues for your biological parents, or impact your rights due to your true heritage.

Adopter

One or more of your children are not your own. You may have adopted, or perhaps found or kidnapped a child and raised it to believe you're the real parent. The child doesn't know, and you want to keep it that way, for reasons of your own.

Adulterer

You weren't satisfied with the affections of your spouse, so you began looking elsewhere for additional attention. If they discover your indiscretions it could destroy your lives, so you're forced to make excuses.

Agent

You are an advanced scout for an imminent invasion, or a sleeper agent for a powerful foreign force. You have infiltrated and integrated into your new home and lay in wait for your activation code. Then you'll cripple them from within and serve them on a platter to your masters.

Arsonist

You've burned things, you've burned people. Fire calls to you, drawing you to set things ablaze and bask in the destruction and chaos. Perhaps you feel guilty, perhaps you delight in it, but you are never able to resist the urge for long.

Blackmailed

Although you may live your life as if everything were fine, it's far from true. You live every day with a fear They will come back and ask for something else, or finally reveal your secret and expose your indiscretions. Until then, they keep sucking you dry.

Brainwashed

You aren't exactly who you think you are - you've been brainwashed. You may have been turned against loved ones, indoctrinated by a cult, turned into a sleeper agent or made to think you are someone else.

Confidant

People confide in you and you've heard many significant and dangerous things. You've been witness to important events and learned the real story behind them. That knowledge brings with it a heavy burden, and if revealed, an even heavier price.

Conspirator

There are forces that plot to overthrow the current regime and you sympathize with their cause. More than merely sympathize, you are an active co-conspirator and you use your position and contacts to help the rebel cause.

Crossdresser

You enjoy presenting yourself as a different gender to your biological one. You may find it exciting, liberating, or you may be transgendered, but there are those who do not understand and would react badly to the discovery.

Cultist

You are part of a cult and fanatically devoted to furthering their aims, ambitions and beliefs. You may worship some dark god, or commit acts and rituals in the name of your cause that others would find abhorrent.

Double Life

Many things are not as they appear in this world, and you are one of them. You live two lives, a normal one the world usually sees and another, secret and hidden and very different from what others think you are.

Embezzler

You are entrusted with money, and you have abused that trust. You skim off the top, embezzling funds to supplement your income. Maybe you need the money or perhaps you are a self-made Robin Hood, taking from the rich to give to the poor.

Entrusted

You have been entrusted with protecting and concealing an object of great importance. You guard this item by hiding in plain sight, yet ready to disappear with it or defend it should the unworthy come calling.

Escaped Slave

You were enslaved, but fled when an opportunity arose. You've managed to make a life of freedom for yourself, but you'll forever be marked with your owner's brand, and remember the bitter sting of the lash.

Ex-Convict

You were convicted of a crime and sent to prison. Guilty or innocent, you've served your time and now want to put it behind you. Prison was not kind to you and the stigma of being branded a criminal is something you desperately wish to avoid.

Exiled

You aren't from around here, and didn't leave your home by choice. You were banished for some great wrong you committed, or were accused of, and can never return.

Extremist

You have extremist and often unpopular views, either religious, political or social. You believe your sense of morality is the only correct one and that those who disagree need to be severely punished, or at least forcibly re-educated.

Faithless

You live and work among the faithful, but you feel nothing of the divine in your heart. Instead you just go through the motions, perhaps out of fear of persecution or in the hope you might find what has come so easily to others.

Famous

You never wanted to be a hero, but you've done great deeds and become renowned across the land. All you want is to be left alone, not paraded around for others to adore. Perhaps you see fame as hubris, or perhaps the deeds were not as they seemed.

Fooled

You've lived all of your life under a false impression. You were tricked into believing something, perhaps by your parents or a close friend. That moment of gullibility changed everything and you feel deeply ashamed and guilty.

Fraud

You have a position of some authority or respect, but it is all built upon a lie. You have neither the skill nor right to do what you do, but you have managed so far to lie and fake things well enough to convince people that you are who you say you are.

Fugitive

You were a villain of some renown, known for many horrific, evil acts. You were defeated, but you evaded capture and now you are on the run, trying to stay ahead of those that seek to bring you to justice.

Heart of Gold

You present a hard, cold exterior but inside you are a warm and generous person. You genuinely care for people and want them to get what they desire, but you're loathe to admit it. Instead, you prefer to be gruff, rude and stand-offish, helping from a distance and in secret.

Heister

You were involved in, or perhaps orchestrated, an infamous and hugely lucrative heist and retired on your ill-gotten spoils. The people you ripped off were powerful, though, and will want retribution if you're ever found out.

Hidden Guilt

You caused a terrible accident and no-one knows it was you who caused it. The guilt of it burns inside of you and you could own up to it, but what good would it do? You can't undo what's been done, but perhaps there is a way you can atone for your actions..

Hoarder

Somewhere, you keep a lair which holds a vast hoard of oddities and chackies of which you claim to have a valuable memory. Though most of it appears to be junk, hidden away, a few priceless gems can be found.

Hunted

There is a bounty on your head and wherever you go, someone will be coming to collect on it. You move around from place to place, obscuring your trail or any evidence to those who seek the reward could use against you.

Illegitimate Child

You are the illegitimate child of someone who would rather keep your relationship to them discrete. You might be related to a noble or someone from another race or background, whose relations with your other parent would cause a scandal.

Illiterate

You can not read or write, but you manage to hide it through memorisation, guesswork and avoiding tasks that require it. You find your lack of ability embarrassing or shameful, but now the people you'd ask to help you are the ones you've lied to for so long.

Incognito

You wish your identity to remain unknown, and so you identify yourself as little as possible. You use false identities and disguises to ensure you remain anonymous. Perhaps you are very private, or perhaps you are hiding from a former life.

Informer

A snitch, a rat, a grass—unflattering labels for what you are. You learn secrets and then sell them for money, betraying confidence for coin with little remorse. Knowledge is power, and people pay for power. You might even play both sides as a double-agent.

Knows Secret

Through circumstance or careful planning, you have discovered someone else's secret. Knowing it not only makes you feel bound to protect it, but also means that you have a secret of your own—that you were poking around in matters that were none of your business.

Murderer

You are a killer, plain and simple. You've killed, maybe for passion, maybe to silence someone, maybe to satisfy a compulsion. You may feel shame or be a natural born killer—in either case the fact remains, you cannot be discovered.

Patient Zero

You are a carrier for a terrible disease. Though you seem to exhibit no outward symptoms or are immune, you are still infectious and those in contact with you can contract the disease unknowingly.

Plagiarist

Everything you have and everything you are now, you got by plagiarism. From cheating on a crucial test to a living as a copier of masterpieces, you have a talent for copying and forgery and have since faked deeds, identities and legal documents for yourself or for hire.

Politically Unpopular

You hold some political views that are wildly unpopular in the circles you frequent. If others knew, they might think of you as a traitor or sympathiser or simply be disgusted that you would have the sentiments you do.

Pornographer

You are a practitioner of the erotic arts, creating titillating tales and works of erotica. You may direct or participate in sex-shows and view sex as healthy. Your situation doesn't allow you to easily take credit for or admit to your work, so you remain anonymous.

Secret Desire

Your love and desires do not match the ones you present in public. Maybe you feel ashamed or fear persecution or worse, perhaps your inclinations are illegal or blasphemous and you fear becoming the victim of a witch hunt.

Sell-Out

People sometimes wonder what happened to your friends or family, but you just tell them they died, that you aren't close or you moved away. In truth, you sold them out, accepting a reward for their arrest or even execution.

Serial Bigamist

You've married more than one person. You have a string of tied knots across the land and none of them know about the others. Yet. You travel often, slipping from one of your families to the next, while always working on a new one.

Stalker

You have an obsession with someone and watch them all the time, protecting them and monitoring them. They are yours, they just don't know it yet, and you are meant to be together. They will learn to see you as you see them, eventually.

Survivor

You survived some terrible ordeal. You may have watched your family be slaughtered or survived a shipwreck by eating other passengers. Whatever happened, it has left physical and emotional scars and changed your life forever.

Unspoken Past

Your past must never be spoken of. Something happened back then, something terrible and profound and you absolutely must leave it behind you, forgotten and unmourned, if you are ever to have a normal life.

Unusual Membership

You have a membership in a peculiar club or group that others wouldn't normally have pegged you for. Because this membership is so wildly out of character for you, you feel embarrassed or ashamed, and so keep it hidden.

Vigilante

Some people escape justice, but they won't escape you. You secretly punish those that have avoided paying for their crimes, often with violence or death. Murderers, thieves, cheats and other scum would never suspect your normal identity, but they fear the name you've taken.
